Have We So Many Idle?
War? Possibly.
England Sinks.
The Earth Eats and Grows.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

MR. GREEN, head of the American Federation of Labor, says there are now eleven million, four hundred thousand unemployed in the United States. That interests business, big and little, for it means a reduction of more than thirty-six thousand million dollars a year in the purchasing power of the country.

You can't meet that by raising prices of stocks, cotton, wheat, or anything else. Prosperity depends on SPENDING POWER.

YOU CAN'T irrigate crops by putting water into a reservoir and hoping it will leak out and reach the roots of plants.

You can't overcome lack of spending power by putting government hundreds of millions into a Wall street reservoir, and hoping that in some mysterious way, the dollars will leak out into the pockets of eleven millions idle.

SINCE THERE are more than eleven millions idle, the government and the Federation of Labor might be interested in a decree prepared by Chancellor Von Papen and signed by Hindenburg, to promote German business.

This decree will lighten tax burdens on industry, the sort that this country is industriously making heavier. The German decree plans the creation of five and a half million new jobs. Every job, of course, means more spending power and better business.

GEN. VON SCHLEICHER fears war with Poland, says so and calls on "every male citizen of East Prussia to know his place when a call comes to defend the province." That doesn't sound peaceful.

NEWS EVEN more alarming tells you in the first headline, that "England is sinking into the sea."

There is comfort in the fact that "this land, this realm, this England is sinking only nine inches in one hundred years." There is some damage; the Bank of England has sunk more than six inches since 1868, and heavy St. Paul's Cathedral is gradually tilting over.

Another two thousand years of sinking may become serious, but by that time England may merely be the West European office of the British Empire, easily moved. Or there may not be any British Empire.

ENGLAND SINKS back into the sea, whence it once slowly rose. The chalk cliffs on the British coast are made of little marine animals that once lived under water. Meanwhile old Mother Earth, as a whole, is growing, like a whale that swallows tiny marine creature as it plows through the sea.

The earth, plowing through space, swallows millions of meteorites. You see them flashing as "shooting stars." There will be a great shower of them next November. A majority are very small, settling in meteoric dust at the bottom of the ocean.

BUT SOME are big. The French will hunt for a million-ton meteorite buried in the desert of Sahara. We have one as big, or bigger, in Arizona. And in Siberia there fell a meteor that, by the force of the wind produced, knocked down forests for many miles around.

Meteors are especially interesting because, scientists say, they once brought from outside space the beginning of life to this earth after it cooled off.

MONEY IS queer. Wise finance tells you it all depends on how much gold you have back of your money.

How do they explain the fact that in Canada an American changing a United States twenty dollar gold piece gets only $17.60 in United States one-dollar bills, whereas for 20 of those one dollar bills he can get $22.40 in United States gold. Try to figure that out.

IN RUSSIA, a government disliked by gold countries, the supply of currency has recently been increased to a small extent, corresponding with increased gold holdings, and the value of the ruble dropped seriously, although the total issue of rubles is in our money less than three and a half billions.

NOBODY KNOWS much about money, but there isn't any doubt that if this country, to solve its problems, should print one, or two or five billion dollars in currency, with the government's guarantee on it, that currency would be better than the gold bonds of other nations. But that would not suit the gentlemen that want to control the country's money supply, and do control it.

THAT THIS is a rich country, and would be happy, if it only knew what to do with its wealth, how to manage, how to distribute it, you realize when you read that New York City pays its public employes one million dollars a day. That is almost as much as it cost to run the whole government of the United States, in happy old days before 1914 started our national squandering debauch.

New York's taxpayers, supplying the one million dollars a day for jobs largely political, are not happy about it. It ought to gratify them to know that they have so much money, with something left over for building repairs.

IN LONDON, Mayor Cermak, of Chicago, annoyed by Britishers talking about "Chicago crime," reminds them that they

RUDY AND FAY MAKE UP, NO DIVORCE

Wife Professes Love And Terms Quarrel 'Childish, Foolish'

RENO, Nev., Eept. 7.—(AP.)—There will be no divorce for the Rudy Vallees, the former Fay Webb, actress wife of the crooning radio singer, said here today. She added:

"It was all a mistake. I love my husband and always have loved him. I am leaving at noon for Santa Monica and will join Rudy later in New York. I'm so happy."

RUDY 'PERFECT DEAR'

The startling turn came as Mrs. Vallee was believed to be preparing to establish divorce residence here.

A sudden realization that her separation from Vallee was all the result of a "childish and foolish quarrel," coupled with a midnight telephone conversation with the radio singer and orchestra leader in Atlantic City, was responsible for the change in plans, Mrs. Vallee said:

"I know I was just a little fool to even think of a divorce. Rudy never wanted one, although he was just a perfect dear and told me that if I thought a divorce was best, why that was what I should get. But I was wrong and we love each other more than ever now. We both admitted that last night."

'FOOLISH CHILDREN'

Hyman Bushel, New York attorney who had preceded Mrs. Vallee here to make arrangements for her stay in Reno, was highly pleased. He said:

Bushel arranged to leave by plane for New York. Mrs. Vallee and her father, C. E. Webb, chief of police at Santa Monica, Cal., had reservations on a train leaving for California.

'A Little Fool'

MRS. RUDY VALLEE

"It was all a mistake," chirped Mrs. Vallee today at Reno as she announced that she'll start at once to join Crooner Rudy in New York. ". . . . I was just a little fool to even think of a divorce."

FIND MISSING DEATH CASE WITNESS

'Other Woman' to Talk At Policeman's Trial In Wife Slaying

GREENSBURG, Pa., Sept. 7.—The state's star witness, Mrs. Jennie Foster Burkhart, missing as the commonwealth closed its case against former Police Lieut. Thomas Griffin, of Latrobe, accused of killing his wife, today was brought into court by Pvt. C. J. Hanna, of the state police. She probably will be called as a witness in rebuttal.

Mrs. Burkhart has been sought since last Saturday, and when Lucian D. Robb and Dominic Mazere, of Latrobe, were arrested charged with conspiracy to obstruct justice, a similar charge was placed against Griffin.

Private Hanna said he found the woman in Greensburg. Judge Copeland refused a motion for acquittal as the defense opened.

The state contends that Mrs. Burkhart, a divorcee, was keeping company with Griffin before the slaying. She disappeared in June and reappeared last week, saying she had been taken to Canada, and again was missing when the trial began.

Cleared, Girl Blames Suitor for Arrest

Mary Howard, 22, of Carlton street, and Gilbert Martin, 26, of Warrington avenue, were cleared of suspicion in the robbery of the Rev. I. S. Hawn, of South Negley avenue, today in East End Police Court.

Miss Howard said a rejected suitor told her she would be arrested. Mr. Hawn testified he caused the couple's arrest after receiving an anonymous telephone call that the blonde bandit was in Penn avenue.

Ortiz Rubio Denies Clash With Calles

EL PASO, Tex., Sept. 7.—(AP.)—Pascual Ortiz Rubio, recently resigned president of Mexico, was en route to San Diego today after a brief stop here during which he insisted his only reason for leaving office was his health.

Shot Spills Senator's Beer, $10,000 Asked

SEATTLE, Sept. 7.—(AP.)—State Senator Paul Houser filed a claim today for $10,000 insurance money on the ground that a bottle of pre-prohibition beer which he had displayed in beer parades was shot to pieces from ambush by an unidentified marksman.

BERN SUICIDE CLUE HELD BY DOCTOR

Jean, Balked in Death Plunge, Unable to Explain Tragedy

By WALLACE X. RAWLES
International News Service.

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 7.—Mystery surrounding the motive which caused Paul Bren, studio executive, and husband of Jean Harlow, platinum blonde siren of the screen, to commit suicide may be lifted upon the arrival here next week of Dr. Edward B. Jones noted specialist, from Honolulu. Dr. Jones cabled today from Honolulu:

"Understand motive. Willing to testify thirteenth."

It was regarded as probable that an inquest scheduled for tomorrow would be adjourned until next Tuesday to await the arrival of Dr. Jones. Authorities admittedly were up against a blank wall in their efforts to ascertain the motive that led the bridegroom of two months to shoot himself to death in his "Honeymoon Canyon" home.

JEAN UNABLE TO AID

Miss Harlow was unable to aid in clearing the mystery.

In her first statement since the tragedy she told detectives:

"I simply cannot understand it."

Miss Harlow continued near collapse. It was learned the affair nearly ended in a double tragedy.

She tried to throw herself from a balcony at the home of her mother, Mrs. Marino Bello, a short time after she had learned that Bern had ended his life with a bullet, friends revealed.

Miss Harlow cried aloud in an-

CONSTABLE CHALLENGED ON REPORT

O'Malley's Brother Told to Make Investigation

BULLETIN.

County detectives this afternoon raided the lunch room of Charles Petrich, 423 Water street, and the confectionery of Michael Guitini, 210 Smithfield street, and reported seizing liquor in the former place and "numbers" books and punchboards in the latter.

The alleged proprietors were held for court by Alderman T. M. Geary. Petrich was charged with violating the Snyder act, Buitini, with operating a lottery.

There are no speakeasies or gambling houses in the Second Ward, declared Constable Mark O'Malley, making a belated return to Judge Frank P. Patterson today of conditions in a ward embracing a large section of the downtown business district and out the Strip as far as Twenty-seventh street.

O'Malley said he was willing to swear to that statement.

Constable O'Malley, brother of Republican Ward Chairman Pat O'Malley, was asked by Judge Patterson:

"Do you mean to say there is no liquor selling or gambling in your ward?"

He replied:

"Yes, sir."

NEW REPORT ORDERED

Judge Patterson asked:

"Are you willing to swear to that?"

O'Malley replied:

"Yes, sir."

He was told to make an investi-

PRESIDENTIAL POLL

VOTERS IN RUSH TO QUALIFY

A last-minute rush of persons to be assessed for payment of taxes so they may be registered and vote at the November election, crowded the Courthouse corridors today. Fifteen extra clerks were on duty in the offices of the Board for the Assessment and Revision of Taxes.

Today, it was said, the office will remain open as long as necessary to accommodate those who wished to be assessed. Nine hundred were assessed yesterday and more than that number are expected to appear today. Clerks said the late rush this year was small in comparison with that during the presidential race four years ago. Those assessed today have 30 days in which to pay their taxes and register to vote at the fall election. Tomorrow is the first day and October 8 the last day to register.

Pennsylvania 'Safe,' Martin Tells Hoover

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7.—(INS.)—Assurances that Pennsylvania as usual, would be safely in the Republican column in November, were given President Hoover today by Gen. Edward C. Martin, Republican state chairman, and James M. Hazlett, chairman of the Republican city committee of Philadelphia.

Girl Employe Shot In Holdup at Bank

NORTH CHICAGO, Ill., Sept. 7.—(AP.)—A young woman bookkeeper in the Lake County State Bank was shot through the mouth and a patron was slightly wounded by four men who looted the bank of about $3,000 today.

'Flying Hutchinsons' Hop Over Greenland

GODTHAAB, Greenland, Sept. 7.—(AP.)—The "Flying Hutchinsons" took off on another leg of their New York-London flight this morning. They headed for Angmagsalik, on the east coast of Greenland.

Mayor to Lose Job If Appeal Fails

Mayor Kline will know next week whether his battle to upset the conviction voted against him by a Butler County jury has been successful.

Judge Thomas D. Finletter, from Philadelphia, today told the Sun-Telegraph by telephone that he would return to Butler next week to decide Kline's two motions—one to throw out the verdict against him and, that failing, to grant the Mayor a new trial.

SUCCOP CASE ALSO UP

At the same time Judge Finletter will decide the similar motions filed for Bertram L. Succop, former city supplies director, who was fired by the Mayor.

The Philadelphia jurist said he planned to communicate with District Attorney Andrew T. Park today to determine what day next week is best suited for everybody.

Judge Finletter said:

"I'm going to wind up the case next week."

When he was asked whether he had written his opinion, the judge, who has just returned from his vacation, replied:

"Now, why don't you ask me some interesting questions? I caught a 2½-pound trout on my vacation."

NEW APPEAL POSSIBLE

Mayor Kline was convicted on one count and Succop on 29 charges of malfeasance in office. These charges were based on reputed illegal purchase of thousands of dollars of city supplies.

If the conviction stands, it will mean Mayor Kline's removal from office. The maximum punishment on each count is one year in jail, although the jury recommended mercy.

If Succop's or the Mayor's motions are refused, the defendants will then be sentenced. And if the sentence carries a jail term, immediate imprisonment probably will be avoided by an appeal to the Superior Court.

Auto Kills Mother of Sleuth, Man Held

Mrs. Anna Mulvihill, 64, mother of Homicide Detective Thomas Mulvihill, of 137 McCandless avenue, was struck and killed by an automobile at Butler and Fifty-second streets shortly before noon today.

Dates for Voters To Qualify for November Polls

TODAY

Last day to be assessed for payment of poll taxes, a tax receipt being necessary to register. Receipt must be for taxes paid within two years.

Register assessors sit at polling places in boroughs and townships to list those who may have been omitted in house-to-house canvass.

TOMORROW

First registration day in second and third-class cities, including Pittsburgh, McKeesport, Duquesne and Clairton.

September 20—Second registration day.

October 8—Third and last registration day, also last day to pay poll taxes.

HARRIS INSISTS ON 'FEE' PROBE

HARRISBURG, Sept. 7.—(AP.)—Senator Frank J. Harris, Allegheny, today formulated a demand that the State Senate voting machine commission ascertain "who got the big fees" for Allegheny voting machine contracts or disband at once.

Harris announced his stand as the commission met today to determine its future course.

As chairman of the commission, the Allegheny Senator said he would ask the investigators "either to let down the bars and permit questions to determine who got the big fee paid in the award of the contracts for machines in Allegheny County or ask that the commission disband." Harris said:

"If the commission decides to disband, I will make my report of the record so far to the Secretary of the State regardless of what action the other members of the commission take."

Richard J. Beamish, secretary of the commonwealth, said he would convey the proposed Harris report to Attorney General William A. Schnader for "such action as the Attorney General sees fit."

Keys Get 3-Gun Wilson Into Trouble Again

OMAHA, Neb., Sept. 7.—(AP.)—Wilmington, Del., and keys go together as far as Harold D. (Three-Gun) Wilson, deputy prohibition administrator for Nebraska is concerned.

Wilson returned here last night from Wilmington, where he lost an appeal of a decision adjudging him in contempt of court for his refusal to tell the name of the man who gave him the key to a prominent political club of Wilmington. He raided the club while stationed there.

The prohibition office revealed he was in further difficulties over keys on his recent trip to the Delaware metropolis.

The Wilson family made the trip in two cars, Mr Wilson and a son occupying one while Mrs. Wilson and another son followed in the second car.

Leaving Wilmington, Wilson said he had the keys of both cars in his pocket and drove 126 miles before Mrs. Wilson intercepted him by telegraph and ordered him back with the keys to the second car.

Wilson said he promptly obeyed his wife.

Coyne Man Constable In Walsh's Ward

Senator James J. Coyne, the gentleman-farmer, this afternoon strolled into the orchard of his arch-foe, Police Supt. Peter P. Walsh, and made off with a juicy political plum.

The plum represented the constable's job in the First Ward. Andrew Maloney, a Coyne entrant, won the job.

Maloney was appointed by Judge George V. Moore. The court order was not signed by Judge Thomas M. Marshall, who is expected to file a dissenting opinion.

However, a dissenting opinion would be little solace to Supt. Walsh, who is also Republican chairman of the ward, for Maloney's appointment will be interpreted as a setback to the Superintendent's reputed ambition to be the next alderman in the same ward.

There was irony, too, in the appointment, for the constable's job was one from which the superintendent's son, Paul, resigned after being sentenced to a year in jail for violation of the election laws. Young Walsh has applied for a parole.

There were six candidates for the job. Two, P. J. McGuire, retired fire captain, and John McDonald, city employe, were sponsored by Walsh. The others were Frank Cassili, entrant of Alderman John J. Verona; William J. Duncan, a deputy constable, and Frank P. McCloskey.

The appointment places Maloney in the unusual position of being a constable in the same ward where a few years ago he was the alderman. He was defeated for re-election by Alderman Tom Flanigan. And the talk is that Flanigan now will not recognize Maloney.

HERRIOT SEEKS AMERICAN ACTION

Draws Parallel to Peace Agreement Made in 1921

By ARNO DOSCH-FLEUROT
International News Service.

PARIS, Sept. 7. — Germany's demands for arms equality with the rest of Europe will be thrown by France directly into the lap of the United States.

Premier Edouard Herriot, it was learned today, intends to draw a parallel between the Versailles treaty and the German-American peace pact of 1921, citing this and the recent foreign relations speech of Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson as proof that the German demand involves France and the United States equally.

POLITE HINT

Through ordinary diplomatic channels in Paris and Washington, Premier Herriot has already given a polite hint that he will not permit the United States to remain aloof from the controversy which threatens to wreck the Geneva disarmament conference and menaces the prestige of the League of Nations.

In the course of private conferences and public utterances within the next few days, Herriot will make his position even more clear.

He will, it was learned, refer in detail to Secretary Stimson's speech before the foreign relations council in New York. It was in this speech Stimson insisted the Kellogg-Briand pact for the outlawry of war was in effect a consultative treaty, binding each signatory to meet with the others in the event of threatened aggression or violation of the undertaking by any of the contracting parties.

HERRIOT AIM

Thus, by involving the United States directly in the controversy, Premier Herriot will avoid the necessity of restricting the discussions to bi-lateral conferences with Germany.

In the aide memoire setting forth the arms equality demand, the German government attempted to show that the issue was one that involved France and Germany alone. France, however, is bound by a recently-concluded entente with Great Britain to consult with London on any problem affecting outstanding European issues. Herriot's intention of involving the United States is a step still further away from the bi-lateral conversations desired by Germany.

VICE DENS IN 'STRIP' DENIED

gation and report to Judge Patterson at the next return day.

O'Malley's return followed on the heels of Judge Patterson's expose of yesterday, which has the bosses of Pittsburgh's big speakeasies and gambling spots trying to figure out just where they stand. Today the racketeers are said to be in a quandary, fearing lest county detectives acting on tips furnished by Judge Patterson might swoop down on their places.

Police today made two raids in the Hill district, and a boy in Morals Court, who confessed a taxicab holdup, and said he was full of moonshine, obtained in a Garfield district speakeasy when he staged the robbery, was ordered to point out the place by Magistrate Thomas D. Jones.

REPORTS REJECTED

Six constables who failed to make their returns yesterday, appeared before Judge Patterson today.

Two from the North Side were told to investigate alleged speakeasies in their district and the constable of the Sixteenth Ward was told to investigate the number's racket reported flourishing there.

Deputy Sheriff William Laughlin, constable of the Twenty-first Ward, was told to investigate reports of liquor sales in Beaver avenue and Louis J. McCann was quizzed about the numbers racket in the Sixteenth Ward.

R. R. Howell thought the Eleventh Ward, home ward of Judge Patterson, was clean, but was instructed to investigate the sale of liquor in Penn and Frankstown avenues and in Broad street.

Judge Patterson, interviewed with Assistant District Attorney George F. P. Langfitt on the scope of his intentions, denied he plans to call a special grand jury or start a general clean-up, saying he has not the power to do so.

Asked about the constables he reprimanded, he said:

"I think these officers are specific examples of constables who just didn't see those particular spots."

The Judge was asked:

"What are you going to do about it?"

PLAN OF ACTION

He said:

"I rejected their reports and told them to come back with a report showing that these places have been closed. If they say the places aren't there, then I'll ask Mr. Langfitt and District Attorney Park to send county detectives out to make an investigation.

"If investigation shows they're still open, they'll be raided and the constables will be held for the regular grand jury. I'd have to get witnesses to convict the proprietors of the spots, of course, and that is the hardest thing to do."

Asked how long he knew of the six places, he said:

"I just learned Tuesday morning."

"About all of them?"

"Yes, all of them. You know, this court is not an initiatory body. I cannot call a grand jury and I cannot send investigators out to these places. Just what I hear isn't enough to hale anybody into court.

"I have no intention of calling a special grand jury, because I can't do so and I have no evidence justifying a request that the District Attorney do so."

"You criticized the minor judiciary——"

The judge interrupted:

"No, I didn't. I very carefully criticized nobody.

"I merely said that they were nearer the heart of conditions than any other members of the judiciary and should know more about these things.

EASY TO "ALIBI"

"But even if they don't report places I hear of to me, they can always say that they didn't know about them. And it's almost impossible to prove that they did."

In answer to the question:

"Then we can't expect any county-wide vice cleanup?

The judge said:

"Certainly not."

Langfitt was asked:

"Mr. Langfitt, what does your department intend to do about this?"

He replied:

"Well, I turned this list of His Honor's over to Andy at noon Tuesday and I haven't seen him since."

Reports that Judge Patterson learned of the violations from the crusading Citizens' Committee were denied today by a representative of the committee. But it was learned that individual members of the committee, acting privately, had supplemented information given the judge.

Water stopped running through the wooden mains in 1825, when the city's first wooden main system was replaced.

BANDIT SUSPECT BLAMES RUM FOR PLIGHT

Magistrate Orders Him to Point Out Moonshine Den

A youthful confessed robber who blamed his holdup activities on moonshine was ordered to point out the place where he obtained liquor by Magistrate Thomas D. Jones in Morals Court today so police could raid it.

Frank Gurneck, 20, of 284 Fisk street, captured at the wheel of a Green cab after a chase in Lawrenceville last night, admitted before Magistrate Jones he had held up Louis Mariani, of 720 Edmund street, a cab driver, at Hillcrest and Atlantic avenues, took $1.10 and drove away in the cab.

Gurneck gave this explanation:

"I helped bottle moonshine in the Garfield district yesterday. I drank some of the stuff and last night I was so drunk I didn't know what I was doing. I took two revolvers from the place."

The youth said he couldn't remember the address, but could point out the place. Magistrate Jones instructed Patrolman Sherman J. Hickenbottom:

"Take this fellow out with you and have him point out this place. I want the place raided and the proprietor brought before me."

THREE ARRESTS

Judge Patterson's admonition to constables yesterday netted three arrests by city police in the Hill district. Capt. Thomas Gross and Lieut. Jack Lavery arrested Sam Eastin, 23 at 56 Fullerton street, and charged him with keeping a disorderly house. Moonshine and home brew were confiscated, police testified.

Two Negroes, Joe McKay, of Whitcomb street, and Oliver Hughes, of Arthur street, were accused of peddling mooney "from the hip" at 10 cents a glass along Wylie avenue. All were held for a further hearing by Magistrate James O'Connor.

Eight barrels of wine, four cases of home brew and a quantity of moonshine were confiscated, police said, in a raid on the home of Angelo Arduni, 49, who was charged with violating the Snyder act. His daughter, Theresa, 15, was named as a witness. The raid followed arraignment of Mary Kalinski, 25, roomer in the house, accused of stealing $107 from Mrs. Arduni.

The girl told police the house was a speakeasy and Inspector Harry Mellon ordered a raid. Five men and three women were arrested charged with visiting a disorderly house.

BEATING FATAL, DEPUTY HELD

PEKIN, Ill., Sept. 7.—(AP.)—C. O. Skinner, a Tazewell County deputy sheriff, was in jail today awaiting arraignment on a warrant charging him with murder as the result of the death of Martin Virant, a witness to a slaying who was found hanging in his cell last Thursday.

Virant, who was being held as a witness in the death of Louis Nelan, which was reported to have resulted from a speakeasy brawl, testified at a coroner's inquest that he had been beaten by Skinner and other deputies who had sought to make him confess complicity in Nelan's death. Virant was found hanging in his cell a few hours after the inquest.

Coroner A. E. Allen was told by two Pekin doctors who viewed the body that death had not resulted from strangulation, as the hanging might indicate. Virant's body was said by them to have been covered with bruises.

have 22,000 policemen in London. And "if Chicago had that many cops I could clear the city of every criminal." The Mayor would do it of course if he could, but possibly he couldn't.

It isn't always the NUMBER of "COPS" that solve crime problems. Policemen can't cure a city of criminals if any judges sympathize too much with the criminals, and especially if other "benevolent" judges insist on freeing them on probation as fast as the police lock them up.

Sitting in Barrel Brings Rector Before Court

BLACKPOOL, England, Sept. 7.—(AP.)—The Rev. Harold Davidson, rector of Stiffkey, fell afoul of the law again today, but his detention was brief.

The police charged him with "aiding and abetting the obstruction of a footpath" by sitting in a barrel at a country fair on exhibition at 3 cents a look. He promised "an original defense," but the charge was dropped in police court when the manager of the exhibition promised to break his contract with the rector.

Recently Davidson was convicted of misconduct by a church tribunal. His adventure in the barrel, he said, was a means of obtaining funds for an appeal.

NEW HOMEWOOD BANK OPEN FOR BUSINESS

Institution Lauded by Gordon; Many New Accounts Started

William D. Gordon, state secretary of banking, here for the opening today of the Homewood Bank, successor to the Homewood Peoples Bank, described the closed bank situation in Pennsylvania as "infinitely better than several months ago due to rise in security prices." Gordon said:

"The Liquidation Corporation is not selling securities put up by borrowers as soon as they reach the figure of the loan unless they believe the price will not go higher. In all cases where the price gives indication of going up the collateral is held."

LAUDS NEW BANK

Of the Homewood Bank, he said:

"A bank in first class condition, in the hands of able men, is today being turned over to the people of Homewood. They are fortunate."

Gov. Pinchot today wired his congratulations to H. G. Nevin, president of the bank.

During the first 20 minutes of business, 14 new savings accounts and 22 new commercial accounts were opened, according to R. C. Kane, cashier. In all, Kane said, the bank has 14,000 depositors.

PARADE TONIGHT

With the opening of the bank, the first closed banking institution in the state to reopen during the depression, between $600,000 and $800,000 was made available to the Homewood-Brushton district, officials said.

All day crowds continued to throng to the bank through a district decorated with flags and bunting. Tonight larger crowds will gather for a parade through the entire district, which will precede a meeting at which Secretary Gordon; James C. Chaplin, clearing house executive, and John S. Herron, president of Council, will speak.

SLEUTHS FIND DANCERS GAIN

Two county detectives today followed 17 marathon dancers about Motor Square Garden because the Western Pennsylvania Humane Society complained to District Attorney Andrew T. Park that girls under 21 years of age were being "dragged about the floor in an exhausted state."

But after interviewing the dancers, Detectives Albert Shedlock and Frank Ritz discovered, they said, that all have gained weight during their 2,232 dancing hours; that the girls all have the consent of their parents, and that everybody's happy.

Park indicated that future action on the part of his office would depend upon the detectives' report.

E. M. Smith, chief agent of the Humane Society, after leaving Park's office said:

"Everything in our power will be done to remove minors from the dance floor."

105 Face U. S. Court To Plead Tomorrow

One hundred and five defendants in 86 criminal cases will be called upon to enter pleas in Federal Court tomorrow. Those signing pleas of guilty will be taken before Judge R. M. Gibson for disposition of their cases. With few exceptions, the prosecutions deal with prohibition law violation charges.

Defendants at the Erie session of court opening September 19 will be arraigned September 16 at Erie.

Second Dividend By HighlandNational

A dividend of 23 per cent will be distributed to about 7,000 depositors of the closed Highland National Bank of Pittsburgh starting Friday, officials said today. This will be the second dividend to be distributed, and will amount to about $750,000.

'Crippled' Bandit Gets 9 to 18 Years

After his admission he led a robber gang that held up a half dozen gas stations, robbed six houses and stole several automobiles, George Drake, 23, of Overbrook boulevard, was sentenced to from 9 to 18 years in the Western Penitentiary today by Judge Frank P. Patterson in Criminal Court.

Drake came into court on crutches. He was wounded twice in the leg by a South Side officer's bullets when he attempted to flee in a stolen car. His brother, Fred, and John and Theodore Jacek, brothers, pleaded guilty three weeks ago to some of the robberies and were given jail sentences ranging from one to two years.

Drake admitted he was an Army deserter and that he had "been in trouble" before.

LOUELLA PARSONS BLAMES MANIA FOR BERN SUICIDE

ERRATIC MOODS OF GENIUS REVEALED

Hollywood Critic Tells Of His Happiness With Jean Harlow

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS,
Universal Service Motion Picture Editor Who arrived in New York yesterday after an airplane trip from Los Angeles.

NEW YORK, Sept. 7.—The shock of hearing that Paul Bern, one of the sweetest and most loved characters in Hollywood, had taken his life, is especially tragic at this time. Just two months ago, in his office, he told me that he had never expected to find such happiness. He said:

"To think that a wonderful girl with the splendid qualities of Jean Harlow should love me. I hope that I can make her happy. She is so much younger than I am."

What prompted him then to cut short the brilliant career just at the time that he should have been the happiest? I believe it was a suicidal mania that he could not overcome.

ERRATIC TEMPERAMENT

Paul, in his way, was a genius. He was cultured; he was well read; he was charming, but he was often erratic, as people of his temperament are apt to be.

People who loved and knew Paul were aware of his moments of broodings. Often when things went wrong at the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studio he would be unhappy and almost desperate.

His friends hoped when he married Jean Harlow — young, beautiful and with a promising career that he had helped to mold —he would overcome his moods.

Mood is not exactly the word I want to use. It suggests an unreasonable disposition, and Paul was never unreasonable, rather, he was the soul of kindness. His charities were innumerable; his thoughtfulness of people in trouble were a byword in Hollywood.

The way he nursed Barbara La Marr, the understanding he gave poor sick Mabel Normand, and the manner in which he defended those who were the victims of a cruel Hollywood gossip, was a lesson to others less kind in their judgment.

DIFFICULTIES OF JEAN

Undoubtedly, Jean Harlow found being Mrs. Bern had its difficulties. Sweet as Paul Bern was, he was erratic enough to make him, at times, hard to understand. Miss Harlow, with her work and with her eagerness to succeed as an actress, perhaps was going through a phase that was as trying for her as it was for the new husband.

In the passing of Paul Bern, Hollywood loses one of the finest men in the film industry. Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer will find it almost impossible to fill his place. He was an able assistant to Irving Thalberg. His ideas were original and his treatment of stories unique.

Much of the success of "The Red Haired Woman" belongs to him. He fought as only a gentle soul can fight when really aroused in defense of Jean Harlow. He wanted her to play the leading role, although everyone else thought that her platinum hair was too much of a disadvantage.

It may have been gratitude that prompted her to say "Yes" when he asked her to marry him. Still, there must have been some affection for her bridegroom. She had so many admirers, she could have married many younger men.

MAY-DECEMBER CASE

Whatever secret Paul Bern carried in his heart, will go with him to his grave. Perhaps he felt it was too much a case of May and December. Paul and Jean were so different in their ideas. He was a student, a man who loved to read, who adored the home he gave his bride, and who enjoyed nothing as much as surrounding himself with a few congenial friends.

He loved to discuss psychology, science, literature, and he adored an argument, a friendly one, but often he became intense fighting for what he believed right. He was bitter on the subject of Tom Mooney, and convinced that Mooney should be released from prison.

Hollywood will miss Paul Bern, but his memory is a precious one to all who knew him and loved him.

Dick Powell Praised By Miss Parsons Here

Miss Parsons, who was at the county airport last night on her flight to New York, had this praise for Dick Powell, former master of ceremonies who has just made his debut in the movies:

"I think he has a great screen future ahead of him. He plays a fine part in 'Blessed Event.'"

Bern Not Wealthy, Friends Intimate

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 7.—(AP.)—R. D. Knickerbocker, attorney for the late Paul Bern, said as far as he knew no will was left by the film producer. In that event, his widow, Jean Harlow, will receive half of the estate and the other half will go to blood relatives.

Friends intimated today the estate of Bern will not be large, as he was reported to have lost heavily in the stock market crash of 1929, and to have spent large sums of money in philanthropies.

Jean Harlow Puzzles Over Suicide Note

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 7.—(INS.)—Jean Harlow, young screen actress, was completely mystified by the suicide of her husband, Paul Bern, and deeply puzzled by the note he left, she told the police in a statement today. Detectives quoted her as saying:

"I cannot by the wildest stretch of my imagination imagine what Paul meant in the note he left.

"He had often talked to me of suicide, but never with himself in mind—more from a psychological interest. I can think of no reason why he should have felt it necessary to do this thing.

"In one of these discussions about suicide he told me his mother had taken her life because she did not receive a cablegram from him on a day when she expected it.

"Friday night we dined at home with Willis Goldbeck.

"Saturday we both were at the studio. When he left he suggested that I go to my mother's house for the night, as I had to be back at the studio Sunday morning.

"Sunday evening, after work, I drove to our Benedict Canyon home.

"He suggested then that I stay with mother. He expected to join me there later in the evening.

"Later he called and said he was tired and would remain at home.

"I heard nothing more about it until the next morning, when the butler called my mother and told her the terrible news.

"I cannot understand the note at all, because there was no reason for it. I do not know what he meant by 'abject humiliation' and the wrong he thought he had done me. I love Paul very dearly."

FIND BERN NOTE IN BOOK WITH STARS' PRAISES

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 7.—(AP.)—On the thirteenth page of a green morocco-covered guest book containing friendly little messages to Paul Bern from noted men and women of the motion picture world, the film producer chose to write the one tragic note that appears on its pages.

The first 12 pages bore the signatures of many persons who visited Bern's rustic hillside home, but on the thirteenth page Bern, whose body, with a bullet wound in the head, was found yesterday, wrote the last inscription.

It was addressed to "Dearest Dear," and authorities investigating Bern's death said it was intended for his beautiful actress bride of two months, Jean Harlow.

On one page of the book, Leslie Fenton, the author, had written of Bern:

"A rare exception. If there were more like you it wouldn't be so hard to stay here."

There was a caricature of Gary Cooper, in caballero costume. It bore Cooper's signature and the date, March 22, 1931. On the opposite page Lupe Velez, film actress, had written in Spanish: "Con mi carino y afecto" which means "with my love and affection."

No Help to the Police

June, as Bern's Guest, Saw Hidden Revolvers

LONDON, Sept. 7.—(INS.)—The late Paul Bern, motion picture executive, who ended his life in Hollywood, kept two revolvers hidden in his wardrobe, Lady Inverclyde, the famous dancer, told International News Service.

Lady Inverclyde, bettern known as "June," said she was Bern's house guest on frequent occasions while she was in Hollywood seeking a film career. She said:

"During one of my visits he showed me two revolvers he kept in his wardrobe.

"'Why do you keep them?' I asked him.

"'This is a lonely house,' Bern said. 'You never know.'

"He had moments of depression, but was very much in love with Jean Harlow. When he was with her, he became animated and cheerful."

FREE AGED MAN GIVEN LIFE IN SHOE THEFT

Son of Victim Killed in 1887 Joins Plea for Rejailed Slayer

International News Services

BOSTON, Sept. 7. — Life opened its doors anew to James Steenbergh, 72, this afternoon.

Gov. Joseph B. Ely and the executive council voted to pardon the aged man, who was sent back to prison for life because he stole a pair of shoes after "going straight" for 18 years.

And so this afternoon the gates of State Prison swung wide for Steenbergh to walk into the arms of his wife and 12-year-old daughter.

It was announced that the councillors took the position that the reasons under which Steenbergh was returned to State Prison for violation of his parole, granted in 1914, were not sufficient to warrant his being held in the institution.

Several witnesses had appeared before the council in favor of a pardon. Perhaps the most dramatic was the appearance of Charles H. Morris, son of the man whose death resulted from the armed robbery in which Steenbergh participated, in 1887, and for which he was sentenced to life imprisonment. He appeared in favor of the pardon and placed all five living members of the victim's family in favor of it.

Another witness was Frank Goodwin, of Wakefield, a former guard at State Prison, who appeared to support Steenbergh's own contention that he was an innocent member of the gang that slugged Dr. Patrick Morris in his Boston drug store and robbed him, 35 years ago.

BERN SUICIDE CLUE FOUND

guish, and pushing aside friends who tried to console her, dashed for the balcony railing, but friends succeeded in halting her.

Miss Harlow told Detective Chief Joseph Taylor:

"I loved him dearly, and I don't understand what he meant in his note by 'abject humiliation.'"

CONVINCED OF SUICIDE

Taylor said he was convinced that Bern had taken his life in a characteristic spell of depressive melancholia, an opinion also held by Bern's most intimate friends.

After an autopsy at a West Los Angeles mortuary, Dr. Frank R. Webb, assistant autopsy surgeon, described the wound in Bern's head as "a typical suicide wound," with powder deposits inside the scalp and inside the brain tissues which indicated that the pistol was held close to the head.

Police regarded Dr. Jones' testimony as highly important. They understood Bern had consulted Dr. Jones shortly before his marriage. Studio executives were unwilling to discuss the motive or background of the tragedy.

Following a visit to Miss Harlow, Louis B. Mayer, vice president and general manager of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studio, said:

"There is nothing for me to say about this unfortunate situation. Others, in position to do so, doubtless will tell the public what is proper, and do it at the proper time and in the proper manner. My sympathies are with Miss Harlow. To her, tragedy came without warning or cause."

BROTHER TO CONFER

Henry Bern, of New York, a brother of Paul Bern, was to arrive tonight by airplane, and police and studio officials, as well as Miss Harlow and her mother and stepfather, were expected to confer with him at once. Mayer said:

"No statements will be made by anyone until after a conference with Mr. Bern."

Mayer revealed, however, that studio executives had noticed that Paul Bern had recently been extremely nervous. Mayer said:

"We believed he had overworked himself. We had talked about his condition and were worried."

GILBERT'S STORY

Gilbert said the incident occurred about the time of the death of Barbara LaMarr, pretty actress whom Bern had befriended. He said:

"The circumstances surrounding that incident are too delicate and too close to my heart for me to discuss them now."

"But it was at a time when Bern was deeply hurt. He was extremely sensitive and so constituted that little things hurt him greatly. He would brood for days over some imagined slight.

"The ordinary pleasures of life meant little to him. He had become philosophical in his thoughts on death and eternity. He said to me: 'My only reason for living is the opportunity to give others happiness. Should the time ever come when I believe that I am no longer able to do that, I will not hesitate to snuff out the candle.

"Paul Bern was my best friend and if he thought that this was the time for him to go, it is not for me to criticize him."

NEVER QUARRELED

Miss Harlow's stepfather, Marino Bello, when questioned, could shed no light on Bern's act. He said:

"If a man is out of his mind enough to commit suicide he is in a state in which he may say anything. That's the only explanation that I can give for that farewell note."

Bello denied that Miss Harlow and Bern had ever quarreled, and said there had been no trouble over the Benedict Canyon property which Bern had deeded to Miss Harlow following their marriage last July 2. He said:

"His note sounded to me like an explanation or apology for the act he was about to commit. I have no idea what he meant when he wrote that 'last night was only a comedy.' He had three nervous breakdowns recently, one just after the completion of 'Grand Hotel'."

JEAN INCOHERENT

Trained nurses and physicians were in constant attendance upon Miss Harlow at her mother's residence, and after the conference with police no one was allowed to see her. Bello said that Miss Harlow was "in a state of collapse as if she had been hit over the head. She can't talk coherently."

Harold (Slickem) Garrison, Negro, who drove Bern's automobile, was believed to have been the last person to see Bern alive. That was Saturday night. Garrison said:

"When Mr. Bern got into the car at the studio at 7:30 Saturday night he said: 'Well, Slickem, Mrs. Bern has to work tonight and I'm going to be lonesome. We were supposed to go to the Frederic March party, but had to call it off.'

"When I suggested that he go alone, he said he would not think of going alone."

Bern appeared to be in good spirits Saturday night, according to Garrison, who also revealed that Bern did not carry a gun in his car that night as had been his custom.

Below is reproduced the note that Paul Bern left for his bride of two months, beautiful Jean Harlow, before he shot himself in their honeymoon home.

Dearest Dear,

Unfortunately this is the only way to make you the frightful wrong I have done you and to wipe out my abject humiliation. I love you.

Paul

You understand that last night was only a comedy

RITES FOR SLAIN RECLUSE HELD

BEAVER, Pa., Sept. 7.—Martin Patton, 85, found slain Monday in his home in Independence Township, gagged and with his hands tied, was buried today following funeral services in his home, where he lived alone.

Beaver County authorities and state police are seeking two Negroes reported seen in the vicinity of Patton's home the night before the murder. They are believed to have tortured the aged man and robbed him of several hundred dollars.

PLAYS DESPITE BROKEN NECK

For three days William Goody, 11, of 212 Elm road, Ambridge, played around his home with a broken neck.

Injured when he fell upon his head from a peach tree Thursday, the youth was taken Saturday to a doctor, who said two vertebrae in his neck had been broken.

Goody was pronounced out of danger today. He will miss three weeks of school, however.

British War Dead Honored by Cermak

LONDON, Sept. 7.—(INS.)—Mayor Anton J. Cermak today placed a wreath on the cenotaph, the memorial to Britain's soldier dead.

Later, accompanied by Gordon Selfridge, American proprietor of London's largest department store, he called upon the Lord Mayor of London at the Mansion House.

Man Kills Himself In Second Attempt

NEW YORK, Sept. 7.—The tremendous success of Marion Davies' new starring picture, "Blondie of the Follies," at the Capitol Theater, New York, has necessitated holding over the picture for a second week.

Decision to continue the picture was arrived at by Maj. Edward Bowes, managing director of the Capitol, because of the unprecedented crowds that have filled the big theater to capacity at every showing of "Blondie of the Follies."

Opening of "Blondie of the Follies" on Thursday, September 1, an unbroken line has stormed the Capitol doors for admittance, and has continued each day.

"Blondie of the Follies" has been proclaimed by the leading critics and by the greatest critic of all, the public, as Marion Davies' best picture—and the performance of the star the greatest in her successful career.

YOUTH, GIRL DIE IN PACT

SYDNEY, N. S., Sept. 7.—(AP.)—Found mortally wounded on the bank of a brook, near Glace Bay, William Rosnek, 29, and Joyce Roberts, 18, died a few hours later today. A note in the girl's purse said they were secretly married last May 24 and "decided to go this way."

Both were shot in the head, but police were unable to find the weapon, although an officer heard the shots fired and arrived at the scene within a few minutes. The young couple died without being able to make a statement.

Rosnek conducted a small grocery business.

FIRM FIGHTS RETAIL TAX

Contending manufacturers and wholesalers would be forced to contribute an additional $5,000,000 in taxes to the state if the Board of Mercantile Appraisers is permitted to collect a retailers' tax from it, the Bay State Milling Company, of Minnesota, argued against assessment of the retail tax before three judges, sitting en banc, in Common Pleas Court today.

Attorney Malcolm E. Lewis, representing the company, maintained the concern and others doing business similarly might be liable to taxation under the new emergency sales act if the mercantile appraisers are sustained.

The case grew out of the mercantile appraisers' refusal to accept a return of the Bay State company as a wholesale dealer and insistence that it file a return as a retail dealer.

Judges Ambrose B. Reid, S. J. Snee and William H. McNaugher heard the arguments.

Basketball Player Held in Auto Death

PUNXSUTAWNEY, Pa., Sept. 7.—John Bowersox, local high school basketball star, is held in the local police station on several serious charges as the result of the death of Paul Rankin, of Albion, in an automobile accident last evening.

Bowersox, police say, failed to stop to render assistance. Bowersox maintains he did not know he hit the boy.

Police charged him with manslaughter, driving a car without the consent of the owner, and driving a car without a license.

U. S. ABSOLVES SCHENCK

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7.—(AP.)—J. Edgar Hoover, chief of the Justice Department's Bureau of Investigation, said today a federal inquiry had disclosed no connection between the kidnaping of Charles Augustus Lindbergh, Jr., and Garrett Schenck, Hopewell, N. J., fish peddler.

Schenck claimed he was held a prisoner in a mountain cabin near Johnstown, Pa., for 76 days by a private investigator in the Lindberg case, before Johnstown police effected his release. Hoover said agents found no federal law violated, either by Schenck or by those accused of kidnaping him.

CLEARFIELD, Pa., Sept. 7.—(AP.)—State Trooper John Mahalleck was busy today serving warrants on nine men charged by Garrett Schenck, Hopewell (N. J.) fish peddler, with holding him captive for 76 days following the Lindbergh kidnaping.

J. J. Devine, a Johnstown private detective, and Roy Cummings, of Johnstown, are accused of kidnaping. Charles Horner and Edward Benshaw, of Johnstown; Avery Conners and Frank Shugarts, of Dubois; Paul Cupp, of Johnstown; Russell Love, Dubois chief of police, and Reuben Rakestraw, of Dubois are charged with being accessories. All are accused of conspiracy.

COX SPEAKING AT JOLIET

JOLIET, Ill., Sept. 7.—Father James R. Cox, Pittsburgh's campaigning priest, arrived here last night after an uneventful day, which took him through Gary and Chicago. He spoke in neither city. Cago Park Commission previously had banned his talking also.

Today Father Cox was to tell Joliet citizens why he is running for president and what the Jobless party, which he heads, represents. From Joliet he will go to Aurora for a late afternoon address in McCarty Park. Then he will travel 150 miles to Davenport and in that city Thursday will open his campaign in Iowa, the state of striking farmers.

Thursday night he expects to be in Des Moines. He plans to fly back to Pittsburgh from Des Moines later that night or Friday morning. He will resume his tour again next week, opening in Omaha, Neb.

ASK FATHER'S EXTRADITION

DALLAS, Tex., Sept. 7.—(AP.)—Extradition proceedings were started today against Hubert J. Jenkins, of Louisville, Ky., in connection with the alleged kidnaping of his 10-year-old son, High Bradford Jenkins, grandson and heir to the wealthy Dallas Mayor, T. L. Bradford, who died August 22.

District Attorney William McCrawa, of Dallas, left by plane for Austin to obtain the signature of Gov. R. S. Sterling to extradition papers asking the return of Jenkins from Louisville to Dallas to face the kidnaping charge on which he was indicted yesterday.

McCraw said the Bradford family desired that every effort be made to hasten the boy's return to Dallas.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Sept. 7.—(AP.)—Hubert Johnson Jenkins, electrical engineer, brought his son home to Louisville after taking him from the boy's grandmother's home in Dallas, Tex. The fact that the father and son arrived yesterday became known today.

Pittsburgh Man Jailed in Erie Crash

ERIE, Sept. 7.—(AP.)—Joe Novak, 30, of Pittsburgh, arrested on charges of driving while intoxicated after he allegedly crashed into an Erie man's automobile, was jailed yesterday in default of bail for hearing Saturday.

Digs Grave in Coal Mine, Kills Himself

GREENSBURG, Pa., Sept. 7.—Scooping out a hollow grave in an abandoned coal mine near his home, George Kline, 35, single, of Trees Mills, ended his life by shooting himself with a rifle.

Arrest Frees Family Of Kidnaping Fear

CLEVELAND, Sept. 7.—(AP.)—A kidnap threat that for months has hovered about the home of Ellsworth H. Augustus, sportsman and clubman, lifted today as legal entanglements closed about the alleged perpetrator.

Edward Kothera, 47, of Westfield, confessed, said Police Chief Theodore Myers, of Willoughby, that he penned and mailed five letters threatening the Augustus family unless $25,000 were paid.

MASCHKE TRIAL POSTPONED

CLEVELAND, Sept. 7.—(INS.)—Trial of Maurice Maschke, prominent Republican leader and five other political figures on charges of embezzlement in connection with the deficit of $570,383 in the Cuyahoga County treasury, was postponed yesterday until September 19 by Common Pleas Judge John P. Dempsey.

The postponement was ordered when Alex Bernstein, former deputy treasurer and one of the indicted men, pleaded that he had no counsel. The trial originally was scheduled to start yesterday.

Other defendents besides Maschke and Bernstein are City Councilman Herman Finkle, Attorneys H. H. Felsman and Henry Beckerman, and Charles Bernstein, half-brother of Alex. They were indicted jointly in the alleged embezzlement of $177,000 from the treasury.

The trials of County Commissioner Walter E. Cook, a former County Treasurer, and Joseph F. Lange, former deputy treasurer, who were indicted separately as a result of the jury's probe into the treasury defict, are expected to follow the hearing for Maschke and his political lieutenants.

Woman Loses Plea For Bond in Slaying

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Sept. 7.—(AP.)—For the second time the State Supreme Court yesterday denied Mrs. Irene Klinebell, of Huntington, her freedom on bond pending her trial on charges of slaying Lee Roberts, of Huntington. Her first request was denied August 16.

MELLON TELLS ENGLAND OF U. S. UPTURN

By LINTON WELLS
International News Service.

SOUTHAMPTON, Sept. 7.—With the observation that he found "encouraging indications of returning confidence" in the United States, Ambassador Andrew W. Mellon returned to England aboard the liner Olympic today to resume his diplomatic post after a brief vacation.

Reporters who greeted the returning ambassador found him ready as ever to parry questions on matters he did not wish to discuss. He let himself go with unusual emphasis, however, in denying two reports—one that he met Montagu Norman, governor of the Bank of England, and the other that he planned to resign.

Asked if he believed the depression had ended, the Ambassador said:

"I don't want to make any statement about increasing prosperity. It is too commonplace. However, I did find encouraging indications of returning confidence."

British reporters were particularly anxious to know whether Mellon had conferred with Norman, whose visit to the United States as "Prof. Clarence Skinner" has aroused intense speculation on both sides of the Atlantic. Mellon said:

"I didn't meet Mr. Norman. All I know about him is what I have read in the press. I had no foreknowledge of his visit and I certainly didn't meet him or talk to him at any time."

Ambassador Mellon said that he did not discuss war debts while in Washington. He declined to amplify this statement.

Regarding his own health, Ambassador Mellon said he was "feeling very well after my pleasant and restful visit home."

When the questioning veered around to American national politics, the ambassador abruptly terminated the interview and stepped into a waiting motor car. He drove to the American embassy in London.

Mills and Stimson Confer With Hoover

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7.—(INS.)—Secretary of State Stimson conferred with President Hoover today and later Secretary of the Treasury Mills appeared for a talk with the Chief Executive. Neither would divulge the nature of his visit.

Style Followers Balk at Wales' Crimson Shirt

LONDON, Sept. 7.—(INS.)—When the Prince of Wales dons some new article of clothing it usually becomes the fashion overnight.

But for the first time he has failed.

When the prince was at Cannes he appeared on the beach wearing a crimson shirt. In anticipation of a new fashion, London haberdashers sent out orders for hundreds of such shirts.

Alas, so far not one has been sold.

GLORIA'S BATH SAVED BY LAW

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 7.—(AP.)—When Gloria Swanson, film star, returns from her prolonged trip to England, she will find the common law principle that an individual is entitled to a bed, washstand and chair has been invoked in her favor.

Superior Judge Emmet Wilson has refused to restrain the Sheriff and William J. Saylor, Ltd., New York importer, from attaching the furnishings of her palatial home here for alleged failure to complete payment.

The Judge, however, restrained the Sheriff from removing the three articles to which common law says a man is entitled. He decided Miss Swanson might keep her bedstead, even though it cost $1,000; her comfortable slipper chair might be viewed in the light of a four-legger, straight back-breaker, and he might even construe the expensively-appointed bath as a washstand.

New N. Y. Brewery Soon to Be Built

NEW YORK, Sept. 7.—(INS.)—In the belief prohibition would soon be modified, a group of men headed by Herbert L. Noll today said they would start building an up-to-date brewery in this city within 60 days.

Noll felt certain beer with a greater alcoholic percentage than ½ of 1 per cent would be legalized by next summer.

Willing to Stay Up Year, Fliers Say

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 7.—(AP.)—Up in the air since Sunday afternoon, Fred Murillo and John Sheasey, pilots of the endurance plane, "Spirit of '76," dropped a message today reporting they felt "fit enough to stay up a year." The two fliers hope to break the present 647 hour record.

this much OLIVE OIL goes into each cake of Palmolive →

An Actual Photograph
Palmolive contains only vegetable oils—no artificial coloring. Photo shows actual amount of olive oil that goes into each 10c cake.

RUN your finger tips over your face. Answer yourself, honestly: does your skin feel smooth, soft, delicate? Does it speak instantly of youth?

Youth can be yours

Experts insist that you . . . whatever your age . . . can keep your skin firm, yet yielding; smooth, soft . . . simply by following a daily treatment they outline.

Beautify with olive oil

Use olive oil in soap. Use it in Palmolive Soap, say more than 20,000 experts. Because Palmolive alone makes generous use of that invaluable beauty ingredient—olive oil. Work that fine, youth-fostering lather right into the skin. Rinse with plenty of cold water. Use Palmolive for the whole body.

Watch skin-charm return

Watch the renewed youth of your skin, after ten days of this treatment. Surely, definitely . . . there will be new softness, new bloom. Because that is what Palmolive brings. You will then have found the key to that alluring something which makes you, keeps you desirable.

WEIR CANCELS G. O. P. GIFT

Cancellation of a $2,500 contribution to Republican campaign funds by E. T. Weir, Pittsburgh steel manufacturer and a member of the Hoover committee to promote industrial activity, was announced yesterday by the Republican National Committee in a report filed with the clerk of the National House of Representatives, according to an International News Dispatch from Washington.

The report dealt with the status of the compaign funds and emphasized sharply the prevailing shortage. The national committee was saved from a deficit on its books August 31 by inclusion of a $50,000 loan as a part of the receipts.

Total contributions from June 1 to August 31 were $76,026. Other receipts boosted the total to $103,628. Expenditures were $97,631, leaving the committee with a balance of $5,997.

It May Be Wise to Shop Early This Fall

FIRST choice is generally recognized as best choice, and we all know the satisfaction of choosing when everything is fresh, new, and complete.

But this year, two additional factors are present which merit consideration. The first is the substantial rise in commodity prices during the last six weeks; and the second is the growing shortage of materials, due to the tendency of manufacturers in many lines to make up goods only to order.

Cotton showed an advance on September 1 of 80% over the low of the year which was registered on June 9. Silk was up 72% over the June low; Hides (which go into the making of shoes), 75%; and Wool, 22%. If these advances are sustained, and the general improvements forecast by the stock market rise are fulfilled, higher prices for fall staples are inevitable.

Present fall stocks, which are now complete throughout the store, were purchased on the basis of the lowest and most favorable markets in years, and our present prices reflect this fact to the fullest. For this reason, we are prompted to urge the wisdom of choosing early the essential fall and winter requirements, particularly those which are represented in the commodities above.

Those who have watched the recent rise in stock and bond prices will appreciate the point of these remarks.

A Great Advance Sale of Christmas Cards

50c 75c $1.00 Package

WESTINGHOUSE BRIDGE ROWS UNSETTLED

Although the George Westinghouse Memorial Bridge is to be dedicated and turned over to the state Saturday, there are a couple of strings attached to it.

There is a controversy still to be settled concerning the agreement between Booth & Flinn and the county whereby the contractor was to grind down rough spots on the bridge roadway. In a letter to the Commissioners yesterday A. Rex Flinn blamed the county engineers for inequalities in the bridge and demanded payment of $5,178.39 for the work. The matter was tabled and Flinn, state highway and county engineers are to confer on it at next Tuesday's meeting of the Commissioners.

Art work on the bridge may be done after the state takes it over. County Commissioner Charles C. McGovern said that he has an offer from private individuals to pay half the cost of the art work. He said:

"The state welched on this job. They used $850,000 worth of federal funds and never said a word about it. The county paid half the cost of the bridge and then the state would not even consider paying half of the art work. This is a memorial bridge, but there is no inscription on it to tell anybody what it commemorates. It may be against public policy to allow private individuals to share the cost. But I am in favor of withholding the right to inscribe the pylons of the bridge after it is officially turned over to the state."

County Solicitor J. P. Fife advised the Commissioners that they have the right to hold out on the state. The bridge will be handed to the state "conditionally."

TORTURE DEATH TRIAL PUSHED

MINEOLA, N. Y., Sept. 7.—(INS.)—The state's case in the second trial of three Nassau County police officials accused of the "third degree murder" of Hyman Stark, accused as a gangster, may be concluded today, District Attorney Elvin N. Edwards intimated.

So far, little evidence except such as was introduced in the first trial when a jury disagreed, was offered. Martin W. Littleton, Jr., assistant to Edwards, repeated his testimony against Deputy Chief Frank J. Tappen of "rocking" Stark.

The case grew out of Stark's death after an eight-hour "grilling" which followed his arrest on charges of beating and robbing a detective's mother. Accused with Tappen are detectives Harry V. Zander and Leslie Pearsall.

DEFENDER GETS LIFE PENALTY

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 7.—(AP.)—Frank J. Egan, former San Francisco public defender, and Albert Tinnin, ex-convict, today faced life imprisonment for the murder of Mrs. Jessie Scott Hughes, elderly widow and benefactor of Egan.

The men were convicted yesterday by a jury that deliberated more than three days. They will be sentenced tomorrow.

Work on Perry Highway Begins

MEADVILLE, Sept. 7.—Having been awarded the contract for six additional miles on the Perry highway north of here, the J. C. Devine Company started work yesterday. The bid was $164,085, and will connect with the present concrete road out of the city and extend 6.2 miles to the Hayfield-Cussewago Township line. From 150 to 200 men will have employment.

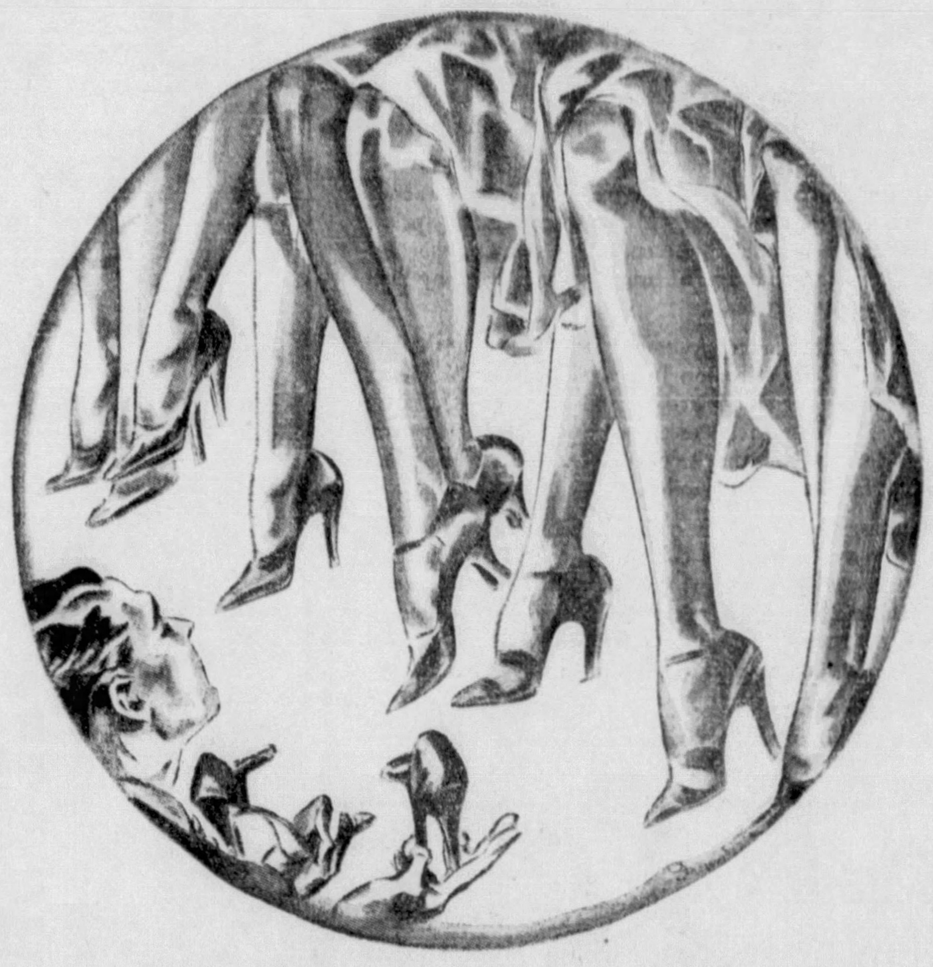
WISE FEATURES TWO PRICE GROUPS!



The former $5 Wise shoes are now reduced to $3.65

It's now reduced to $3.65.

It is made in the same factory, by the men who made the former $5 Wise Shoe.

Only the reduction in our overhead, plus lower cost of labor and materials, make this value possible.

This is a permanent price — with a permanent saving to you.

IN presenting two prices, we feel that a vastly increased number of women will be drawn to the Wise shops. At $3.65 we give to the woman whose shoe budget is limited—as fine a shoe as we ever gave her.

She needn't sacrifice one bit of style or quality—because her $3.65 buys the five dollar Wise shoe of last year.

And at $5.00 we give to the woman who formerly paid $10 to $12 for her footwear—a customized shoe, style-sponsored by Julienne, the famous Parisian shoe stylist.

Julienne's customers pay her $40 to $60 per pair for shoes.

We believe that, with these two groups, Wise definitely takes the leading position among shoe retailers who are as quality-conscious as they are style-conscious.

$5

Every shoe in this customized group has a smartness, a perfection of fit that only custom-made shoes possess.

Every shoe is made by hand in Brooklyn factories that never before made shoes to sell for less than $10 to $12.

Every style is an original—not a copy!

Julienne, one of the leading shoe stylists in the world, style-sponsors this new group. Her own shop is at 235 Rue Saint-Honore, Paris. Julienne has created and inspired the styles featured in the Wise $5 group. You'll not see them anywhere else in town.

Before you buy your Fall shoes—if you intend to pay $12 or less per pair—won't you come in and see what Wise offers now at $5?

Can a Woman Find Happiness With Man Who Gambles?

That's Sue's problem.

The Boy Friend is a good guy. He works hard, and he doesn't cheat on her, or go in for hooch parties. He has a good job, with a future.

But the trouble is he's usually broke, because he can't let the poker chips alone.

Well—what's your answer?

Dear Sally Martin:

I hope you will help me because I've got to have some advice, and I don't know who else to ask.

You see I am in love, and the fellow I am in love with wants me to marry him. But there is a hitch in it all. (There generally is, I guess, but I'm afraid this one is really serious.)

You see, the trouble is he gambles.

He doesn't only play cards for, say, a penny a point, but he goes in for pretty big stakes. Sometimes he wins, but more often he loses, and when he does it doesn't stop him. He thinks that if he tries it again he'll win it back.

He has a real good job and works hard at it. There is a future in it, too. And he is wonderful to me. He never goes on booze parties or looks at another girl.

But in spite of the fact that he gets a good salary for these times, he is usually broke, on account of this habit of his.

BROKE PROMISE

I have tried to talk to him about it, and he has said that he knows it is foolish, and has promised to stay off it. He does, for a while, too; but all at once I will notice he is broke again, and then he'll look sheepish and admit that "some of the boys got in a game" and "cleaned up on him."

I don't know what to think. I used to believe that he would change, but now I am wondering. I do love him dearly. It will hurt me terribly if I have to give him up; but I just don't think I could stand going on, never knowing if there would be money to do with, or if we'll be broke.

What do you think? Shall I marry him? Will he change, if I do? Please help me. What ails a man like that, anyway?

SUSAN.

MAKE SELF CLEAR

Will he change?

Maybe. Maybe not. But he most certainly won't if you marry him first. If he doesn't care enough for you, or hasn't spunk enough, to change before you do it, he certainly won't afterward—and he'll likely resent it plenty if you try to make him.

Then what'll you do?

Put it up to him straight, now, that there is nothing doing on marrying until he shows you that he can let it alone. And then stick to it; for marriage with a man who went out and lost his pay check at cards, when the rent was due or the baby needed shoes, would be no picnic. Love would soon fly out of the window when that kind of poverty came in.

So make him fish or cut bait. Just now, like every gambler, he wants something for nothing. Don't let him get away with it! Appeal to his pride in having and saving money, and in building up real success.

If that doesn't work—give him the air! If you don't, youngster, you will be picking yourself plenty of grief.

No Girl Ever in Doubt About the One She Really Loves, Says Fay King

THERE IS ONLY ONE WHO MEANS MORE TO HER THAN ALL OTHERS
THE ONE SHE LOVES IS ALWAYS FOREMOST IN HER THOUGHTS
FAY KING

By FAY KING

No girl is ever in doubt about the one she really loves.

There is only one who can make her heart leap at the sight of him or the sound of his voice.

Only one with whom she can be happier walking alone in silence than she would be at the most gala gathering with the most important guest.

There is only one from whom the smallest favor can mean more than the costliest gift from any other.

He is that one for whom she finds it so easy to make the most plausible excuses to herself for his broken promises.

She knows she loves him.

Contract Bridge -:- HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

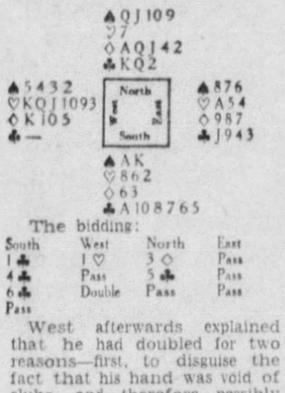
By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

Bridge in Kansas City

Mr. Fred A. Deichmann, of Kansas City, Mo., in a recent letter expresses surprise that western Bridge players who, he says, are equally as good as the eastern players, have never had any recognition in the Bridge world. He adds that games played in the West are just as fine as games played in the East, and that the stakes are just as high and the games fully as important. He continues with the observation that it has always been said that New Yorkers cannot see outside Manhattan Island. Perhaps, in the main, there is a great deal of provincialism about New York players who fail to recognize the analytical ability and the actual playing skill of players in other cities. I know the skill with which players in Kansas City, St. Louis, San Francisco and other cities play their cards, and I am very glad to give this example of a hand, bid and played by Mr. Deichmann in a Rubber game in Kansas City.

South—Dealer.

Neither side vulnerable.



The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ♣	1 ♡	3 ◇	Pass
4 ♣	Pass	5 ♣	Pass
6 ♣	Double	Pass	Pass
Pass

West afterwards explained that he had doubled for two reasons—first, to disguise the fact that his hand was void of clubs and therefore possibly making a trump trick for his partner, and second, to make the Declarer uncertain as to the location of the diamond King, as he thought South might have a singleton diamond and thus might decide not to take the diamond finesse, but to play for the establishment of the diamond suit by playing through East, his partner.

Mr. Deichmann sat South, and West opened the heart King, and followed with the heart Queen, which was ruffed, of course, with the club two in Dummy.

The hand did not, of course, present any particular difficulties in the play to make six-odd, although with the Opening and the continuation it did require precision, and, as Mr. Deichmann rightly pointed out, West's Double had somewhat confused the distribution to the Declarer. The natural play would be to continue with the club King, at which time West's deceptive Penalty Double would be exposed, and South then would have to utilize to the full his skill as a player to fulfill his contract. Needless to say, Mr. Deichmann, as a representative of the western players, did exactly this.

TODAY'S QUESTION:

If Declarer leads a card out of turn from Dummy and his attention is called to same by opponents, must he then leave the card he led on the table as a played card, or may he replace it?

Answer: The opponents can oblige Declarer to lead a card of the same suit from his own hand, but he may play any card he chooses of the suit from the Dummy.

Household Hints

Salt water in the outer part of the double boiler will create a greater heat than if ordinary water is used. Try it next time and quicken your cooking job.

It will take away the fresh taste from a loaf of newly baked bread if put in the bread box with stale bread. Keep the box cleaned out and do away with this difficulty.

When putting the bread in the oven to bake be careful that the pan does not touch the sides of the oven. This will result in unshapely loaves, as the bread will bake unevenly.

There is a little grater on the market that may be slipped over the hands by means of a handle and it is just fine for grating that bit of cheese, orange rind, etc., when you want just a bit of the article.

To clean a flat iron, place a piece of beeswax between two pieces of old flannel and when the iron is hot, rub it on the flannel. Dirt will be removed from the iron, which will run smoothly afterward.

Safeguard Children From Dread Diphtheria

Prevention is better than cure, is the saying that can be better applied to diphtheria than to almost any other disease of the human family. Every year thousands of children unnecessarily die from this plague. Many who escape death are left with disabilities that last for the rest of their lives.

Dr. Copeland

Diphtheria is a disease that can be prevented. It can be prevented only by modern methods of immunization. This is a simple procedure, given without pain or discomfort to the child. Unfortunately, not all mothers take advantage of the protection that can be given their children.

In a recent study of the statistics available to the Department of Health of New York City, it was found that there is a decrease in the number of children receiving protection against diphtheria. The total number of children who took diphtheria inoculations in 1931 is far below the figures for either of the two preceding years. This is particularly alarming when it is known that the number of cases of diphtheria has increased within the past six months.

Every child should be given this protection. Do not be misled by the belief that your child is safe from diphtheria if he does not come in contact with someone who actually has the disease. There are "carriers" who are perfectly well themselves but expel the germs of diphtheria. We can never tell when a child will be exposed.

Some children are naturally immune to diphtheria. By this is meant that they will not contract diphtheria even if exposed to it. Extremely few children possess this natural immunity. Consequently it is dangerous for any child to be exposed to this dangerous ailment.

By means of the Schick test, it is possible to determine whether or not the child is immune. This test is performed by injecting underneath the skin of the arm, a tiny drop of a certain substance. If there is no inflammatory reaction, it means that the child is immune to diphtheria. The test is called "positive" when there is a reddened area around the point of injection. This means that the child must receive diphtheria "toxin-antitoxin."

The toxin-antitoxin serum is given in three injections at weekly intervals. It is a simple procedure and should cause no alarm. Infants may receive these injections as early as the sixth month.

It is believed by some authorities that the reason fewer children have received this injection is because many parents were alarmed over the recent outbreak of infantile paralysis. They thought that the diphtheria injections would make their children more liable to that disease. This is not true. Regardless of whether there is an epidemic, it is best to protect your children by diphtheria inoculations.

If there are children in your home who have not received the diphtheria inoculations, visit your doctor or the public health clinic. The time to protect against diphtheria is now.

Answers to Health Queries

Mr. F. H. Q.—How can I reduce?

A.—Eat very sparingly of starches, sugars and fats. Get regular systematic exercise. A gradual reduction in the amount of food consumed, with the regular exercise will work wonders in most cases.

F. G. Q.—What do you advise for falling hair?

A.—Brush the hair vigorously twice daily and use a good tonic. For full particulars restate your question and send a stamped self-addressed envelope.

E. L. T. Q.—What causes a pain near the heart, is it a sign of heart trouble? 2.—What do you advise to promote the growth of the hair?

A.—This may be due to indigestion, and not necessarily a heart condition. 2.—Brush the hair vigorously twice daily and use a good tonic. Send self-addressed stamped envelope for full particulars and repeat your question.

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

Dandruff does not always appear in the form of dry scales, oftimes it is oily, adheres persistently to the scalp. Proper treatment consists of steaming towels. The hair is shampooed thoroughly, hot, moist applications are applied, warm oil—mineral or olive oil—is frictioned lightly into the scalp. In three days the treatment is repeated.

A non-starchy and non-fatty diet is recommended when the complexion is spotted with blackheads and pimples. Local care includes daily scrubbings with strong soap suds, followed by applications of bay rum or eau de cologne. It is the alcohol content of these liquids that disinfect and heal the pustules.

Have your creamy cosmetic handy, dip into it daily and you'll have old Popper Time by the cowlick. It is oil that keeps the wheels of beauty running smoothly. It's good for complexion, hair, scalp, hands, finger nails. The well lubricated scalp is not flaked with dandruff. Hair that is sprayed with brilliantine doesn't dry or break. As for the cutaneous covering of face and hands, it is always undergoing a state of decay and renewal, sending off dead scales, growing a new surface, so the more cream it receives, the better it functions.

Correct Manners -:-

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Invitation

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I shall be obliged if you will advise me what is the proper thing for me to do. We are eight sisters and brothers and we all have families. One of our nephews is to be married soon and I am the only one invited to the wedding. I would like to go, but I don't like to hurt the rest of my family. G.

I don't dare presume to give a suggestion about such an intimate and personal family matter! It is indeed extraordinary that only you were invited to the wedding . . . or is there some special family circumstance that explains this?

Really, I don't see why you don't go, since you wish to go. After all it's usually fairly unreasonable for us not to accept an invitation just because someone else hasn't one.

The Groom

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. I am to be married next month. It will be an afternoon affair. Do I have to call for the bride at her home, and take her to the church, or does she go with her people?

2. Should I send her flowers, or should I take them to her myself? M.

1. The bride goes to the church usually with her father or whoever is to present her in marriage. You and the best man go to the church from your home together.

2. You arrange with the florist exactly the kind of flowers and the construction of the bouquet (consulting with your bride-to-be about her preferences concerning this), and arrange to have the bouquet sent at a definite time, ample time before she is to leave her home.

Greeting Cards

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

When sending out season's greeting cards, invitations, announcements and so forth to a married man, is it not proper to address them to Mr. and Mrs., even though the wife is not acquainted with the person sending the card?

I say "Yes" and my friend says "No." Please let us know who is right. M.

You win! It is a very definite social error to address this kind of formal invitation or announcement only to Mr., or only to Mrs. And it makes no difference whether we do or do not know both Mr. and Mrs.

In Mayfair

—With—

Patricia Pitt

Now is the time of year when we can all look forward to the homecomings from summer resorts, to greeting friends one hasn't seen for ages, and members of one's own family for that matter.

From now on until October folks will be returning to the city they've deserted for Canada, the lake region, the Atlantic coast.

And in the meantime everyone will make the most of the last of summer weather.

Drive Home

Lucretia Billings, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Frederick T. Billings, and Lydia Irish, daughter of the Franklin C. Irishes, arrived in town last night.

They drove down from Port Hope, Canada, where they went to be bridesmaids at that notable event, the wedding of Mary Black and Wilson M. Book.

The Frank S. Loves and their daughter, Rebecca Frances, are home for the week from Pike Run Country Club, Jones Mills, Pa. And they may go back for the coming week-end.

Those two young gadabouts, Rita Borntraeger, daughter of the Carl H. Borntraegers, and Betty McKay, daughter of the Thomas J. McKays, are expected home today from Muskoka Lake, Canada.

Betty's mother is expected the latter part of the week, I hear. She's been at her Beaumaris, Canada, summer place the greater part of the season. The Albert J. McKays and the Robert J. McKays have places in Beaumaris, too. None of them is home yet.

Stay Till October

Mrs. Donald C. Bakewell and the children, Margaret, Richard and Dorothy, who are in Coburg, Canada, don't intend to return to town until the first of October.

Another society woman whom you won't see until October is Mrs. Horace Forbes Baker. She and her children, Francis and Mary Rachel, who are summering, as usual, at Eastern Point, Gloucester, Mass.

Mrs. Charles Dickey Armstrong is in Windsor, Vt., and I don't know just when she'll be back.

The Ross Mountain Park Clubhouse is closed now, I hear, but many of the folks having cottages are still there. The William M. Robinsons, of Westminster place, are among these.

Their vivacious young daughter, Peggy, was in town yesterday, driving to town with Dorothy Blaxter, her house guest over the Labor Day week-end.

* * *

Return To City

The E. C. Bothwells and their daughter, Leonora, have just joined the coming-homers. They arrived today from Klinger Lake, Mich., where they've been visiting Mr. Bothwell's brother.

* * *

Hosts at Dinner

* * *

Bliss Flaccus, Raymond Price, George Paull, George Cherrington, Torrence Miller, George R. McNary are among those interested in the Chestnut Ridge Hunt races, to be run over Lazy Hour Ranch, Dunbar, Pa., Saturday afternoon.

But to return to those coming back to town. The T. M. Joneses III and the Dorwin Donnellys are home from Cobourg.

Mrs. George E. McCague and Mrs. William Arrott are expected home the latter part of the week after motoring to Poland Springs, Me.

The Collin family is expected home the twentieth. Mrs. W. W. Collin and family have been summering at Kennebunkport, Me., as usual. With their return, two of the most popular members of the younger set will be here, Kitty and Georgianna Collin.

Elizabeth A. Johnson To Marry H. W. Sloan

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Abercrombie, of Lexington avenue, New York, who are now in Point o' Woods, L. I., have announced the engagement of Mrs. Abercrombie's daughter, Miss Elizabeth Alden Johnson, to Hugh Walter Sloan, son of Maj. and Mrs. William Griffith Sloan, of Princeton, N. J.

Miss Johnson is the daughter of the late Tristram B. Johnson and granddaughter of the late J. Augustus Johnson and the late Prof. Franklin H. Giddings. She is the sister of Barclay G. Johnson, who is engaged to Miss Sue Laing, of Plainfield, N. J. Miss Johnson was graduated from Miss Chandor's School and was introduced to society in 1930.

Mr. Sloan was graduated from the Lawrenceville School and from Princeton University with this year's class. He is a member of the Cannon Club.

No date has been set for the wedding.

Pittsburgh Folk Spend Holiday At Summit

The last three-day holiday of the season found many Pittsburghers at the Summit Hotel, Golf and Country Club, Uniontown. Among them were Mr. and Mrs. George E. Painter, J. Painter, Jr. and Miss A. S. Harrold, Dr. and Mrs. John S. Silver, of Pittsburgh, were among the week-end visitors. Others were Mr. and Mrs. John B. Bissell, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick M. Shermack and sons, Albert and Frederick, Jr.

Mrs. Marie Nugent was a guest over the three days. Others registered included Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Powell, Miss Anne Corbett, John Degelman, James Wehs and Miss Helen Buchele. Mr. and Mrs. Arthur McBride, of Sewickley, motored up for the week-end. Others from Pittsburgh were Mr. and Mrs. Frank C. Elk, Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Bauer, Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Kowitz, Mr. and Mrs. George A. Duell, of Sewickley.

Others registered from Pittsburgh were Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Correll and family, C. A. Powell, W. Porter Jones, and J. F. Crab. A party motoring up on Sunday for a round of golf and remaining for dinner in the evening included Dr. and Mrs. George Schoemaker, Miss Mary Lou Schoemaker, and George, Jr. Mr. and Mrs. Carl H. Beach and Grant Beach, Dr. and Mrs. H. P. Johnston, Mr. and Mrs. John R. Berg, and sons, Dick, Jack and Bobby, Mr. and Mrs. Fred. S. Blakeley.

Mr. and Mrs. George Goldstrohn, Miss Leona Goldstrohn and Robert Goldstrohn, were among those motoring up for dinner from Elizabeth. Others dining at the resort were Mr. and Mrs. G. Stanley Petrik and Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Craerin.

Dinner guests on Saturday evening for the dinner-dance included a party from Greensburg, including Mr. and Mrs. Howard Miller, Mrs. Charlotte Overly, Mr and Mrs. Paul Bear, D. P. Hudson, and Lucian Kunkle.

Lunching at the resort from Pittsburgh were Miss Margaret Norris and Miss Edith Boggs

Mrs. S. H. Boss, Miss Mary P. Boss, Mrs. W. J. Sarver, Jack Sarver and Richard Sarver, of Mt. Lebanon, were recent guests. Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Rafferty, Miss Mary Rafferty and Mrs. Dora A. Suhlke, of Pittsburgh, were among the dinner guests recently.

Mrs. Charles Kelly and Mr. and Mrs. J. Patterson, motored up to the resort on Sunday to remain over Labor Day. Others were Miss Elizabeth Owston and Miss Marie Vonders, of Homestead.

R. J. Crossman entertained a party of friends over the week-end. Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Coleman and family were among those at the Summit over Labor Day. Dr. and Mrs. A. H. Schlegel also were among those registered from Pittsburgh. Mr. and Mrs. Guy H. Linn and Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Gray and Miss Marian Gray spent the week-end at the Summit.

Women to Play Golf Through September And in October

Women are planning to golf throughout September, and even in October when the weather permits there'll be many women on the courses, although there are to be almost no set matches that month.

Pittsburgh Field Club women are having a large day Friday, mixed foursomes. There'll be a field of more than 200. Mrs. Karl W. Warncastle is chairman of women's golf.

On September 15 there'll be a bridge at the clubhouse for those not golf-inclined or golfers wanting a change of diversion.

Shannopin Country Club will play golf every Tuesday throughout the month. Yesterday there was a large field.

At the Pittsburgh Country Club there'll be a special woman's golf event Tuesday, and this Saturday there'll be a dinner-dance.

Kathryn Philpott Names Bridal Attendants

Miss Kathryn Philpott, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Philpott, of Augusta street, has named her bridal party for her marriage September 20 to Edward Donahue, Jr., of Pittsburgh.

The ceremony is to take place at 9 o'clock in the morning in St. Mary's of the Mount Church with the Rev. Thomas Rea officiating. A reception in the South Hills Country Club is to follow the marriage service.

The bride's sister, Miss Margaret Philpott, will be maid of honor, and Miss Mary and Miss Alice Philpott, also sisters, will be bridesmaids.

Serving as his brother's best man will be John Donahue, and as ushers, Dr. Robert E. Philpott and James P. Philpott, brothers of the bride-elect.

Miss L. Adele Anderson Weds C. Calvin De Walt

Mrs. Philip J. Sohn, of Ambridge, announces the marriage of her sister, Miss L. Adele Anderson, to C. Calvin DeWalt, of Pittsburgh, which took place Saturday.

Helen R. Wolken And Ambridge Man Marry

Announcement is made of the marriage of Miss Helen R. Wolken, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Abe Wolken, to Harry Levin, of Ambridge, son of Mr. and Mrs. S. Levin, of McKees Rocks, which was solemnized recently in the B'nai Israel Synagogue with Rabbi B. A. Lichter officiating.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore aquamarine and brown velvet and carried a shower bouquet of fall flowers. Miss Miriam Wolken, sister of the bride, was maid of honor and wore maroon velvet with a matching hat and carried fall flowers. Leonard Levin was his brother's best man.

After an eastern motor trip Mr. and Mrs. Levin will be at home in the Springer Apartments, Ambridge.

W. C. T. Gaynor, Bride Guests at Musicale

Francis Hartman Markoe gave a large buffet supper and musicale recently at his residence in Water Mill, Southampton, for Mr. and Mrs. William C. T. Gaynor, whose marriage took place last Wednesday. Mrs. Gaynor is the former Miss Primrose Whitfield, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry D. Whitfield, of New York and Cluny Lodge, Southampton.

Later in the evening many additional guests came in for the musical program, in which several of the guests took part, including the Duchess de Richelieu, Harold Spencer and Burton McEvilly.

FUR TRIMMING IN ABUNDANCE IS USED AS ACCENT IN FALL MODELS

Sketched in Paris

Paris Bureau,
Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, Sept. 7.—Fur trimmings are much in evidence. Paris uses them in new ways, not only on autumn coats and suits, but on dresses as well. Strips of black astrakan are incrusted into wool frocks in the little stripes and squares that were formerly made of satin. Many a collar on a white silk blouse turns out to be made of shaved lamb or breitschwantz.

* * *

THERE IS probably more of a variety of furs used on French clothes this year than ever before, but there is no blatant parade of heavy fox bands and voluminous collars. A few elaborate evening wraps show silver fox trimmings; there are some few fur necklaces of fox skins, but in general the use of fur in any individual garment inclines to be sparse.

* * *

REDFERN SHOWS some good practical coats of gray tweeds trimmed with collars of gray astrakan and lines them with white and gray squirrel; in cases like this there is plenty of fur, but it has more of a practical than decorative value. Vera Borea uses fox tails to make necklace scarfs, and puts ermine tails end to end to make long tassels on black satin cocktail frocks.

* * *

BRUYERE IS one of the designers who likes to use fur as if it were cloth. Many of her autumn coats are furless, but accompanied with fur cravats, which may be worn on dresses as well. In her coat pictured today she uses black astrakan to make a wide-revered collar on a black broadcloth coat; the fur is "worked" in such a way that it lies across the shoulders as flat as fabric. The coat itself is carefully fitted in toward the waist—a line that is balanced by the puffed sleeves.

* * *

WHITE BREITSCHWANTZ is incrusted, like fabric, into the Vera Borea dress with the little extra shoulder sleevelets. The dress is designed to be worn on the street without a coat and is fashioned of a heavily creped woolen so finely woven as to look like silk.

New Kensington Juniors Open New Year

By MRS. CHARLES M. BREGG

Another club got under way with a new season last night when the New Kensington Junior Woman's Club met in the First Presbyterian Church and heard Dr. Max Schoen give "New Light on Heredity." The juniors have changed their name, too, you know, just as the seniors did—from the Triborough Club. At their October meeting, according to the good looking year books, Mrs. James G. Chalfant, district president of the State Federation, will talk to the girls. This is to be president's day and is to be distinguished by the debut of the club choral.

Miss Mary J. Condon, of the Family Felfare Association; the Rev. Dr. Carl Wallace Petty and Mrs. Chester B. Story, Pittsburgh author and fashion authority, are other speakers whom the girls will hear from during the session which ends May 2.

With its addresses by visitors, the club is combining short biographies of musicians, among them Victor Herbert, Rudolph Friml, Josef Hofmann and Debussy.

Musician Sketches

The drama and music committees will take charge of the Christmas meeting and in January a program will be given by the Western Pennsylvania School for the Blind. At the March meeting, at which Dr. Petty is to speak concerning "Man and His Needs," the seniors will be guests.

The New Kensington Juniors have followed the plan so widely adopted by several other junior organizations which brackets each girl's own name with her husband's initials. Miss Ann Thompson is the new president; Miss Jessie Fair and Mrs. J. M. Murdoch are vice presidents; Miss Dorothy Yingling is recording and Mrs. Margaret Zimmerman, corresponding secretary, and Miss Margaret Glover, treasurer.

Catholic Council Women To Continue Parties

The popular Saturday card parties will be continued throughout September by Pittsburgh Council of Catholic Women. This week's committee is Miss R. A. Good, Miss Stella Wilbert, Mrs. E. J. White, Mrs. Mary Rapp, Mrs. Joseph Hartman, Mrs. Mary Cannon and Mrs. Margaret Clarke.

For September 17 the committee includes Mrs. George E. Creamer, Mrs. Harry Eibel, Mrs. D. J. Fox and Mrs. Annie Brehler, and that for the last affair is Mrs. R. A. Kennedy, Mrs. E. E. Campbell, Mrs. C. F. Drake and Mrs. J. C. McGrael.

Cotton Plants Soon To Yield Harvest

BROWNSVILLE, Pa., Sept. 7.—Cotton plants soon will be ready for picking in the garden of W. Eugene Fox, South Brownsville.

ROSEDALE CLUB HOLDS PRESIDENT'S TEA

The new year book sent out by the Rosedale Community Club is a neat booklet bound in the club colors, orange and black. The club, which was organized in 1925, meets monthly in All Saints Mission and will this year be under the regime of Mrs. Harvey Goehring. Assisting her are Mrs. C. R. Mathewson, as vice president; Mrs. James Fuller, recording secretary; Mrs. John L. Hoffman, corresponding secretary; Mrs. R. C. Powers, treasurer; Mrs. W. C. Wilson parliamentarian.

The club had its president's tea yesterday afternooon in Mrs. Minnie Katz's home, Verona road. More than 50 members and guests were present for the reception and program which included readings by Mrs. Thomas McGraw and vocal duets by Mrs. David Ingalls and Mrs. J. R. Fuller, with Mrs. J. F. Ford accompanying.

Frank Remaley, assistant county superintendent of schools, will address the club next month and Mrs. J. G. Chalfant, district president of the state federation, is to be November's speaker. Miss Winifred Anderson, speaking on the Passion Play; Mrs. M. M. Redenbaugh giving an interior decorating talk, a bicentennial program, a recital by Ella Spindler Egli, and the annual meeting in May are other good things announced for the year.

Lee Parents, Teachers Open Season Tomorrow

The season's initial meeting of the Lee Parent-Teacher Association will be held tomorrow evening in the Lee School, with Mrs. Walter F. Kirkpatrick presiding. Mrs. J. Kirkwood Craig will speak on the first three points of the Children's Charter and Mrs. Albert F. Fleig will direct the musical program.

On Club Radio Hour

On Congress Radio Hour

"What Price Diphtheria?" will be discussed tomorrow over Station KDKA by Dr. C. B. Maits, director of public health for the city. Dr. Maits is speaking for the State Federation of Pennsylvania Women during its weekly broadcast at 3:45.

Greensburg Plans Safety Patrol

GREENSBURG, Pa., Sept. 7.—In co-operation with the members of the police department, a school safety patrol will be organized in the Latrobe schools from among the pupils. The students' patrol will direct traffic in school zones during the opening and closing of the schools.

Bellevue Y Auxiliary Opens Year at Luncheon

The Women's Auxiliary to the Bellevue Y. M. C. A. is beginning its new year today with a luncheon and program meeting at the "Y." Miss Mary P. Lang is telling the members something of her extended stay in China, and Mrs. William L. Stone, contralto, is furnishing the music.

Americans Sing Best at World Scout Meet

When the American Girl Scouts announced that they would do their 'kapers' in Dublin, the Irish thought they were talking about food. Capers in Ireland are served in a sauce with boiled mutton.

This is one many entertaining incidents related on her return by Miss Alice Conway, leader of the American delegation to the World Camp of Girl Guides and Girl Scouts held this summer on the Powerscourt estate outside Dublin.

The British Isles, France, Finland, India, the British Dominions, and Belgium were the other countries represented among the 250 Girl Guides and Girl Scouts assembled in the camp. Of these, the Belgians were the most like the Americans; the Irish were the gayest but shyest; the Scotch the most serious and efficient, and the Americans the greatest singers.

The two things most troublesome to the American delegation were tea for breakfast and the long twilights. The girls got used to the tea, but they never did become accustomed to a day that was still light at 11 p. m., Miss Conway said.

Miss Elinor V. Jardine To Marry on Sept. 17

The marriage of Miss Elinor Vreeland Jardine, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Jardine, of Alston Court, Red Bank, N. J., and Riverside Drive, N. Y., to Joseph Cullins Atkins, son of Mr. and Mrs. Obadiah Atkins, of Birmingham, Ala., will take place at the Red Bank home of the bride's parents on Saturday, September 17.

Miss Doris Jardine will be her sister's maid of honor, and Miss Florence Edwards, of Jersey City, and Miss Dorothy Parr, of Englewood, cousins of the bride, will be bridesmaids. Another cousin, Miss Muriel Edwards, will be flower girl. Richard Vogt, of Lawrenceville, will be Mr. Atkin's best man.

The ceremony will be performed by the Rev. Dr. Boyd Edwards, headmaster of Hill School, Pottstown, Pa., at which Mr. Atkins prepared for Princeton University, where he was graduated last year. Miss Jardine attended Dwight School in Englewood.

Porto Rican Scouts Gain 100 Per Cent

A membership increase of 100 per cent within the past two years and an organization which is financially independent of the American headquarters, is the record of Girl Scouting in Porto Rico which has been brought back to the national organization by Miss Dorothy Sullivan, former insular director.

Miss Sullivan, who took charge of the Porto Rican council two years ago, when it was organized with the help of former Gov. and Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt, will join the staff of the national organization in New York this month. Her work in Porto Rico will be carried on by Miss Elissa Colberg, of Cabo Rojo, P. I., who will direct it under the general supervision of Senora Pepita Valdez de Lopez de la Rosa, and Mrs. James Beverley, honorary commissioner.

Strange Names Conceal Tempting Scout Dishes

New and tempting receipes, hidden behind strange names, are disclosed in a new Girl Scout pamphlet, "Woodland Cookery."

"South Sea delight," "chiffon pie," "straw biscuits," "bird's nest salad," "snow bread" and "volcano potatoes," are just a few of the suggested delicacies that Girl Scouts may soon be trying out on their friends and relatives. "Maple syrup dumplings" and "bread griddle cakes," "gaspachio" and "tortilla," "Mexican euchilades" and "sweet potato Margherita" are other suggestions to introgue the imagination and tickle the palate.

Crafton Juniors Begin Year With Reception

The Crafton Juniors began their season auspiciously last night with a full attendance at their president's reception. Miss Frances Moore and the other officers, together with Mrs. H. C. Breidert, senior president, received in the home of Miss Charlotte and Miss Wilma Eckert, Bradford avenue. Miss Mary Florence Taylor, last year's president, outlined the year's plans. There were "tuneful tales" sung by Miss Patty Prince with Mrs. Neal Pappert accompanying and a book review by Mrs. F. Nellis Wolf.

How to Lose Fat

Do Just These Two Simple Things—Fat Melts Away

Here is a quick and easy way to take off a pound a day—four to seven pounds every week!—with never a hungry moment. A way any doctor will tell you is safe and sure.

This is what you do: Take a teaspoonful* ordinary Jad Salts in glass of water half hour before breakfast every morning. This reduces moisture-weight instantly. Also cleanses your system of the waste matter and excess toxins that most fat people have, and banishes puffiness and bloat.

Then do this about eating. FILL YOUR STOMACH—eat your fill—of lean meats, vegetables like spinach, cauliflower, cabbage, tomatoes, etc., and lots of salads. Eat a lot. Eat all you can hold. Don't go hungry a minute. Cut down on butter, sweets and desserts, bread. Eat any fruit for dessert.

That's all you do. Fat seems to melt away. The coarse lines of overweight give way to the refined ones of slenderness. You lose as much as a pound a day. You feel better than for years. For in this treatment you achieve two important results. The Jad Salts clears the system of toxins. *The diet takes off fat with food that turns to energy instead of weight.

If you're tired of being embarrassed by fat try this way. You'll be glad that you did. You can get Jad Salts at any drug store.

*Note particularly—Jad Salts is urged purely as a poison-banishing agent—not as a reducing. The change in food does the work.

MELODIOUS PARADE -:- Notable List of Singers And Orchestras -:- ON AIR TONIGHT

'Our Family' To Return On WCAE

A melodious parade, beginning at 8:30 and continuing until 10 o'clock, featuring a brilliant array of some of radio's most outstanding stars, is presented over NBC networks, including WCAE and KDKA, tonight.

A gala Melody Moments anniversary concert, marking the beginning of the program's fourth year on NBC networks, is scheduled on KDKA from 8:30 to 9 with Oliver Smith, tenor, and William Rozsa, pianist, as featured artists, and Josef Pasternack's Orchestra. In addition to the soloists, a mixed quartet composed of Smith, Helen Oelheim, contralto; Kathryn Palmer, soprano, and Vernon Jacobsen, baritone, also is heard.

Miss Oelheim

Switching to WCAE at 9, dialers hear Merle Alcock, the popular operatic and concert contralto, in her fourth program as guest artist with Victor Young's Orchestra and the Revelers. Immediately following on WCAE is a popular presentation starring Gladys Rice and the Men About Town Trio with Nat Shilkret's Orchestra.

The "Our Family" programs, which attained great popularity with Pittsburgh radio listeners last year on KDKA, return to the air waves as a regular weekly feature via WCAE Sunday at 4:45. The half-hour sketches are presented under the direction of Ed Harvey with a cast including Mr. Harvey, Sondra Kostner, Leon Churchon, Helen Wayne and Alma Lynd.

* * *

Program Pointers

Aileen Clark, soprano; Fred Hufsmith, tenor; Walter Preston, baritone, and Jacques d'Avery, tenor, are heard with Frank Tours, his orchestra and the Sixteen Singers during another "Yesterday and Today" broadcast over an NBC network, including WCAE, tonight at 8:30. The program is comprised of selections from major musical successes of the last quarter of a century in which

Miss Clark

Tours has played a prominent part, both here and abroad . . . Helen Bell Rush, prominent Pittsburgh soprano, returns to the air after a brief vacation tonight at 8:15, when she presents a quarter-hour recital from KDKA.

The trial of Johnny Hart, the "Big Time" hoofer of NBC networks; his pal, Rex Carlton, and the Eight Sons of Eli, who were arrested for disturbing the peace while serenading a fair co-ed, is heard on WCAE at 8.

"Come After Breakfast, Bring Your Own Lunch," an old song dating from Singin' Sam's minstrel days, is a highlight of the Hoosier basso's program on WJAS at 8:15.

Ward Wilson, on KDKA at 7:15 imitates the precise diction of Walter Damrosch, whose musical appreciation hours return to the air October 14.

The Coffee Concert Orchestra, directed by Graham Harris, returns to the NBC-WJZ network, including KDKA, tonight at 9.

Dr. Ben Graham, superintendent of the Pittsburgh public schools, is guest speaker on KQV's "Pittsburgh Today" program tonight at 9 o'clock.

Seals Greet New Football Season

Mr. Harpster

Highlights and analyses of the latest political developments throughout the state and nation by Mark Shields, political editor of the Sun-Telegraph, are broadcast on WCAE tonight at 6 o'clock.

A gala program, featuring Charlotte Shallenberger, soprano; Richard Koch, baritone, and the Andrini Brothers, string "wizards" and comedians, with orchestra, is presented during the Sun-Telegraph Nite Club of the Air on WCAE at 11.

Louis L. Kaufman, Globe-Trotter of the Sun-Telegraph and Hearst Metrotone News, goes on the air daily at 9:05 a. m., 12:15 p. m., 2:30 p. m. and 6:30 p. m., with the latest news flashes.

Listening In— Stars 'Confess' Embarrassing Moments

Miss Keenan

Peggy Keenan found herself in a rather baffling situation when she locked her key in her trunk and had to travel to Europe with only the clothes she was wearing. . . . and Helen Board stepped on a train in a hurry one day only to find it was going in the opposite direction from her destination . . . Andre Kostelanetz was all prepared to conduct "Rigoletto" when the prima donna suddenly took sick—and was bothered when informed that her substitute would sing an opera that he didn't know . . . Edward Reese, portraying the role of a criminal who had been shot, supposedly dead, once rose before the curtain fell . . . Benny Kreuger, arriving to lead his orchestra at an important social function, was a bit startled when he found he was wearing one brown shoe and a black one . . . Fred Uttal, after being filmed for the first time in the movies, proudly took his best girl to the preview—and all that could be seen of him were his feet.

Kate Smith is investing in Long Island real estate, and is reported to be contemplating the purchase of a fashionable beach club.

Eighteen hours are spent each week in the preparation of the "Thompkins Corners" act. . . .

Virginia Rea says she spent an average of two hours a day when she was a child posing for her father, an enthusiastic amateur photographer . . . Jack Parker, of the Men About Town, and Fredie Grofe are yachting companions, but bar musical discussions . . .

Graham Harris, an inveterate talkie addict, has scored the music for 500 movies . . . Jimmy Melton is digging up a lot of old tenor solos for use this winter . . . John Watts Spangler, Virginia's champion fiddler and regular entertainer on the Corn Cob Pipe Club programs, is a cousin of Lady Nancy Astor and a member of the famous Langhorne family.

Frank Crumit, who hadn't ridden a horse for more than 20 years, was persuaded to go for a long ride recently and had to give up four days of golf and poker, his favorite diversions, while getting over the effects.

By ANNE ADAMS

The mode has decreed the coat dress of great importance. We have here a particularly attractive model for the larger figure. The treatment of lace at the neckline is chic and unusual, while the surplice closing is held with a graceful bow at the side. Tucks mold the waistline slightly. Black satin and white lace is a refreshing combination.

Pattern 2405 may be ordered only in sizes 36 to 46. Size 36 requires 3⅞ yards 39-inch fabric and 1⅝ yards 2½-inch lace. Illustrated step-by-step sewing instructions included with this pattern.

Send FIFTEEN CENTS in coins or stamps (coins preferred), for each pattern. Write plainly your name, address and style number. BE SURE TO STATE SIZE WANTED.

THE FALL AND WINTER EDITION OF THE ANNE ADAMS PATTERN CATALOG IS READY! Charming, flattering models—32 pages of the newest and best house, street and formal frocks—cleverly designed styles for large figures—and beautiful, practical models for juniors and kiddies. Lovely lingerie patterns, and suggestions for gifts that can be easily and inexpensively made, are also included. SEND FOR THE NEW CATALOG. PRICE OF CATALOG, 15 CENTS. CATALOG AND PATTERN TOGETHER 25 CENTS. Address all mail orders to Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph Pattern Department, 243 W. Seventeenth street, New York City.

1.—Enclose 15 cents in coins.
2.—Write clearly NUMBERS of patterns and SIZE wanted.
3.—Write or print your NAME and ADDRESS plainly.
4.—If you want SUN-TELEGRAPH Style Book send 10c extra.
5.—Address your request to the

O. I. A. HONORS PITTSBURGHERS

POTTSTOWN, Pa., Sept. 7.—(AP.)—The state council of the Order of Independent Americans, at its twenty-ninth annual session here yesterday selected Greensburg for next year's convention and heard the appointment of six officers for the ensuing year by Adams S. Lash, of New Cumberland, the state councillor.

These officers included Harvey Hershey, Steelton, chaplain; Levi Yerger, Lititz, council conductor; Theodore Lamborn, Berwyn, warden; William Dook, Pittsburgh, inside sentinel; L. O. Hancher, Pittsburgh, outside sentinel, and Alvin Kemp, of Reading, reading clerk.

Officers elected for the Funeral Benefit Association were Andrew Theurer, Roslyn, president; Justus C. Schatz, Hazleton, vice president; Robinson, Pittsburgh, treasurer; Joseph McClennan, Pittsville, secretary; Stephen Graham, Pittsburgh, and Fred M. Markus, McKeesport, directors for three years.

N. Y. Mayor Orders Census of Jobless

NEW YORK, Sept. 7.—(AP.)—Mayor Joseph V. McKee yesterday ordered the taking of a city-wide census of unemployed to begin at once. He said the census would be taken by police and he expected it to be completed in 10 to 15 days. The purpose is to determine how many of the city's unemployed are permanent residents and eligible for city aid.

Man About Town

The Bide Dudleys are having it secretly melted out West in the amicable manner . . . Jesse Lasky, Jr., and Patricia Harper are plotting an Eclipse . . . They would have you believe that Ginger Rogers and Mervyn LeRoy have changed their minds . . . Sam Seabury, the Democrat, will be rewarded by the Repubs with a U. S. Supreme Court robe . . . The Hollywood "wiseguys" are predicting a nose-dive for J. Weissmuller . . . The Jeritza-Pisa yen has frosted and the canary has reconciled with her mate—the Baron . . . Adele Morel, bitter because of his tribe's interference, is planning a sensational rebuttal against Chas. Augustus Van Rensselaer, Jr., of the Piping Rock throwers . . . It's a boy at the J. J. Reynolds (Kathryn Downer).

Claire Windsor is stranded with that alienation action—her heart, A. Read, Jr.,—(whose squaw caused all that fuss) having shifted to Jacqueline Marquis . . . John Barrymore's entire fortune is tied up in his extravagantly appointed yacht . . . You have to take 3 different elevators to reach the Empire State edifice heights . . . Sam H. Harris has taken over the Max Gordon reins while the latter ails in a sanitarium . . . Their show, "Flying Colors," already has a 12-week "buy," the ducats going to the nine ticket-brokers who contributed 5 Gs each towards the backing . . . There will be no short skirts in the "Forward March" revusical, albeit you will ogle the most unusual leg displays . . . Henry E. Dixey, the matinee idol of his day, is a recluse in a White Plains hotel . . . Gertrude Selby (the ex-Mrs. Townsend Netcher) is Tahiti-bound where she intends to be forgotten by those who failed her here.

The Arthur Clarks (Laurette LaPenna) are bootie-shopping . . . "You're Blase," a tune from "Bow-Bells," a London musical, is a hit only in America. In England the current ditty-hit is: "Please Don't Talk About Me When I'm Gone" . . . Since the day she was born, Patricia Ziegfeld, now 16, received one-eighth of 1 per cent on every Ziegfeld show. Plus compound interest, you can imagine . . . A week before Flo perished, by the way, Stanley Sharpe, Ziggy's former gen'l mgr., discontinued his suit for $19,000 back wages . . . Bert Lahr threatened to quit the Brooklyn Paramount bill unless he was billed over H. Richman. The latter consented, however, saving Lahr a $4,000 fine . . . Because Ring Lardner complained in print about the suggestiveness of "As You Desire Me," the air chains forced a revised set of wordage . . . Heavens! Is the man becoming a power???

The reconciliation talk concerning the Rex Leases is the malarkey. Rex is still head man with Edna Purviance and Eleanor Hunt Lease still suffers from Charles Belden trouble . . . Tip to World Series fans: The odd-numbered boxes at the Yankee Stadium are in the front—the evens are in the rear . . . "Smiling Faces" was forced to open against Fred Stone's pleas. The star offered to buy the show from Lee Shubert and revise it, but no go . . . Frank Mandel, the play producer, is baiting Matt Brush, President of the American International Corp., to angel a show . . . The Sidney Fox-Jean Nigulesco Cupiding is wilting . . . Add funny cracks in "Horsefeathers" which is drowned by the preceding howl—when G. Marks is lolling in the canoe and says: "Do you know—this is the first time I've been in a canoe since 'The American Tragedy.'"

An orchid to the piece on Krueger in the Atlantic Monthly . . . A scallion to the composer of "Lover Come Back to Me," a lift from Tschaikowski's "Barcarolle" . . . An orchid to the ether newspaperman, E. C. Hill, for his "Human Side of the News" airagraphs . . . A scallion to that renowned femme dancing Madame for the manner in which she talks to her gals at rehearsals . . . An orchid to the lovely Irene Dunne for her final moment heart-tugs in "Back Street" . . . An orchid to the Messrs. Brown & Henderson for their new chune: "Home to Harlem," better than their "Darkies Are Born" . . . Ditto to Jeff Machamer's newest cartoon gal "Polly" (in the humor mag) "who knows nothing about practically everything!"

Fabian Garcia, here as an alleged political exile from Cuba, had a taxi driver arrested over a 90c fare, but Judge Brodsky refused to be a party to the gag . . . For which Hurray! . . . The reason you see J. Durante in almost every MGM flicker—they consider him the "life-saver on the Metro lot" and when a picture totters, in goes Jimmy . . . The Jed Harris opus, "Salt of the Earth," designed for G. Jessel, is definitely off . . . Dan Caswell's ex-wife, Jean, will Lohengrin it shortly with a rich physician . . . There are two songs titled: "Love Me Tonight," one in the galloping gelatin by that name, and the other a Tin Pan Alley number. The latter is the more popular . . . When the Pierriette reopens in the Waldorf, Rene Black will Maitre d'Hotel . . . The only woman to whom George White ever proposed marriage is Ann Pennington. He still adores her, he says, because she said No.

"Bring 'Em Back Alive" was originally designed to be cut up into 13 shorts . . . When they couldn't decide how to shear it they forced it on the Mayfair and now it gives every indication of winding up as the year's heaviest profit-maker . . . Fred Fradkin, who had his Stradivarius smashed accidentally months ago, just got $20,000 balm from his insurance company on it . . . Otto H. Kahn spurned a million $ loan on his art collection in London—arguing that he never borrowed in his life and never would! . . . The Colette d'Arville-Jose Iturbi matter is now in the veddy-veddy voom-voom stage . . . Mary Dahlberg, of Chicago, divorce and jewel-theft renown, now dwells in lavishly equipped cells which she purchased recently in an abandoned monstery near Barcelona, Spain . . . Betty Lorraine is annulling James Stevens.

Nancy Lyons, who got all that exploitation in the Harry Bannister manner, now asserts it was a trick . . . A very exciting accident that you will have to imagine sets Arthur Hornblow closer to Sam Goldwyn's movie throne and restores him to greater authority than ever . . . Myrna Loy has a new heart on the same lot . . . The day of the $5 theater ticket is over—excluding premieres . . . The last show to exact that tariff is "Of Thee I Sing," which will go to $4.40 when it switches temples soon . . . Albertina Rasch's ex-hubby is head-waitering at the Hotel Astor . . . Locals hissed two movie short the other eve, being fed up with feeble fables . . . If C. Dillingham does a play this season it will be one penned by his sec'y, with a honey of a title: "A Good Woman—Poor Thing."

Mrs. Max Hart is in Reno and her next groom will be Hugh Huntley, the actor and her husband's "pal" . . . Hart, however, is now courting a wealthy widow of the azure-blood belt . . . S. Nirdlinger, of Philly, and S. Baron are plotting an opposition circuit of legit theaters in key towns to worry the Erlanger-Shubert combination . . . Steingut, the leader of the Assembly at Albany, is a kin of the Mad Minskys, which explains why they are always "within the law" . . . Yetta Le Blang, the late cut-rate king's dotter, is divorcing the head of the American Union Bank which collapsed . . . Bruce Powell, of the Swope Sweepstakes, whose wife is among the current Renotables, is courting Charlotte Fantoni, who practically runs Hattie Carnegie's . . . When Pat McCarron, "Reno's leading lawyer," is introduced (in hushed tone) he is in referred to as the man "who got a $56,000 home from Mary Pickford in return for keeping her divorce so quiet."

AT EASE BETWEEN SCENES OF "RASPUTIN"

By HARRISON CARROLL

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 7.

When Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer bought the book, Joan Crawford was mentioned for the leading role. But that was a long time ago. Now, the studio needs a story for Norma and they think she will fit into these colorful memoirs of the Grand Duchess Marie of Russia.

It is tacitly understood that Robert Sherwood will have a hand in writing the screen play of the book, so Norma may consult with him in New York. At any rate, his departure for the coast is said to have been postponed for a few days.

Norma Shearer

"The Education of a Princess" will be the second M-G-M picture written around the old regime in Russia. The first, of course, is "Rasputin," starring the Barrymores.

Though he shaved the very edge of death in his recent illness, Wilson Mizner treats the experience with characteristic lightness. He Flips:

BOULEVARD TOPICS

Now here's a situation with real possibilities. Lupe Velez and George Raft are the latest couple in the Hollywood spotlight. . . . Irene Dunne sang five songs in the foreign version of Universal's "Back Street." Incidentally, R-K-O is looking for a picture with music for this actress' next vehicle. . . . The health institute favored by so many of the male stars is opening a branch for women in Beverly Hills. . . . Emmett Flynn, for years under contract to Fox, but lately missing from the film colony, is back in town. He was collecting greetings yesterday at the Brown Derby. . . . George A. Breakston, youthful radio performer well-known to Eastern fans, is in Hollywood and will appear in "Lawyer Man" at Warners. . . . Many of the stars are interested in the new eight millimeter film now being put out for the amateur motion picture photographer. One foot of this film contains four times as many frames as the old 16 millimeter type and 16 times as many as the regulation film for the large cameras. With 400 feet of it, the amateur projectionist will have an hour's entertainment.

WRITER BUYS CONTRACT

After a year and a half at Warners, Kubec Glasmon has bought up his contract and will enter the free-lance writing field. The Chicago author, along with John Bright, wrote many of the Warner successes for the past two years. You'll recall "The Public Enemy," "Smart Money," "Taxi," "Union Depot" and "The Crowd Roars." Several weeks ago, Bright left Warners, breaking up the team. He is scheduled to report at Paramount in the near future. Glasmon plans a short vacation before he does any more scripts.

The handsome Virginian recently finished "Heritage of the Desert" and will be starred directly in another Zane Grey story, "Wild Horse Mesa."

Columbia Changes Name of Film

Joel McCrea Cast In New Movie

Joel McCrea has been selected by Fox films as Janet Gaynor's leading man in her new picture, "Tess of the Storm Country," now in production at Movietone City. Evalyn Knapp, Dudley Digges, Claude Gillingwater, Sr., and Edward Pawley have prominent roles in this picture which Al Santell is directing. The screen story was adapted by S. N. Behrman and Sonya Levien from Grace Miller White's novel.

Shows Must Be Hits

There are no in-between shows on Broadway today. A production is "either a hit or a flop," according to George M. Cohan, who has spent a lifetime in play production, stardom and authorship.

"In the past, a good little play could run along for weeks or months and continue to make money," says the famous theatrical figure now in Hollywood starring in Paramount's "The Phantom President."

"Today, audiences will not patronize such entertainment, although it may be worth the money. They want hits or nothing.

"As a result, hits today are bigger than ever before in the history of the stage. They are literally swamped. Those plays which are not hits go off the boards within a week. They stand no chance of catching on in popularity, as was known to happen in the past. Of course, this condition is not confined to stage productions. Audiences are demanding outstanding motion pictures as well. The 'pretty good' film stands no more chance than the Broadway production of the same caliber."

Mayor McKee In Hearst News

THE GLOBE TROTTER

The first pictures of Joseph V. McKee, the new Mayor of New York, are contained in the current issue of Hearst Metrotone News. There are also pictures of James J. Walker, whose sudden resignation elevated McKee to the position of chief executive of the greatest city in the world.

Mr. McKee, through Hearst Metrotone News, states that he fully appreciates the "grave responsibilities" placed upon him. Continuing, he says "many serious problems face our municipality. I shall approach them with an eye single only to their solution for the greatest good of the people of the city."

SEABURY SHOWN TOO

In addition there are pictures of Judge Samuel Seabury, Walker's nemesis.

Spectacular pictures of Gar Wood's Miss America X flashing to victory in the Harmsworth Trophy races come from Lake St. Clair, Detroit, with a graphic description of the sensational race by The Globe Trotter. The British challenger, Kaye Don, is seen leading in his Miss England III for the first part of the contest. Wood says it was the hardest race he ever was in.

Germany's famous lion tamer, Capt. Schneider, feeds his pack raw meat from his bare hands.

Latest scenes of the air meet in Cleveland show Maj. Doolittle setting a new record at 296 miles an hour average speed. There also are pictures of Jimmy Haizlip, the coast-to-coast king, and of Mrs. Marie McMillin finishing her record parachute jump of 20,800 feet.

LONDOS BEATS SAVOLDI

The 15-mile water marathon at Toronto shows 191 contestants. Among them are George Young, last year's winner, and George Blagdon, of Memphis, Tenn. Blagdon crosses the line for a new record and the first prize of $7,500 cash.

Navy Planes Bomb Brazilian Rebels

RIO DE JANEIRO, Sept. 7.—(INS.)—The government declared today all fears of the navy joining the Sao Paulo rebels were abated as a result of the bombing of Fort Itaipu, at the entrance of Santos Harbor, by six navy planes.

The fort, which had been held by the rebels, was destroyed by the naval forces after it had fired upon federal planes in violation of an agreement, the ministry of marine announced.

BITS OF LIFE

All in a Day

By Mark Hellinger

The Great Ascagnio

HE WAS 14 when he landed here. He came from Palermo, a province in Sicily noted for its great singers, fine artists and bad barbers. His name, he said, was Ascagnio. So the kids on the East Side called him Ask and let the matter drop right there.

Funny, but he seldom played like other kids. In fact, about the only game he did learn was the Ancient Art of Craps Shooting, and he was still learning when he quit.

Ascagnio was art crazy. Absolutely. All you had to do was mention a name like Raphael or Rembrandt and he immediately went into his act. He would wring his hands, pull his hair, make funny kissing noises with his mouth and swoon. Yes sir. This kid was certainly cuckoo about art.

On certain days, the boy would be found in the Metropolitan Museum of Art on Fifth Avenue, literally eating and drinking the beautiful works he found there. Sculpture was his main passion. A marble figure could do more to him than a Minsky dancer could do to a front row patron.

Nobody in the neighborhood ever took him seriously. Most of the Italian folk kidded him unmercifully, and nicknamed him Ascagnio the Great when he got his first job painting statues.

Ascagnio took the job with disdain. It was far beneath him, he felt, to paint red lips and blue eyes on white plaster statues, but it paid a few dollars a week and that was the important thing.

All day long his hairline paint brush would flit from lip to lip and back to lip again. And all day long his face would twist itself into an ugly scowl and he would mutter dark Italian words about "rubbish" and "trash" and the low-brows who bought such things.

At noon time, the workers would sit and break bread together. They would chew magnificent mouthfuls of salami and bread and still be able to twit Ascagnio at the same time.

"De boss," he would reply, "he's ona crazy man. He'sa know not ona thing about art. Alaways he'sa foola aroun' wit' some kin' statchoo what means not ona thing. I tella heem once. I say, 'Hey, boss. I maka for you ona great, real piece of art. It don't costa you ona penny, and the people they maka you a biga hooray. I do thisa for you—and I be ver' happy, too.'

"De boss, hesa say to me, 'Aseagnio, you joosta silly keed.' But he no maka the fool from me. I showa heem soma day. You joosta watch."

The workers would laugh and prod him on. They would get him steamed up about the boss by telling him that the boss was jealous of him, and was afraid that he might turn out a masterpiece. Ascagnio, poor kid, would go back to work with homicide in his heart.

So he saved up his money like most people don't, and worked home at nights on his masterpiece. It was almost five years later when he became satisfied with the job and unveiled it to public gaze.

With trembling lips he carried the statue down to the factory one day and put it on the table for all the boys to see.

Sad to relate, they were ill-mannered enough to howl. And how they howled! They laughed until they cried, and then rolled on the floor holding their sides!

Well, you couldn't blame them much at that. If there was one thing Ascagnio didn't know anything about, that one thing was sculpture.

The statue was supposed to represent "Mother and Child." The face of the mother looked like a ham fighter who stuck his head inside of a meat grinder to discover how it operated. The infant's feet would make Carnera blush with envy, and the figure of the woman looked like something that would appeal only to a Barney Gallant.

The great ascagnio, needless to say, almost died. He screamed, howled, bit his fingers, tore his hair, spoke fluent Italian, and wound up by grabbing the statue and walking out, never to return . . .

Some ten years later I met him in a speakasy where I stopped to get a little White Rock. He stood behind the bar, checking over the figures he found in the cash register and looking glum. I was introduced to him, and he told me that business was fine. That in itself was so unusual that I immediately ordered another White Rock to keep from swooning.

He also admitted, in a discouraged tone of voice, that he was wealthy beyond his wildest dreams, that his speako made so much money that he could now afford to go to the Metropolitan Museum of Art and pay his way in, and that it didn't mean a thing in his life.

He pointed a quavering finger at a whitish object which stood on a stand in a corner.

"Meester Helling'," he said, "there'sa my whole life. My heart, he'sa wrap up in what you call art. I maka that statchoo tena year ago. I taka heem up to de museum, and they tella me they no want heem. I tella them he'sa free, and they laugh. What'sa matter with such peepul? They musta be crazy. They maka me so mad, I laugha myself!"

I looked at the masterpiece. Even the White Rock couldn't improve it in my aging eyes. It was simply frightful. But I didn't laugh. I still have a silly desire to continue living . . .

The raid came two weeks later. The snoops walked in, put the pinch on the place, drove the customers out and started to work with axes.

They tell me that Ascagnio the Great didn't seem to mind. But he had a paternal eye on the statue, and even went so far as to try to walk out with it. Fatal mistake. The snoops quickly came to the conclusion that the Italian placed some value on the piece of art and rudely grabbed it from him.

He pleaded. He begged. He even cried. But to no avail. They simply put it on the bar until everything else was smashed, and then picked it up and tossed it against a wall. It broke into a thousand fragments and Ascagnio the Great let out a horrible wail and fainted.

He could have opened up another place on the following night. He could have opened up a dozen places. Surely the raid meant nothing to him for he had plenty of money. But he didn't open up any more.

A year later the boys came around with the butterfly nets and got him. He had spent all his money in a big studio trying to duplicate that little statue! They tell me that there were hundreds of 'em all over the place. And he probably wouldn't have been sent away to the nut factory if he hadn't startled the entire neighborhood one day by bursting into laughter and smashing the statues one by one against the wall!

He's out now. Perfectly sane, too. He doesn't say much, and he never mentions art. But the thing that hands me a big kick is his present occupation. He works as a porter in a big art museum. And all night long he dusts the sculptures of the masters! . . .

Gossip About Plays and Players—By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

Through an arrangement between R-K-O and Warner Brothers the latter will take over the management of the Sheridan Square, which for years has been one of the leading theaters in the East Liberty district. It was built about 20 years ago by the late Senator John P. Harris, a pioneer in the field of vaudeville and motion pictures. Originally it was a vaudeville house, and variety was its sole policy until a few years ago. At first it played programs that continued for a full week and its success was immediate, the house proving to be one of the best money-makers in the Harris chain. Later bills were put on a split-week basis, but during all its years devoted to "flesh" it was the mecca of thousands of vaudeville fans in the territory it served so well in that capacity. Since being acquired by R-K-O several seasons ago, it has been mostly a cinema house only, although a policy of stage acts and films combined has been tried at times. Its central location has given it an advantage not enjoyed by two larger houses in the East End, and it always has been popular. It even made attendance records during the period when R-K-O was using it for first run of some of its outstanding pictures. The house will come under control of Warner Brothers Friday and no change in policy is announced for the present.

Among the cast of "Humpty Dumpty," new Schwab and De Sylva musical comedy that will have its premiere in the Nixon next Monday as the season-opener in that theater, will be Sid Silvers, formerly the "stooge" of Phil Baker. His antic freshness, as he bandied badinage and juggled jests with Baker from a seat in the balcony, always appeared as spontaneous as if he were a real member of the audience instead of part of the show. Lou Holtz, featured comedian of the new musical play, has not been seen here in several seasons. There will be the usual matinees of "Humpty Dumpty," that is, on Wednesday and Saturday.

Twelve gals to be selected to support Fred Astaire in "The Gay Divorcee" will have to be good lookers, able to warble and step, besides being enriched with hair that has been untouched by either platinum or henna. . . . William Faversham, like all fathers, told his boy, Philip, to steer shy of his own trade, so Phil started out as a broker, but tomorrow night, in Rochester, the younger Faversham will make his professional stage debut opposite Patricia Collinge in a special company of "Another Language." . . . New York is now seeing Fred Stone and daughter, Dorothy, in "Smiling Faces," which Pittsburgh and other towns saw last season, only now it has been pepped up considerably. . . . Stan Laurel and Oliver Hardy, film comics who spent the summer in Europe, were given a reception in Chicago on their way back to Hollywood to resume the studio grind. . . . Variety Spice Of Clothes

Variety is the spice of clothes according to Dorothy Wilson, Hollywood's latest Cinderella who won a featured role at her first assignment before the sound and sight cameras at the RKO Radio studios.

Dorothy wears fashions that will carry the younger set back to school smartly dressed in "The Age of Consent," the college picture which introduces her to audiences here, there and everywhere.

"The best tip I can give the college girl is to be sure her wardrobe does not become standardized. If variety is the spice of life, it is doubly the spice of clothes.

BICYCLE BRINGS GIRL SLAYER'S ARREST

International News Service.

BRIGUE, Switzerland, Sept. 7.—Unusually simple circumstances surrounded the apprehension of Heinrich Walther, 19, alleged to have confessed the murder of Jerane Iberschoff, American college girl, it was revealed to International News Service today.

Not far from where they found the body of the American girl, Smith College honor student, of Cleveland, O., police found a bicycle which had been reported stolen.

Young Walther already had been arrested and convicted several times for stealing bicycles, so the police sought him out. While questioning him he confessed, they said, to the brutal murder.

He related his story several times without changing it. He said he met Miss Iberschoff, also on a bicycle, at a lonely spot in the mountains. He told police he attempted to embrace her, and when she resisted he struck her with a rock, knocking her unconscious.

He was frightened away, he said, by passersby, and he fled without taking the bicycle.

Walther will not be hanged, since he is under 23, the minimum age at which a convicted person can be sent to the gallows in Switzerland. He is a Swiss, born in a peasant home at Craefchen, in St. Nicholas valley. He appears to be of average mentality, police declared, and not at all imaginative. His confession was straightforward and methodical, according to authorities.

MIX, EX-WIFE FIGHT FOR GIRL

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 7.—(Universal.)—Must 10-year-old Thomasina Mix live with her father, Tom Mix, famous film cowboy, in a house on a hill with a swimming pool and spacious lands, or with her mother, Mrs. Victoria Alazabal, wife of a wealth Argentine, in hotels?

Superior Judge Dudley Valentine was to decide the question today when Mix faces his ex-wife in a contest over the child. The actor seeks her custody on the ground that he has a beautiful home in Beverly Hills where she could romp at will and that if the girl remains with her mother she will be forced into a hotel life.

Coyne Tax Cut Quiz to Open Next Week

—By MARK SHIELDS—

Senator James J. Coyne plans to start his legislative committee at work next week investigating ways and means for reducing the cost of government in Allegheny County. A program has been worked out, and will be adhered to unless unexpected testimony or suggestions switch the plans.

Mr. Shields

The informal discussions Coyne has had with business leaders will be turned to practical service where popular, and administrative officers of the city, county and school board will be consulted. The Senator is particularly interested in savings he believes can be effected in the various taxing divisions.

On this line, however, he is not ready to go the length of abolishing the county delinquent tax collector's fees, which are a 10 per cent penalty now levied for retarded payment of taxes. It is assumed, from things the Senator has said in the past, that this sum will be revised, however, and the tax collector will be permitted to retain no more than half the fees which now go into his pocket, or to the campaign funds of those with whom he is associated.

Penalties on the delinquent taxpayer will be retained, but all above a sum much smaller than now allowed the collector will go into the county treasury. This should result in some reduction of taxes. It is probable also that an effort will be made to have continued the law put on the books in the special session, permitting delinquents to pay their back taxes in installments.

The hearings of the Coyne committee probably will be sporadic. In less than three weeks the Senate Utilities Investigating Committee will be at work in Harrisburg, and Coyne is a member of that group of inquisitors. The importance of the work to be undertaken at the Capital means that every member of the committee will be in constant attendance.

Ainey Death Not to Affect Committee Plans

The death of William D. B. Ainey, former chairman of the Public Service Commission, will have no effect upon the plans of the committee, insofar as it brings about the removal of Mr. Ainey as a witness. It was never intended that he should take the witness stand to reply to questions pertaining to the allegations by Gov. Pinchot that certain gratuities had been tendered to him by utility chiefs—and accepted.

When the first onslaught of Mr. Pinchot against Ainey began early this summer it was recognized that the invalid chairman of the commission could not withstand a siege on the witness stand. It is true he appeared before Gov. Pinchot at an initial hearing, but that required only his presence, with no exertion. He was in a wheel chair, attended by a nurse, and his statement was read by an attorney, who declined to permit any questioning of his client.

Had Mr. Ainey not resigned before he was due to appear before the Governor again, it is assumed that once more his attorney would have acted for him, refusing to subject him to questioning on the count that the Senate and not the Governor should be his judge. Of course, this occasion never arose, because the Senate did seize jurisdiction—belatedly, and not out of his own initiative.

Quite plainly the Senators put it up to Ainey's counsel either to secure his resignation or have him dismissed. To that ultimatum Ainey yielded. Had he not, had he demanded that he be dismissed, I do not believe he would have been called as a witness, but that the Senate out of documentary evidence and the testimony of others would have proceeded.

It was known then that Mr. Ainey probably could not live half an hour under the excitement of a trial, that every few minutes he would require restoratives, and the Senators had a natural antipathy to seeing a tragedy enacted before their eyes.

* * *

Living Involved With Dead Often Protected

Therefore, the committee of which Senator William S. Rial is now chairman, never had any intention of summoning Mr. Ainey when its hearings begin September 26. That his death forecloses inquiry into alleged relations he had with utility magnates is improbable. Even should Mr. Ainey be proven to have accepted the gratuities, he was, despite his force and ability, only incidental to the subject which is under investigation.

It is not the Public Service Commission nor its individual members who should be under scrutiny as much as utilities or their heads as are suspected of trying improperly to influence the commissioners. Such accusations as are made are not so much against Mr. Ainey, or any other commissioner, but against the originators of the basis on which the charges rest.

That is a responsibility which the committee cannot sidestep. It is freely admitted, however, that the death of Mr. Ainey probably will make some difference. It is natural to deal as lightly as possible with the reputations of men unable to defend themselves, and this disposition often acts as a protection for living offenders involved with the dead man.

Few doubt that the scandals of the Harding administration would have been pressed much farther had the former President lived out his term of office.

And we may not have to go farther than Allegheny County for another example of the same principle.

STORE MANAGER SLAYING TOLD AT INQUEST

Nurse Testifies Gun Found in Victim's Pocket

By CHARLES A. EARLEY
Staff Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, Pa., Sept. 7.—James McCloskey, driver of the automobile that carried C. F. Bittner, McCrory store manager, to a hospital after he was fatally shot, testified at the inquest today that Patrolman John Cochran said to him:

"Well, you might as well take me down and put me behind the bars."

The shooting occurred in front of the Washington County courthouse two weeks ago while Patrolman Cochran was taking Bittner to jail following his arrest on a loitering charge. Public opinion was so aroused Coroner William Baker barred all persons except witnesses from the inquest.

McCloskey and Miss Eva Lyons, night nurse at the Washington Hospital, testified the nurse found a .25 caliber revolver in Bittner's right coat pocket. Counsel for Cochran maintains the patrolman fired twice in self-defense. Attorneys for the Bittner family and the store claim Bittner never was known to carry a revolver.

McCloskey testified:

"I told Cochran a gun was found in Bittner's pocket. I could see a different expression light up his face. Cochran was plenty scared. He said a lot of things. He didn't know what he was talking about. He said to me, 'Well, you might as well take me down and put me behind the bars.'"

On the way to the hospital, McCloskey said, Cochran fumbled about Bittner's body and once told McCloskey to drive slower.

Cochran has been free on his own recognizance since the shooting, but suspended from duty.

Bittner came here two years ago to manage the McCrory store. He was prominent in civic and business affairs.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

Don't miss seeing the building of Boulder Dam. It's the biggest thing that's ever been done with water since Noah made the flood look foolish. You know how big the Grand Canyon is. Well, they just stop up one end of it and make the water come out through a drinking fountain.

Will Rogers

They have been bothered with two things. One is silt, and the other is senatorial investigations. They both clog everything up.

It's called the "Hoover Dam" now, subject to election returns of November 8.

LANG'S BOND UP ON DOUGLAS PLOT CHARGE

Contractors and City Employes Sought in Wharf Dispute

One city official waived a hearing for court and posted $2,000 bond and two other city employes and two contractors were being sought today by constables on informations charging "conspiracy to cheat and defraud," sworn out last night by John Douglas, Jr., in his battle to retain possession of the wharf site of his new Union Sand Company on the Allegheny River at the foot of Stanwix street.

The informations were made before Justice of the Peace W. S. Edwards, of Glenfield.

Director Edward G. Lang, of the Department of Public Works, has posted bond. Others named are E. J. Foley, chief clerk of the Bureau of City Property; Edwin McBride, city wharfmaster; George Vang, president of the Iron City Sand Company, and D. G. Aronberg, president of the Aronberg-Fried Company, general contractor on the postoffice.

DOUGLAS WINS POINT

Douglas won the first round in the wharf fight yesterday, when Judge Samuel H. Gardner returned a rule to show cause why the city's $12,250 judgment against Douglas should not be reopened, and granting a stay of execution on the Sheriff's writ giving Douglas an opportunity to remain on the wharf for six more weeks at least, or until the case comes up in the next argument list.

Attorney Walter F. Michael, counsel for Douglas, declared that all equipment which Douglas has placed on the wharf belongs to other owners. City Solicitor T. M. Benner says he will release all floating equipment provided the owners will remove it.

The city has been placed in an embarrassing position, as it has leased the wharf now held by Douglas to the Iron City Sand and Gravel Company and is unable to "deliver" the property.

STRIKE DEADLOCK

In the meantime the strike of the hoisting engineers on the postoffice, in which the main issue is the demand for use of union engineers on sand and gravel hoists, continues in a deadlock. A Chamber of Commerce committee has been interviewing contractors and union officials, but thus far has made no report.

The work on the postoffice is now virtually at a standstill. All of the concrete which can be poured on the building in its present stage has been completed, and the union hoisting engineers who have been working on the Aronberg-Fried Company's gravel float have been laid off.

VOTE PURCHASE CASE FINDINGS AWAITED

Poor Directors Strike At Commissioners for Loan Opposition

Preliminary reports of the Allegheny County Emergency Association's investigations into alleged political favoritism in the distribution of government flour to the needy were expected today.

Criticism has centered on the Twenty-first Ward Relief Association, charged with "buying" votes in the last election with the flour.

Charges, denied, have brought announcement of withdrawal of the association from flour distribution, although S. E. Claney, director of the emergency association, has received no official announcement of the withdrawal.

EXTEND INQUIRY

Meanwhile, the emergency association's investigation was to take in many of 133 agencies entrusted with the distribution in city and county. Although Claney has said the matter will take time, early action was expected in some instances, if favoritism and political bartering is found.

Meanwhile, word passed in the County Building that the Poor Directors are preparing to strike back at the County Commissioners, who have urged Gov. Gifford Pinchot to veto a bill allowing the directors to sell bonds to fund relief indebtedness of the directors up to January 1.

Plans are under consideration, it was learned, for the Poor Board to send all applicants for food and shoes to the County Commissioners after the Poor Board's appropriation of $200,000 for relief, from current funds, is expended by the emergency association, this week.

STATE AID DUE

State aid, insufficient for subsistance rations and not available for purchase of clothing, fuel or payment of rent, was expected this week. But all requests for aid over that available will, if the plan is put into action, be sent to the County Commissioners. A Poor Board official said:

"The County Commissioners are now obstructing our only practicable means of keeping the needy from starving this winter. Let them explain to these destitute applicants then."

In objecting to approval of the bill, the Commissioners offered to make available $100,000 per month—about one-fourth the amount which experts say will be needed during the winter and less than one-half the amount needed now to administer adequate relief.

PLANT REPAIR DRIVE NEAR

The campaign to encourage industrial rehabilitation in the Pittsburgh district will get under way soon, Stanley Anderson, managing director of the work in this district, said today.

The director said members of the rehabilitation committee are forming their plans and hope to have them in operation soon. Letters probably will be written to the heads of industrial concerns, he said, and the benefits of plant expansion and improvements at this time pointed out. The letters will be followed by personal contacts, he said.

RED TAPE HOLDS FOOD FOR NEEDY

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 7.—(INS.)—More than 1,500 hungry men, women and children shivered in line before the local relief headquarters here this morning anxiously awaiting issuance of food orders. However, most of them realized that they could not hope to receive any aid for several days, due to quibbling between state and city officials over the red tape involved in supplying food to the destitute.

Many of the hungry and jobless gathered in front of the relief headquarters as early as last midnight. By dawn hundreds were in line.

Although realizing that food could not be obtained today the line of needy sought the food supply orders so that they may obtain food as soon as it becomes available. Approximately 5,000 formed in line yesterday. But all were turned away empty-handed.

Bad War Debt News Arrives From Europe

—By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER—

Just learned that fate of world depends on how we handle war debts.

However, you can inhale this morose scenario with a grain of explanation. It comes from Europe, the home factory for bad news.

The trade winds haven't blown us a bargain in fifteen years. Our charitable friends over there wouldn't fan a sick ostrich with its own feathers.

It's tough, but we must have the golden gravy. If Europe wants to know how it stands just tell 'em that the beggar on hossback lost another race.

Our income taxes for 1933 will enlighten us a trifle and explain why we should turn the deaf ear to the mock wailing. We're going to take a terrific kick to the pocket. And not a thing there to break the force of the blow.

THE ECLIPSE ON AN EGG: THE MOON, CORONA BOTH THERE

Egg Laid During Eclipse Pictures Sky Event

"Dot," as the hen is called, started cackling shortly after the eclipse began. At 4:30 p. m. when the eclipse reached its highest point in Pittsburgh, "Dot" leaped from the nest, leaving the unusual egg.

On the egg is a brown disc resembling the moon, and surrounding it is a white background that looks like the sun. On the other side of the egg is another larger brown disc.

JUGGLING OF TAX ASSESSMENTS CHARGED TO OFFICIALS

PROBER NAMES CAVANAUGH, M'BRIDE

Burgess John C. Cavanaugh, of Homestead; C. J. McBride, former secretary of the Board for the Assessment and Revision of Taxes; Jess Honse, chairman of Homestead Council; Port Eckles, superintendent of Homestead schools, and Martin Delaney, Homestead councilman, are accused of juggling assessments in Homestead during the 1931 triennial assessment in a report by Leo A. Riordan, chief investigator of the county bureau of investigations and claims.

In a lengthy report made to the Commissioners yesterday, Riordan charges that Cavanaugh and McBride, as members of the tax board, sat in at a meeting in the Homestead Municipal Building with Eckles, Honse and Delaney, and ordered enormous increases of assessments in the Fourth and Fifth wards of Homestead.

VALUES JUMPED

As an example of the increases ordered, one case is cited in the report of a building owned by Katherine R. Botsford, 222 Eighth avenue. Prior to 1931 the property was assessed at $1,100. Cavanaugh and his associates, the report states, ordered this raised to $10,000. The report states:

"Mr. Cavanaugh and his associates, which included Eckles, Honse and Delaney, ordered the assessor to raise this to $10,000, an increase of $8,900, which continued in the same manner throughout this district, with the exceptions of property of Mr. Cavanaugh and other properties, as well as those of officials of the borough of Homestead, where in some cases there were reductions in the assessed valuations in the same vicinity where enormous increases had been ordered against private citizens."

Attached to Riordan's report, which is also signed by George E. Meyers, chairman of the Board for the Assessment and Revision of Taxes, is a detailed summary showing that the total assessed valuation of the two wards was increased 35 per cent.

LARGE INCREASE

The valuation in 1930 was $963,500. In 1931 it was $1,306,355.

Exonerations were granted by Cavanaugh and McBride, according to the report, amounting to 48 per cent of the increased assessment, which were their individual action, according to the report.

It states:

"Cavanaugh and McBride allowed these reductions without consent of the board, as the minute records absolutely do not show any record of any actions on the part of the board allowing any exonerations which appear on this report, which makes these transactions illegal and unlawful."

After hearing the report read, the Commissioners, by resolution, directed that the report and evidence sustaining it be turned over to District Attorney Park.

DOCTOR SLAYS WIFE TO CHEAT POVERTY

International News Service.

BOSTON, Sept. 7.—Behind the bars today Dr. Towneley Thorndike French, 57, son of Henry Willard French, war correspondent, author and lecturer, remained as mysterious as his life.

The scion of a distinguished Hartford, Conn., family, and Harvard Medical School graduate, who had lived in South End lodging house rooms no person but his wife ever was permitted to enter, walked into a police station last night and calmly confessed he killed Mrs. French to "end the misery of poverty." He was asked:

"Why did you kill your wife?"

He replied:

"Why? Why? The passing of a human being is always mysterious—mysterious. You ask me why? Perhaps the psychoanalysts can tell you."

SUPPORTED BY WIFE

Five years ago, Dr. French, who since leaving the State Health Department and "running errands for doctors," as he put it, became a cripple as a result of a fall on the ice. His wife nursed him and supported him. She had been employed recently as an elevator operator.

Because he would not allow even a plumber to enter his lodging-house room it was thought that Dr. French was working on an invention or discovery in medicine.

Limping into the police station alone, Dr. French said to Lieut. Charles W. Miller:

"There's some trouble at No. 4 Melrose street. I shot my wife. She is lying dead in a room there."

SLAIN WHILE SLEEPING

The gray-haired doctor placed a pistol, with one cartridge missing, on the police desk. He continued:

"I killed her because I was tired of seeing her live in abject poverty.

"My first plan was to kill myself. But I thought if I did that she would be left alone to fight the battle. She was out of work, and, being a cripple, I couldn't support her. So I decided suddenly, Labor Day morning, to shoot her as she slept. I felt she would be taken care of that way and the state would take care of me for what time I have yet to live."

Although Dr. French was calm and unemotional, a guard was placed at his cell to prevent possible suicide.

COUNTY CHECKS MORTGAGE

The county legal department has been ordered to check up on the $600,000 mortgage on the City-County Building which matures next year. Commenting on the mortgage, which has been discussed many times at Commissioners' meetings in the past, Commissioner Charles C. McGovern said yesterday:

The county has paid $456,000 interest on this mortgage since 1913 and now we have to dig up the $600,000 to pay it off next year."

Four years ago a sinking fund for the mortgage was established and $40,000 has been set aside annually to take care of it. Of the $160,000 accumulated in this fund $100,000 has been invested in county airport bonds.

CANADA CACHET DATE SET

Stamp collectors in the Pittsburgh area will be interested in the announcement by the Canadian Post Office Department of the opening of regular air mail service between Siscoe, P. Q., and Pascalis, P. Q., on September 15. A special commemorative cachet will be applied to mail carried from Siscoe to Pascalis and from Pascalis to Siscoe.

Covers for these flights must be sent to the district superintendent of postal service at Quebec to reach him not later than Monday bearing Canadian postage at the air mail rate, which is 8 cents for the first ounce, to the United States, and 13 cents for each additional ounce or fraction. All covers must bear the marking "via air mail" and the route desired.

If Canadian postage stamps are not obtainable, postal money order, made out to the Receiver-General of Canada, Ottawa, Canada, should accompany the letters.

Divorce Suit Dropped By Dormont Woman

Mrs. Nora P. Dodd, 2836 West Liberty avenue, Dormont, who several months ago filed a libel in divorce against her husband, charging desertion, has been given leave by Judge Samuel H. Gardner to discontinue the action. No reason was assigned.

Dodd's address was given as 510 Johnston avenue, Connellsville.

2 Teachers Hired For Same Room; Both Retained

Confusion caused by the hiring of two teachers for the same grade at the Noblestown School, Fayette Township, was settled last night at a special meeting of the township school board in Champion School.

Miss M. Seabright, a resident of the township, was named to fill the post after arrangements were made by the board to care for the other teacher elsewhere. Both teachers were in attendance at the school yesterday.

MAN DIES, WIFE HURT IN CRASH

Robert J. Schmid, 40, of 101 Island avenue, McKees Rocks, was fatally and his wife, Alice, 40, seriously injured when their automobile, collided with another car in Bigelow boulevard near Herron avenue, during the rush hour last night.

Schmid suffered a fractured skull when the car overturned. He died in a hospital several hours later. His wife is suffering from a probable fracture of the skull.

The other machine was driven, police said, by J. E. Witherspoon, 53, of 526 North avenue, Wilkinsburg. He was uninjured but Miss Hilda Matson, 23, of 7124 Schoyer avenue, Swissvale, riding with him, suffered bruises. Witherspoon was ordered to post bond for an inquest.

Edna Wason, 5, of 2138 Merriman way, was in St. Joseph's Hospital today with injuries suffered when she was struck by an automobile at South Twenty-first and Wharton streets, yesterday.

Struck by an automobile in Butler street, near McCandless avenue, yesterday, Bobbie Gizar, 7, of 5315 Holmes street, was treated for a scalp laceration.

Robert Ehrlich, 7, of 4118 Foster street, suffered a cut over the left eye when struck by an automobile as he ran across the street in front of his home yesterday. He was taken to St. Margaret's Hospital.

McKeesport Woman Loses Raid Forfeit

Bella Halpers, 614 Mulberry street, McKeesport, who was arrested charged with keeping a disorderly house after a raid last night, forfeited $105 by failure to appear in McKeesport Police Court today. Police reported seizing a small quantity of liquor.

FARMERS WAIT PEACE PARLEY

Picketing on the highways leading into Sioux City and other Iowa centers diminished, and trucks, loaded with agricultural produce, found lessening resistance.

Meeting at Des Moines, leaders of the Iowa Farm Holiday Association indicated they contemplate no further strike activities until the governors' conference, summoned to deal with the critical conditions of the midwestern farm belt, has had an opportunity to tackle the problems of agriculture.

YOUNG ELOPERS HELD HERE

A youthful pair who came from Farrell, Pa., to Pittsburgh to be married were in custody of police pending a hearing in Morals Court today.

Michael Evans, 20, was charged with being a suspicious person, and his intended bride, Edith Smith, 16, with being a runaway. They told police they left home August 18, and arrived here yesterday. Evans had only $2. He arranged for transfer of $9 from a bank in Farrell to the Hilltop Savings and Trust Company. When he went there for it, bank officials detained him until police arrived.

Evans said his and the girl's parents objected to their marriage because of their youth, so they decided to run away. They will be turned over to the Farrell police.

Fall Over Stone Injures Aged Man

Jerry McDonough, 66, of 801 Fifth avenue, rear, McKeesport, was in the McKeesport Hospital today with a fractured right shoulder, suffered when he tripped over a stone late yesterday while walking in Jerome street, according to a hospital report.

SEEK ROAD JOBS FOR VETERANS

State road jobs may be obtained for unemployed veterans, it was indicated at the annual meeting of the Allegheny county committee of the American Legion in Fort Pitt Hotel, at which Robert J. Cochrane, Jr., was elected county commander.

Names of unemployed veterans are to be sent state headquarters of the Legion for listing with state officials, it was stated.

Cochrane succeeds John J. Deller. Other officers named were: George E. Grimm, senior vice commander; S. C. Goodnough, junior vice commander, and Walter P. Grimm, treasurer. Appointee officers named by Cochrane were: Howard F. Croushore, adjutant; John T. Ayres, sergeant-at-arms, and the Rev. Grover E. Swoyer, chaplain.

The retiring commander denied reports of huge property damage due to the over-hilarious Legionnaires. He said he had been assured Pittsburgh would welcome the national convention of the Legion, which he proposed inviting in 1935.

BONUS CONVENTION CALLED, NEW MARCH THREATENED

DEMAND HOOVER SUPPLY CAMP EQUIPMENT

UNIONTOWN, Sept. 7.—Threat of another march of bonus veterans on the national capital came today from Capt. Hoke Smith, in charge of Camp Sherry, B. E. F. headquarters near here, as a call was issued for a national B. E. F. convention at the camp October 4.

At the convention an executive committee will be named to visit President Hoover. The members will be instructed to request the equipment furnished 42,000 American Legionnaires for accommodations at the national convention in Portland and also other equipment and clothing. The use of concentration camps established during the war will be asked by the executive committee. Smith declared:

"In case of refusal we will mass many thousands of men at Camp Sherry and Fort Necessity October 20 and again march on Washington.

"We will spend the winter in the halls of the House, Senate and the Capitol in order to impress our demands."

Smith declared that it is his opinion that Commander W. W. Waters is trying to dodge him and that a showdown is imperative. He said:

"I still am loyal to Commander Waters, but all of us at Camp Sherry desire an immediate showdown. We are planning to halt Waters' plane at the Allegheny County Airport tomorrow if possible as the commander passes this way in his flight from Newark, N. J., to Portland, Ore."

Waters Hunts Cash For Convention Trip

NEW YORK, Sept. 7.—(INS.)—En route to Portland, Ore., to attend the American Legion's national convention, Walter W. Waters, commander of the Bonus Expeditionary Force, was here today "to raise some money," he said, for his trip.

Seized Radio Held $190, Woman Charges

BALTIMORE, Sept. 7.—(AP.)—Explaining that she had used the family radio, purchased on the installment plan, for hiding money, Mrs. Tillie Lipsitz filed suit in Superior Court for return of $190. Her attorney said the radio was removed from the house on August 1 when "apparently an installment on the machine was not paid." He said the radio company denied any knowledge of the money.

Presidential Trend by States

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7.—The tabulation that follows shows the total vote thus far recorded for President Hoover and Gov. Roosevelt in the nation-wide presidential poll of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph in co-operation with all the other Hearst morning, evening and Sunday papers in the United States. It also shows the majority that each candidate has in each state in which he is leading. In addition it gives the gain of each candidate on the latest returns received from each state as compared with the last preceding report from the state. These state reports are usually a week apart. The final feature of this table shows the net gain of each candidate in each state where he has improved his position as compared with the preceding report from that state.

HOOVER'S GAIN CONTINUES IN NEW ENGLAND

By COLE E. MORGAN,
Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7.—The swing of New England to Gov. Roosevelt, promised by Democratic leaders following his Bridgeport speech last week, has yet to materialize.

New returns from the six New England states recorded today in the nation-wide presidential poll of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph in co-operation with all the other Hearst morning, evening and Sunday papers in the United States, show President Hoover's majorities continuing to climb throughout that region.

Hoover added 2,489 to his previous 6,666 New England vote, bringing his total to 9,155.

Gov. Roosevelt added but 1,139 to his previous 3,993, bringing his total to 5,132.

MAJORITY RAISED

The net result was to raise Hoover's New England majority to 4,023 from last week's 2,673 and to make him a 64 per cent favorite in that section.

It was a little early, however, for the possible effect of Roosevelt's Bridgeport speech to be reflected in the poll returns.

Likewise, the present figures do not measure what effect Calvin Coolidge's magazine article indorsing the Hoover candidacy may have had in the former President's home section.

Those influences may register themselves in more conclusive form in the current week's poll ballots from New England voters. The situation in New England is of particular interest at this time.

TEST IN MAINE

The Maine gubernatorial and congressional elections are to be held next Monday. The Maine balloting will give the first actual test at the ballot box since the nominating conventions.

While Maine generally is held up by Republicans as a November barometer it does not always work out that "as Maine goes so goes the nation."

With the strong showing Roosevelt is making throughout the West this may be one of those years that Maine may fail in its prophetic role.

Sharon Wells Closed To Check Typhoid

SHARON, Pa., Sept. 7.—Several public wells have been closed in an effort to reduce the number of typhoid fever cases in the city. Ten persons are ill with the disease, and city health authorities are taking every precaution to prevent its spread.

Sharpsburg Man, Hit By Own Truck, Dies

Sam VanAsdale, 51, of 226 Fifteenth street, Sharpsburg, died today in St. John's Hospital from injuries he received when hit by a truck in Main street, Sharpsburg, August 29, according to a report to the coroner. The hospital report said VanAsdale, a truck driver, was hurt when his truck ran backward and hit him.

Wife Sees Golfer Score Ace, Faints

KILLDEER, N. D., Sept. 7.—(AP.)—When Dr. Ivar L. Aaser scored an ace with a 160-yard drive on the local golf course his wife, playing with him, was even more shocked. She fainted, but revived quickly.

England Slowly Sinks Into Sea, Expert Says

YORK, England, Sept. 7.—(AP.)—England is sinking gradually to sea level at the rate of nine inches every 100 years, Capt. T. E. Longfield, ordnance survey expert, told the British Association of Scientists yesterday. He said:

"The evidence seems conclusive, that the level of high tide 2,000 years ago must have been at least 15 feet lower than at present."

The Bank of England in London has sunk more than six inches since 1868, and St. Paul's Cathedral is gradually tilting over from the effects of the subsidence, he said.

FLOOD SPREADS IN TEXAS

BROWNSVILLE, Tex., Sept. 7.—The Rio Grande flood that took toll of life at Laredo and other upstream cities, was spreading out over the lower valley today. The crest was not expected to pass here before today.

While thousands of acres of rich agricultural and orchard land were being flooded, reading of river gauges upstream indicated the volume of water here would not be so great as engineers first estimated.

At Rio Grande City the water reached 35 feet. The record for that station is 36½. At Roma the international bridge was threatened and traffic was halted.

Reports from Laredo said that the flood was rapidly receding there and that traffic over the international bridge had been restored to normal.

30 Campers Saved From Flooded Isle

YORK, Ontario, Sept. 7.—(AP.)—Marooned by flood water on a small Grand River island for more than 30 hours, 30 campers were rescued late yesterday, apparently little the worse for their experience.

Braving a 10-mile current in a small rowboat, Joseph Smith and Hugh Devlin, of Hamilton, brought the campers to the mainland in several trips across the dangerous strip of water.

Estate Shrinkage Disclosed by Will

Apparent shrinkage in the estate of Max Adler, McKeesport grocer, recent victim of carbon monoxide fumes from his automobile, was disclosed by his will filed for probate today disposing of property valued at $3,000. The will, dated December 31, 1925, provided for a life income of $60 a month for his wife, Elizabeth, and $50 a month for his daughter, Mrs. H. Julia Schwartz. The First National Bank of McKeesport was named executor.

Mrs. March, Actor's Wife, to Adopt Baby

CHICAGO, Sept. 7.—(AP.)—The Daily Times says it learned Mrs. Frederic March, wife of the screen actor, planned within the next few weeks to adopt a baby. The baby will be obtained from an Evanston orphanage, the paper said. It was not learned whether Mr. and Mrs. March would adopt a girl or a boy.

CITY ORCHIDS THRIVE

Pittsburgh's $38,000 collection of prized orchids is getting along very well without the tender ministrations of a $2,100-a-year orchid grower. This was definitely established today by a careful inspection of the aristocratic plants which are thriving in Phipps Conservatory, Schenley Park, along with plebian roses and geraniums.

When the rare orchids were donated to the city last spring by Mrs. C. D. Armstrong, Public Works Director Edward G. Lang told City Council that it was necessary to hire an "orchid grower" at $2,100 a year to preserve the collection.

President of Council John S. Herron blocked the appointment on the grounds that "an orchid grower in these times might be misunderstood."

Meanwhile, Alcibeades Cynshia, Queen of the Belgians, Alfred Demmods and Prospero and all the other 600 varieties of orchids are holding their own, and not one has died during their stay in Schenley Park, according to the gardeners.

BROTHER SHOT, MAN ARRESTED

John Zeigler, of Bower Hill road, Stowe Township, today was held in the county jail in connection with the shooting of his brother, Stephen, during a party in their home, according to county detectives. Three shotguns were reported confiscated in the house when detectives arrested Zeigler.

The shooting occurred after Stephen had ordered his brother to quit drinking, detectives said. John denied the shooting.

STOMACH TROUBLE

● For four years I suffered with my stomach. About a month ago I began using ACIDINE," says Dorothy L. Usher, Minneapolis, Minn. "Today I am a well woman and am eating everything. ACIDINE has made my life worth living again."

● Just another of the thousands relieved by new formula ACIDINE. There isn't a known remedy nearly so effective for the successful treatment of bad stomach caused by excess acidity, which results in gassy belchings, sourness, pain after eating, headache and sleeplessness.

DEDICATION of the GEORGE WESTINGHOUSE BRIDGE

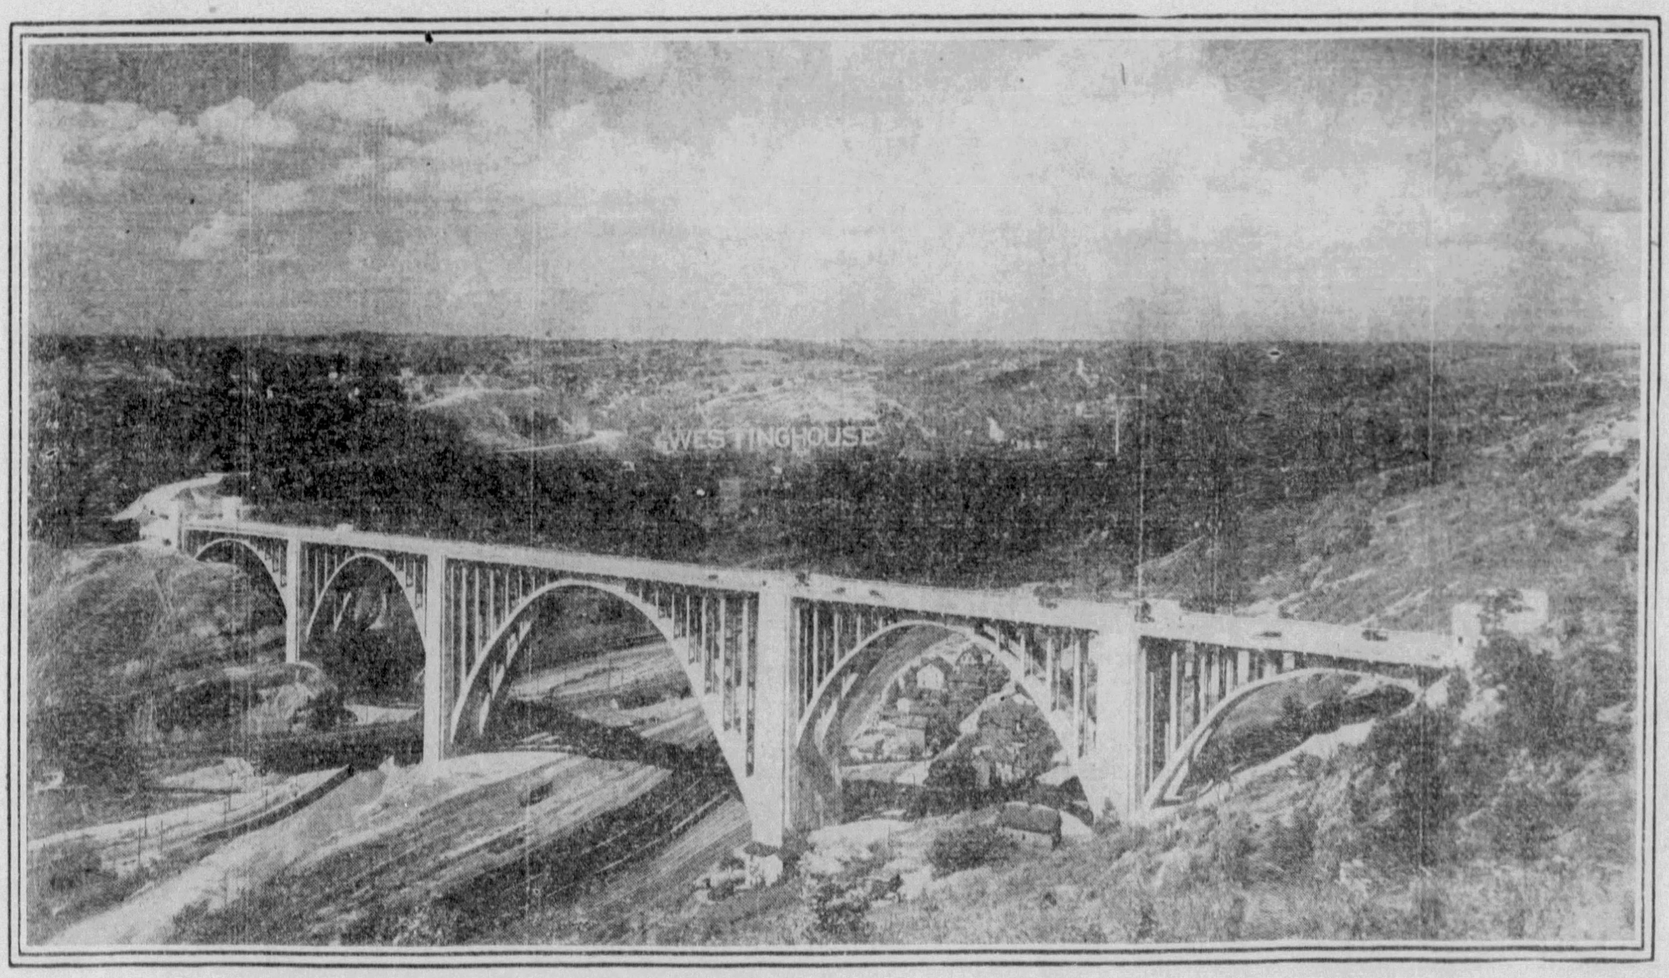
Saturday, September 10, at 2:30 p. m.



--Spanning the Turtle Creek Valley on the Lincoln Highway at East Pittsburgh

You are cordially invited by the Commissioners of Allegheny County, through the Chamber of Commerce of Pittsburgh, to attend the dedication and official opening of the George Westinghouse Bridge at East Pittsburgh on Saturday, September 10, at 2:30 p. m.

Prominent State and County officials with officers of the Westinghouse Industries will participate in the ceremony.

This new bridge, which forms a part of the relocated famous Lincoln Highway, carries the motorist from crest to crest of the deep-cut Turtle Creek Valley, 200 feet above the Pennsylvania Railroad tracks, and commands a panoramic view of some of the great industrial developments founded by George Westinghouse.

A notable engineering feat, the bridge is 1,510 feet long from face to face of abutments, its central span being the longest reinforced concrete arch in the United States.

Westinghouse Air Brake Co. + Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Co. + Union Switch & Signal Co.

'After Labor Day' Outlook Best in Years

By B. C. FORBES

THE TWO most notable, most discussed dates on America's business calendar are "after Labor Day" and "after New Year." They have come to be invested with almost magical significance.

This is because of the inherent hopefulness and optimism of the American people.

No matter how drab, dull and drooping things may be during summer months, faith rises that the arrival of fall will usher in improvement.

B. C. Forbes

If the closing months of a year disappoint, the turning of a new leaf on the scroll of time is anticipated with at least some measure of cheerfulness.

SELDOM, IF EVER, IN MY HUMBLE OPINION, HAS FAITH IN "AFTER LABOR DAY" BEEN MORE SOUNDLY JUSTIFIED THAN NOW.

GO BACK four years. The 1928 pace had become so swift that cautious citizens began to feel apprehensive even before Labor Day. Already it was becoming rather clear that the boom was likely to end disastrously. Therefore, the 1928 Labor Day warranted hesitancy rather than hopefulness.

LONG BEFORE LABOR DAY, 1929, the handwriting had become so plain that anyone could read it—and realize that the inevitable collapse was imminent. Indeed, indications that reaction had set in were discernible before Labor Day. A few weeks later, pandemonium raged.

THIS WRITER, in common with many others, felt that the deflation in securities had been carried needlessly far in this panic, just as had been the case in other panics. The very substantial recovery achieved in the immediately following months seemed to uphold that judgment—although the desirability of realizing profits on some panic purchases was not then overlooked.

BY Labor Day, 1930, depression had taken such a grip of the country that confidence was shattered.

LABOR DAY a year ago found conditions distinctly less promising than conditions are today. Sentiment was shot to pieces. In the highest circles pessimism was deepest. Many sincerely felt that the whole country was lurching towards chaos. Conditions abroad were viewed as equally ominous.

THIS YEAR we enter "after Labor Day" in a very different frame of mind and amid very different conditions, very different prospects.

"Ninety per cent of our troubles are now behind us," an executive of America's foremost banking institution assures me.

The nation now has the will to raise itself out of the slough of despond. That is supremely important.

Not only so, but, regardless of what may or may not be in store, very encouraging actual progress toward recovery already has been registered.

The improvement in security values, both stocks and bonds, has been phenomenal since the turn of the year. The same can be said of our vitally important cash crop, cotton. Also of the humble but ubiquitous pig, the bread-and-butter of a vast number of families. Other livestock have advanced. So have grains. Ditto most metals, oil, rubber, sugar, coffee, wool, rayon, silk, hides, dairy products.

When you have very substantial betterment in monetary conditions, in investments, in agriculture and in such elementary industries as food and clothing, you have promising foundations for real all around prosperity.

TRUE, THERE are still ugly flies in the ointment, notably appalling unemployment, impossibly burdensome taxes, demoralized foreign trade, unsatisfactory conditions in transportation and most "heavy" industries, under-buying, etc., etc.

BUT NO NATION can vault from the quicksands of panic to the summits of prosperity in the twinkling of an eye.

It is something—it is much—that we have confidently begun the climb upwards.

Bank Receiver Wins Over Stockholders

CINCINNATI, Sept. 7.—Paul C. Keyes, receiver for the National Bank of Kentucky, has been granted a verdict of $4,165,175 against several former stockholders of the bank. Federal Judge A. M. J. Cochran held that stockholders were liable for double assessment, even though they turned over their stock to a trustee before failure of the bank in November, 1930.

Bancokentucky Company, N. A., holding company, which acquired control of the National Bank of Kentucky, is liable for $4,098,457 under the court's ruling.

A.P.I. Oil Figures Higher for Week

NEW YORK, Sept. 7.—Domestic crude oil output during the week ended September 3 averaged 2,127,250 barrels daily, an increase of 13,250 barrels daily over the previous week, according to the American Petroleum Institute.

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 7.—The executive committee on equitable curtailment has adopted a resolution fixing the state oil allowable as of October 1 at 448,200 barrels, as compared with the current allowable of 475,600 barrels.

MARKET GAINS ON MODERATE TRADING

NEW YORK, Sept. 7.—(AP.)—With traders still eager to "buy on reactions," the stock market had little difficulty in resuming its advance today, after the setback late yesterday.

Trading was in moderate volume, and for the most part, advances were modest. Outside of copper, the market received little fresh stimulus from commodities. Nevertheless, subject to occasional interruptions, the list moved almost steadily forward, with utilities, coppers, oils and miscellaneous industrials in the lead.

In the thinly traded copper issues, Federal Mining appeared at 32, up 14 points, and Utah at 71, up 10 points. Among miscellaneous issues up 2 to 3 points were American Telephone, North American, Stone & Webster, American Smelting, National Cash Register, Johns Manville, Northern Pacific, Southern Pacific, Santa Fe, United Aircraft and Western Union. Among many issues up a point or more were United States Steel, General Motors, Radio Corporation, International Telephone, American Can, Sears Roebuck, Penney, International Harvester, Republic Steel, American Rolling Mill, McKeesport, Standard Oil of California, Atlantic Refining, General Foods, American Sugar, Borden and others.

Bears showed little courage in opposing the advance, although some quarters turned to the view that the market was over-ripe for a reaction, and a little short selling was reported during the first few minutes.

Buying of utilities was accompanied by reports that a substantial pickup in power consumption during September was anticipated by utility executives. The fresh strength of coppers followed a jacking up of the domestic price by a full ¼ of a cent to 6¼ cents a pound, and active talk in the trade of 7 cent copper.

Brokers reported considerable pool or syndicate activity in a number of specialties, some of which appeared in long strings of transactions on the ticker tape.

GRAIN MARKET TAKES DROP

CHICAGO, Sept. 7.—Grain prices turned downward today after a show of firmness at the start. Initial gains were ascribed to an unofficial Canadian wheat crop estimate which was construed as bullish, but new buying lacked volume. Opening unchanged to ⅜c higher, wheat afterward declined all around. Corn started unchanged to ⅜c lower and continued to sag.

Wheat traders took much notice of assertions that the chief significance of the farm board's new policy of stoppage of sales of government financed wheat until next year lay in the fact that the farm board had been granted a new credit of $50,000,000 from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation. It was contended that as a result of this credit the liquidation of farm board sponsored commodity holdings had merely been postponed, not accomplished, and that the postponement would be at the expense of people who had grain and cotton to sell next year.

DISCARDED VET GREAT AID TO YANKS

SPEAKING OF THE pennant parts played this season by Tony Lazzeri, Riggs Stephenson, Mark Koenig and others who were thought to have neared the end of the major league road, how about adding Joe Sewell to the list? That veteran is one of the season's standouts. At third base for the Yankees he has put up a whale of a game all year, has been the balance wheel of the New York infield, and in addition to his steady defensive work he has been a big offensive factor, even in Joe McCarthy's exceptional array of hitters, with an average consistently around .300.

Joe Sewell

The Yanks got Sewell as a gift a year ago last spring, Cleveland having released him unconditionally. He played in 130 games in 1931 and batted .302. This year, after trying Lyn Lary and Frank Crosetti at third base, McCarthy sent Sewell back to the hot corner, and the veteran, playing in more than 100 games, has been an important cog in the pennant combination. Cleveland's loss is just another instance of a fine ball player being released entirely too soon. Sewell will be 34 next month, but still is far superior to many younger infielders.

THE FACT THAT the Yankees have gone through 136 games this year (counting the protested Detroit event) without being shut out, to set a new record for a major league season, doesn't show the full length of the drive during which they have escaped whitewash.

They have not been blanked since Wilcy Moore, now a teammate, beat George Pipgras 1 to 0 in the second game of a doubleheader in Boston on August 2, last year. The McCarthys scored in every one of 54 games during the remainder of that race, so that their actual record up to date is 190 straight games without being shut out.

YOU CAN'T GET a definite line on a young ball player in a couple of games, but Pittsburgh fans will be surprised if Joe Medwick, new Cardinal outfielder, doesn't prove one of the best recruits in the majors next year.

Patrons of the Texas League, where Medwick played for Houston, may have stretched things a bit in saying he possessed Ty Cobb's daring, George Sisler's skill and Pepper Martin's strength, but the youngster surely does appear to have a world of native ability and shows all the earmarks of a coming topliner.

"IT ISN'T LUCK that's keeping the Cubs up there," commented Frankie Frisch. "They get the breaks, sure, but they make them and then take advantage of them. That's baseball, and championship baseball at that. They have just the proper amount of youth to instill the spirit of hustle, and the age to supply the experience and balance. And when somebody's ready to hand you $5,000 or better for that world series play, it's worth working for. It's just like finding money. I know. I went for it myself seven times. I think the Cubs have a great chance to beat the Yankees, too. I pick Ruffing as the pitcher to give Chicago the most trouble." Frisch looks for a great money series, calling it a natural, and thinks the individual winning end may reach $6,000.

Donie Bush

TWO FORMER PIRATE figures will match wits as opposing generals this fall in the "little world series," the annual post-season tussle between the pennant-winning clubs of the American Association and the International League.

Al Mamaux, native Pittsburgher and one-time Corsair pitcher, has the International pennant already sewed up for Newark, and Donie Bush, erstwhile Buccaneer pilot, is almost as good as in with Minneapolis in the Association. With Charley Grimm directing the Cubs in the major league derby, the Pirates will be pretty well represented in the post-season fighting.

YOUNG ED WALSH, who has just been recalled by the White Sox owners, won 19 games for Oakland in the Coast League, while losing 14. Frank Shellenback, 20 and 9, was the first to win 20 victories. Davis, of San Francisco, has won 19 and lost 12.

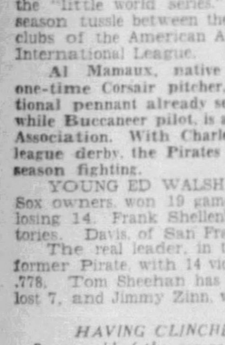
The real leader, in the matter of percentage, is Louis Koupal, former Pirate, with 14 victories and only four defeats for a mark of .778. Tom Sheehan has won 9 and lost 4; Emil Yde, won 11 and lost 7, and Jimmy Zinn, won 16 and lost 13.

HAVING CLINCHED HIS right to recognition as the leading 2-year-old of the season by winning the Hopeful Stakes in decisive style, Ladysman is now being generally picked to climax his string of achievements by taking the rich Futurity. If he gets away with the double feat it will be a case of blood repeating, as Ladysman will be duplicating the performance of his daddy, Pompey, which won both the Hopeful and the Futurity in 1925. Already the greatest money-winning juvenile of the year, with $101,135 to his credit, Ladysman will add close to $100,000 to his total if he takes the Futurity. W. R. Coe's star colt has five victories and one second to show for seven starts.

ANOTHER ORGANIZATION THAT objects so strongly to the changes made in the football rules for this year that it will pay no attention to them is the Michigan Professional League. At a meeting of the managers of the various teams in the loop it was decided to play all games of 1932 under the old rules.

In explanation of the action, the view was expressed that with the new rules in force the gridiron sport "will resemble the game of touch football played by boys." The league was particularly opposed to recognizing the rule forbidding a flying tackle and the one that makes the ball dead when any part of the carrier's person except his hands or feet touches the ground whether or not he is in the grasp of an opponent.

COAST REPORTS SAY that when Pop Warner brings his Stanford football team to Pittsburgh on November 26 the Panthers will find themselves up against one of the strongest outfits the Old Fox has developed in recent years. Eighteen letter men are back. Six of them were regulars last year. Replacements for the missing regulars of 1931 are plentiful.



Pop Warner

Besides, coaching changes are expected to improve the spirit of the squad. Chuck Winterburn, former backfield coach, was none too popular with the players. He has been shifted to the freshmen. Rabbit Bradshaw succeeds him and can do more with the candidates because they like him. The addition of Ernie Nevers to the coaching staff also is expected to help.

WARNER'S RETURNING REGULARS are Bill Daub and Don Colvin, at the ends; Bill Corbus, at guard; Gordon Campbell and Ernie Caddel, halfbacks, and Jack Hillman, at fullback. The last named is a brother of Harry Hillman, who captained last year's team. Campbell, a fine passer and runner, may be moved to quarterback, to make room at left half for Stan Anderson, rated the best kicker Stanford has had since Dink Templeton. Leland Blanchard, new center, is being called a second Walter Heinecke. George Grey and Henri Laborde are experienced reserve tackles from 1931 to replace Ehrhorn and Hand, and there are five others in line for substitute roles. Ted Kite is rated the best prospect for the open guard post, with two subs from last year and three promising sophomores also available. Lipscomb, Minckler and Walker are added candidates for the backfield.

UTILITY STAR ATTRACTS EYE OF TERRY

NEW YORK, Sept. 7.—Bill Terry, manager of the New York Giants, is said to be eager to acquire Shortstop Tommy Thevenow, of the Pirates, according to well-founded reports in the camp of the Pittsburgh club.

Terry's "case" on Thevenow developed even before Shortstop Eddie Marshall was "beaned" with one of Van Mungo's fast balls. When the Giants were in Pittsburgh recently, Terry is reported to have expressed admiration for the work of the clever Thevenow, but, of course, he could not make any overtures at the time owing to the laws of the game on "tampering."

The New York officials, however, hardly could be charged with "tampering" were they to take up the matter of a deal for a utility infielder. Terry is in desperate straits for a good shortfielder and he has been ever since he took hold of the Giants. The uncertainty concerning Travis Jackson's future adds to Bill's woes.

PLAYERS BOOST HIM

Thevenow is regarded as a "baseball player's player." The fans in the bleachers often will overlook the team qualities of the quiet infielder, but his value is not lost on those who play against him each day. And this goes for his teammates also.

But Terry will have to offer something big to get Thevenow away from George Gibson. On two or three occasions this year, Gibby had to call on Tommy for emergency roles. In every instance the brilliant fielder responded and he enhanced his value by inserting many a timely basehit into Pirate victories.

FINE TEAM WORKER

The 10-game winning streak of the Pirates is partly due to the team-play faculties of Thevenow. Shortstop Floyd Vaughan was injured early in the drive, but when Thevenow moved in the Buccos clicked faster than before. Moreover, Tommy's batting in the streak has been very satisfactory. He is the sort of hitter who makes most of his safeties when men are on the bases.

Thevenow, by the way, reached his twenty-ninth birthday yesterday. He should be a great shortstop for many years to come. While he has always been regarded as a light hitter, his mark for years in the majors up to this season is .244.

Outsider Annexes St. Leger Stakes

DONCASTER, Eng., Sept. 7.—(AP.)—The Aga Khan's Firdaussi, an outsider, today won the classic St. Leger Stakes for 3-year-olds at a mile, six furlongs and 132 yards.

The Aga Khan's Dastur was second and Mrs. C. Rich's Silvermere was third. Nineteen of the leading 3-year-olds of the English turf ran. Firdaussi is by Pharos from Brownhylda.

The race, which carries an added value of 4,000 sovereigns, was worth about $60,000 to the winner.

Firdaussi was 20-1 in the betting, Dastur 6-1 and Silvermere 33-1.

LANDIS CALLS SERIES CONFAB

NEW YORK, Sept. 7.—(AP.)—Kenesaw M. Landis, high commissioner of baseball, is in town to make arrangements for the forthcoming world series.

The commissioner has called a meeting of representatives of the three leading clubs in each league for Friday, when all details of the series will be worked out. Invitations are to be sent to the New York Yankees, Philadelphia Athletics and Washington Senators, of the American League, and the Chicago Cubs, Pittsburgh Pirates and Brooklyn Dodgers, of the National.

The series will open this year in the bailiwick of the American League champions.

BUCS TO BE REPRESENTED

Sam Watters, vice president and secretary of the Pittsburgh Baseball Club, will represent the Pirates at the world series plans meeting to be held in New York Friday, President William E. Benswanger said today.

Watters is traveling with the Bucs in the East. Because Friday is an open date on the Pirate slate, he will be free to attend the parley.

SOUTHPAW SETS COURSE MARK

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. Va., Sept. 7.—(AP.)—Swinging a southpaw club, Everett G. Livesay hammered out a 68 to register a new amateur mark for the Greenbrier No. 3 course yesterday as play advanced in the 72 holes of medal fight in the first tourney of the Lefthanders' Golf Association.

Duncan Thompson, of Syracuse, N. Y., was three strokes behind Livesay for the 18 holes. Ben Richter, St. Louis pro, finished 36 putts in 67-74—141 to tie the course record for professionals.

SPORT VIGNETTES

A smallish, friendly man who squints from behind heavy glasses recently seconded four winners in as many bouts on a single boxing card in Pittsburgh . . . In other words, he came off with all of the honors of the show . . . He was Willus Britt, a newcomer here, but a veteran manager and second of fisticians, who has roamed the land . . . The boxers he handled were from Bunny Buntach's stable and included George Panka, Joe Marcus and two of the three fighting Clements brothers, Lloyd and Jerry.

Last Sunday, Britt celebrated the twenty-ninth anniversary of his connection with the ring . . . And he's only 48 years old . . . He was born on Telegraph Hill, in San Francisco, and early began to evince an interest in fighters and their doings and began knocking around with them . . . He has made three trips to Australia, one to France, two to Germany, six to England, one to South Africa and several to Cuba, while he has crossed the span of the United States no less than 30 times in the interest of the pugilistic science.

Twenty-two years ago, Britt had the first real boxing manager's office in New York, and he says his office boy was none other than Joe Jacobs, manager of Max Schmeling, the recent heavyweight champion . . . He was affiliated with Jim Puckley at the old Sharkey A. A., in New York, and helped to handle, among others, Harlem Tommy Murphy and Gunboat Smith . . . The former now is in the real estate business in Brooklyn and the latter is an ace referee in New York . . . Among his proteges were Eddie Mead, who sold soda pop at the Sharkey Club and went on to pilot Joe Lynch to the bantamweight title twice, and still is active as a manager, with headquarters in Cleveland; the late Jack Bulger, Mickey Walker's first manager; Nat Rodgers, who was assistant to Tom McArdle when the latter was the matchmaker for Madison Square Garden in New York, and Eddie Ross, now a second and manager in Baltimore.

Willus wears those cheaters these days because he wouldn't see a promoter, the late Sammy Harris, stuck in Baltimore one night . . . He took Billy Casper, of Buffalo, to the Oriole City to box the great George (K. O.) Chaney, back in 1917 . . . After weighing in for the battle, in the Lyric Theater, Casper disappeared from his hotel, and Britt took his place in the ring to save the show . . . He received a drubbing and finally was knocked out in the third round . . . His optic nerves were injured by the knockout blow, and he's had to wear glasses ever since . . . Willus likes Pittsburgh and the Pittsburgh folks, and he plans to make his home here permanently.—HARRY KECK.

GOLFERS PREP FOR AMATEUR

BALTIMORE, Sept. 7.—(AP.)—The first of the golfers who next week will seek the National Amateur golf title over the Five Farms course, today spent the second day in tuning up for the classic.

Chandler Egan, of Del Monte, Cal., led the early arrivals on the course yesterday. Egan was the National Amateur titleholder in 1904 and 1905. With Sam Parry, of Birmingham, he practiced several tee shots and studied the layout.

Other low scores were: James C. Manion, of St. Louis, with a 74; F. C. Stevens, of Hollywood, Cal., 75; Ernie Caldwell, of Baltimore, 75, and Robert Sweeney, of Princess Golf Club, England, 78.

PIRATE ROAD RECORD BEST

Associated Press.

The Chicago Cubs are not the best road club in the National League, but there's nothing in the records to indicate they'll lose much of their present six-game lead on their current eastern invasion.

The second-place Pittsburgh Pirates can boast a better record on the road, but the Cubs have overcome this by a vastly superior showing at home. Chicago has played .718 ball at home and .459 on the road. The figures for Pittsburgh are .592 at home and .500 on the road.

Here's how the two contenders have fared this year:

AT HOME	Won	Lost	Pct.
Chicago	51	20	.718
Pittsburgh	45	31	.592
AWAY
	Won	Lost	Pct.
Pittsburgh	29	29	.500
Chicago	28	33	.459

The remainder of the schedule also favors the Cubs, six of whose remaining 22 games will be played at Chicago. Pittsburgh must play all of its remaining 20 games on the road.

There's just a chance that the Pirates can pick up enough ground in the next couple of weeks to make a crucial series out of the four games they will play with the Cubs at Wrigley Field September 20, 21 and 22.

Action in the major leagues yesterday was restricted entirely to one double-header in the American League, the Cleveland Indians taking the St. Louis Browns over the hurdles twice, 4-3 and 6-0.

Yanks Made 2-1 Series Favorite

NEW YORK, Sept. 7.—(INS.)—The New York Yankees today were favored in the first bets placed on the forthcoming world baseball series. The first odds offered were 2 to 1 in favor of the New Yorkers.

Betting commissioners said the odds would probably be 5 to 3 in favor of the Yanks when the series opens.

TECH TO HOLD INITIAL DRILL TOMORROW

By JESS CARVER

Pitt's football argosy pokes its nose into as turbulent a gridiron sea as ever has beset a local collegiate craft today as Coach Jock Sutherland pilots his varsity squad out of town this afternoon, bound for the solitude of Camp Hamilton.

More trials and tribulations than even Job could imagine are in store for the Panther gridders, who are confronted with the prospect of engaging in as rugged a schedule as lies in store for any eleven in the land. The two weeks in the mountain retreat will be busy ones. It's no pink tea that Coach Jock is taking his laddies to today.

40 MEN IN SQUAD

Forty men composed the array checked in today. In addition to the players, five assistant coaches, including Andy Gustafson, first assistant, and Eddie Baker, Bill Kern, Ray Montgomery and Hank Hangartner accompanied the party, along with Trainer Bud Moore, Dr. A. R. H. Shanor, team physician, and Frank Carver, publicity man.

In the 19 years that Pitt has trained at Camp Hamilton, and 19 years are a lot of years, even if you are serving a life sentence, never has a Panther mentor, Joe Duff, Warner or any of the rest of 'em, been up against the task Sutherland faces this year. He has more good backs than he can count, but is without a single really experienced lineman.

There only are supposed to be two really sure pop things in this life—death and taxes—but it is a pretty good 8 to 10 bet that Jock Sutherland always will be able to manufacture a line that will ride along with the best of them.

The first workout will be held no later than tomorrow morning, two a day being scheduled for the two weeks the anthers remain in camp.

TECH STARS ARRIVE

While Pitt spends most of the day traveling and getting set, the hopefuls at Carnegie Tech are being issued equipment and assigned to tent and cot space in the Tartan Bowl, where tomorrow, the initial drill of the season will be held.

Judge Wally Steffen, of Chicago, advisory coach, will be on hand for the pre-season training program and will work along with Coach Bob Waddell. Carnegie's players have been ordered to report in their very best condition, which means that no time will be lost in serving the rough stuff.

When all hands are accounted for tomorrow, the Tech mentors will have a squad of 40 men with which to work, including 18 holdovers from the '31 varsity; 15 recruits from last year's Plebe team; two men who earned letters in 1930, but were ineligible last year; two members of the 1930 Plebes, one of whom dropped out of school because of illness and one who was ineligible last year, and three boys who have previously been in school, but never reported for football before.

The Tipoff

Yesterday's cool weather was welcome as the flowers in May or payday to a sailor to Elmer Layden's Durable Dukes as they were sent through two more strenuous practice sessions up on the Bluff. Layden and Joe Bach put some of the wilting regulars back in mothballs, which failed to make said regulars any too happy.

The intense heat that has attended the workouts of the Dukes since they started their drills last week played merry havoc with the weight of the squad, finally forcing the coaches to put some of the vet-

Nick Altrock Baseball's Humorist Says:

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 7.—Folks, I feel like I'm trying to tell you there is no Santa Claus or there ain't a chicken in every pot when I state it isn't an absolute certainty the Cubs will meet the Yanks in the next world series.

Nick Altrock

There's nothing certain in baseball — which is proved by the statistics that even the Red Sox haven't yet mathematically clinched last place. And a lot of things can happen between now and September 24, like the Yankees taking an open-date fishing trip in a canoe and all getting drowned or the Cubs being lined up for a St. Swithin's Day massacre and machine gunned from left to right, including the bat boy.

As I say, nothing is certain in baseball, but I still got my world series reservations for the first week in October for New York and Chicago—at the Salvation Army Hotel.

Johnny (Datto Boy) Datto, the Filipino Menace, is back again raising havoc in the ranks of the local fighters. Today he is knocking at the door of a match with Battling Gizzy, as a result of having knocked out Charley Baxter in the fourth round of their scheduled 10-round windup battle at Hickey Park, Millvale, last night. Gizzy recently outfought the same Baxter in 10 rounds in an elimination for the local title in the same ring.

Datto, always the showman, carried the fans back to the thrills he gave them in his first two battles with Jackie Rodgers, a few years ago, as he outgeneraled and outhit his opponent all of the way until the sudden finish.

The first round was fought on fairly even terms, with Baxter walking in to close quarters and forcing the fight and Datto countering with sharp rights to the head.

HOOKS FINISH BATTLE

In the third, the Filipino turned to using zooming left hooks to the head almost exclusively and Baxter kept plugging away trying to wear him down by punching the body at close quarters.

Just when Datto began to show signs of slowing down, with the start of the fourth round, as Baxter continued his boring-in tactics and body punching, the fates laughed at Baxter and saw him beaten at his own game.

Datto shot in a left hook to the body that dropped Baxter to his knees, badly hurt, but Charley jumped up immediately and tried to bluff Datto out of the advantage, only to have Johnny step in with another hard, stiff left to the same spot that stretched Charley for the count.

The local man was just beginning to roll over at the count of 10, and had to be given assistance in mid-ring before he could be led to his corner. It was only the second knockout of his career, the other one having been scored in his first bout around here, in the same ring, by Frankie Bojarski, of Erie.

DISANTIS VICTOR

Louis Disantis, Cleveland featherweight, conceded more than five pounds to Patsy Hennigan, of Clairton, and outboxed the latter all of the way in the six-round semi-final, put on after the main bout. He was too fast for Patsy and even turned southpaw against the latter's right hand punching in the fifth round, in which his left swings to the body forced Hennigan to double up. The former amateur champion simply burned up the ring with his speed and Hennigan could not catch up with him.

Steve Senich, Homestead lightweight, finally turned the tables on Sammy Burns, Hill Negro, in their third meeting, the second bout on the card. It was a hard-fought battle, with most of the work being done at close quarters. Burns previously had stopped Senich and also won by a decision over him.

Between Rounds

Jimmy Thomas and Art Giroux, of Canada, will box the main bout of what may be the last show of the season at Hickey Park next Monday night.

A series of four charity boxing shows is planned at the Meyers Bowl before the end of this month. One of them will be a tri-borough affair, carded for the twentieth.

Eddie Kapphan will stage his shows in his new arena on the North Side on Friday nights and plans to open on either September 23 or 30. Harry Kraas has been engaged as the club's announcer.

Young Saylor, of Charleroi, has been in strict training and wants to fight any of the 130-pounders. He reports himself in fine condition.

The boxing show scheduled at Greenlee Field tomorrow night, featuring Tiger Joe Randall against Jack King, has been cancelled because of lack of interest. It is doubtful if the club will hold any more shows this season, although it had not planned to close until next week.

Andy Black, of Duquesne, wants to know why the promoters are passing up Dan Bullick, who is anxious to box Andy Kosel, Nat Litfin, Peter Jahn or any of the other 122-pounders. He also has Al Conrad, 126 pounds, and Joe Hughes, 145, ready for bouts.

Salute Grid Season

HOWARD HARPSTER . . . GENEVA COLLEGE COACH

CUBS MEDIOCRE CLUB—RUTH

By BABE RUTH
Baseball's Highest Salaried Player.

Another baseball season is on its way to a fadeout and it is interesting to look back on it and recall some of the impressions which it has produced. No doubt there will be many who differ with me on some of the views which I may express, but I believe most of those dealing with futures will be borne out in the seasons to come. At any rate here are a few thoughts which come to me.

I don't think the Cubs would have finished higher than third, had they been in the American League this season.

SIMMONS STILL GOOD

I think Al Simmons had a good season this year, even though he was far below his 1931 standard. That was a pretty high standard. Look at his record of runs driven in, home runs and extra-base hits and see if you don't think he has done quite a lot. Too much was expected.

I think the best pitched game I saw all year was by Charley Ruffing when he won it himself in the tenth inning with a homer. He fanned 12 men in this game at Washington, and 11 of the 12 went down swinging. Only one third strike was called.

I think the Cubs would have gone on to win the pennant under Hornsby if he had been retained, so I believe it was a tough break for Rajah. At the same time I believe Charley Grimm will be a grand success as a manager.

GRIMES FEARED

I think Burleigh Grimes is likely to puzzle the Yankees more than Lon Warneke in the coming world series, though the latter has been far more successful than the veteran in his own league this year.

I think that all the reports of a trade during the winter which will send Vernon Gomez to the Indians and Wesley Ferrell to the Yankees are so much noise. I doubt that either club has any idea of trading its star pitcher.

SOCCER LEAGUE RULES SET

Acceptance of the Western Pennsylvania Soccer Football Association's form of government marked the final organization meeting of the Pittsburgh Central League, held at Spartan Hall, Wilkinsburg, last evening. This means the league will work under a commission appointed by the governing body, something new to this district, and its success or failure will be watched with interest.

President Frank Mincher presided at the gathering. Joe Young, of Swissvale, was elected vice president to take the place of Jack Campbell, also of Swissvale, who resigned. Campbell also gave up his job as manager of the Union Switch and Signal team.

Beadling, one of the oldest clubs in soccer in Western Pennsylvania, has changed its name to Mt. Lebanon. Joe Luxbacher represented the club.

Don Ships Craft Back to England

DETROIT, Sept. 7.—(AP.)—Miss England III, unsuccessful and disabled challenger for the Harmsworth trophy, will be loaded on a flat car at Walkerville, Ont., today for the first leg of her journey back to England. At Montreal she will be put aboard the Duchess of York, which sails September 9.

The broken piston, damaged cylinder and detached throttle control that forced her out of the second heat of the Harmsworth races Saturday will not be repaired until the boat reaches England.

YANKEES VICTORS

BINGHAMPTON, N. Y., Sept. 7.—(AP.)—The New York Yankees defeated the Binghamton New York-Penn League club, a Yankee farm, 7 to 3, in an exhibition game yesterday. The score by innings:

JESS QUATSE

Harpster and Quatse, former all-America stars at Carnegie Tech and Pitt, respectively, will appear as guest speakers on the weekly radio program of the Trained Seals of the sports department of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph over WCAE at 6:50 o'clock this evening. These are Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph pictures.

SEALS DISCUSS GRID SEASON

Okay—then tune in on the Trained Seals' weekly sports broadcast over WCAE at 6:50 o'clock tonight.

You'll hear Howard Harpster, Carnegie Tech's brainy all-America quarterback of 1928, now coach at Geneva College, and Jess Quatse, Pitt's powerful all-America tackle of last fall, tell what they think of the outlook, discuss the new rules, tell what they expect of the various teams and players.

Coach Earl (Greasy) Neale, the veteran mentor in charge at West Virginia, the coach with the wind-blown haircut, calls his Mountaineers together tomorrow for their initial workout of the pre-season training campaign. The Mountaineers have a nice soft opener ahead—with the Dukes.

West Virginia, by the way, has sliced the price scale for its football tickets. The top will be $2.50 for the game with Pitt. It will set the boys back two smackers for the Georgetown and Washington and Lee and Wash-Jeff contests, and you can see the others for $1.65.

The boys at Wash-Jeff are nursing bumps and bruises almost without number today following the first scrimmage doled out to 'em by Coach Hank Day. Day plans another for tomorrow and may even send his charges back for some man-to-man tussling today.

Down at State College yesterday Bobby Higgins sent his Nittany Lions through their initial workout, a single session affair, in which a squad of 30 men took part. When all the huskies arrive, the State mentor will have a list of 45 varsity candidates.

Two of Carnegie Tech's varsity football prospects, Colin (Rufus The Red) Stewart, star end, and Tom Coulter, the Canuck hurdler, who is making his initial bid for a gridiron job, had their final dates last night prior to the opening of training camp tomorrow. After tomorrow, the only dates they'll be interested in will be with Hizzoner Bertie Munhall, the trainer. The Tech system is tough on ends and halfbacks.

Large Fields Enter Lazy Hour Races

Large fields will feature the card of the Chestnut Ridge Hunt Club, which will stage its first steeplechase races Saturday afternoon at the Lazy Hour ranch near Dunbar, Pa. The program of seven events will get under way at 1 o'clock, eastern standard time.

The first event will be junior hunter trials for riders not over 20 years of age, open to any horse.

The first race over the flat for a mile, open to any rider at 155 pounds, with half breds allowed 10 pounds, has attracted eight entries which will go over the $100 purse.

The other events will be a half-mile flat race for children, a mile and a half post and rail steeplechase for half breds, a mile and a half brush race open to any rider at 155 pounds, a three-mile timber race open to gentlemen riders only at 165 pounds, and a polo pony race.

OPEN GRIDIRON RACE LOOMS IN DIXIE

By W. A. ALEXANDER
Member, All-America Board of Football.
(Reg. U. S. Patent Office.)

Labor Day found most of the 23 Southern Conference football teams, scattered from Maryland to Florida westward to the Mississippi River, beginning their first practice. Most of them open the season September 24.

W. A. Alexander

Any attempt to rank the teams now as to strength is dangerous, since several camps report star players absent and others involved with eligibility questions. But from what transpired in spring practice a fair line on probable performances can be given.

Much to the dismay of Coach Frank Thomas, the Alabama squad has been almost unanimously established favorite by the newspapers. Coach Thomas succeeded Wallace Wade at Alabama last spring and put in the Notre Dame system, varied now and then with a punt formation. The Alabama players naturally learned the new style slowly, but at the end of the season they were clicking like a good football team and perhaps were the strongest eleven in this section. Alabama's losses were comparatively light, and with John (Hurry) Cain, All-America triple-threat fullback, performing again behind a heavy, skillful line, Alabama constitutes a real threat to every team on an ideally-balanced schedule.

OPEN RACE IN PROSPECT

There should be no rush, however, to award the championship to Alabama without a struggle. Alabama must play Tennessee and Vanderbilt, and these two teams should be away above the average.

Tennessee has lost Gene McEver from the backfield, but it has in Beattie Feathers a triple-threat star who promises to be even more effective than McEver. In addition Maj. Bob Neyland, with a supply of fine looking freshmen each year has not neglected building his line and will send out a strong set of forwards again.

Vanderbilt had a potentially great team last year, but had to play four of the strongest teams ever developed in this section in one year. They lost to Tulane, Georgia, Tennessee and Alabama and still looked good. Coach Dan McGugin, the dean of Southern coaches, has few gaps to refill and with a veteran team and a better balanced schedule, he should be very hard to beat.

TULANE POWERFUL

Tulane won the championship of the Conference last year and played a great game in the Rose Bowl at Pasadena against U. S. C. Their success climaxed the reign of Bernie Bierman as head coach in which the Greenies were undefeated by a Conference team for three seasons; Bierman has gone to Minnesota and Ted Cox, his chief assistant now is head coach. The Green Wave lost several important bulwarks from the line, but they still have Zimmerman, Payne and Felts, three of the best backs in the country. There is no way to figure Tulane out of it yet.

Neither is their any way to figure the University of Georgia out of the championship race without a struggle. The Bulldogs lost one Conference game last year—to Tulane. They lost a dozen seniors, but Coach Harry Mehre wisely had been developing replacements right along and his new team will be liberally sprinkled with experienced men, especially in the backfield.

GUEST POLO TEAM COPS

WESTBURY, N. Y., Sept. 7.—(AP.)—The Guest family team, Templeton, appears to have won the favorite's place in the open polo championship which was relinquished by Tommy Hitchcock's Sands Point four Saturday.

Winston and Raymond Guest, Mike Phipps and Stewart Iglehart, four young Yale graduates, made their first appearance in the tournament yesterday and stepped into the finals by defeating Seymour Knox's Aurora team with ridiculous ease. The score was 13 to 6.

The second semi-final, to decide Templeton's opponent in the final, was to be played today with the Eastcotts, who provided the tournament's biggest upset by eliminating Sands Point, facing the Greentree four led by Jock Whitney.

MID-ATLANTIC TITLE SERIES ON TODAY

BECKLEY, W. Va., Sept. 7.—(AP.)—The question of whether a hard-hitting ball team is superior to a nine with masterful pitching, will be decided during the Middle Atlantic League championship series which opens here today.

Beckley's Black Knights, winners of the league's first half pennant, are acknowledged as the hardest hitters of the league. On the other hand, the Charleston Senators, who copped the last half pennant, boast one of the league's best pitching corps.

McNeil, who never has lost a game to Charleston, is doped to take the mound for the Knights and probably will be opposed by Lamaster, generally recognized as the best southpaw in the Mid-Atlantic.

Split-Heat Wins Mark Circuit Races

INDIANAPOLIS, Sept. 7.—(AP.)—Both of the horsemen futurity stake races on the program for yesterday's Grand Circuit meeting at the State Fair Grounds resulted in split heat victories for the winners.

Spencer McElwyn won the 2-year-old trotting feature after dropping the first heat to Brown Berry, while Raider was the victor in the 3-year-old pacing event, the first heat of which was won by Rip Hanover.

PHILLIPS, KAUFFMANN ADVANCE AT SCHENLEY

GALIDO WINNER OVER SWEDKO IN THRILLER

By TOM BIRKS

Phillips advanced at the expense of Mike Showran by a score of 4 and 3, while Kauffmann eliminated G. Engsler, 5 and 4, to enter the second round.

One of the best matches of the first round resulted in the elimination of Andy Swedko by Mike Galido, 1 up. Both shot brilliant golf, Galido having a card of 65, one under par, while Swedko turned in a 66, even par figures. Galido obtained his one-hole lead on the fourteenth and maintained it to the finish. The cards:

Galido, out	434	425	4—4—32
Swedko, out	341	534	5—4—34
Galido, in	335	543	4—4—33
Swedko, in	424	435	4—4—32—66

The summary:

FIRST SIXTEEN

First round—Dr. C. S. Brandon defeated J. W. Platt, 2 and 1; Tom Birks defeated W. C. Pyle, 5 and 4; J. France Lally defeated J. Tierney, 7 and 6; Mike Galido defeated Andy Swedkos, 1 up; Art Belay defeated J. Funk, 3 and 4; S. Phillips defeated Mike Showran, 4 and 3; Carl F. Kaufmann defeated G. Engsler, 5 and 4; J. Calhoun defeated J. Rosenberg, 1 up.

SECOND SIXTEEN

First round—G. Calhoun defeated G. W. Ryan, 3 and 2; W. McMullen defeated O. Wilder, 1 up; R. Major defeated J. Pasiewski, by default; A. Seman defeated R. DePietro, by default; O. L. Long defeated J. Weber, 1 up; W. Woodson defeated J. Philbin, 4 and 3; L. Schmiedt defeated J. Suzdick, 1 up, 19 holes; Marty Boshert defeated A. G. Wallerstedt, 4 and 3.

KAUFFMANN MEDALIST

Kauffmann demonstrated that he still is a formidable contender for the crown now adorning the brow of Phillips as he stroked the 36 holes in 63-67—130, two shots under par, to win the qualifying medal yesterday, with his nearest opponent, Andy Swedko, six strokes behind.

Carl played beautiful golf in the morning round. He was out in 31, two under par, and back in 32, one under the perfect score for a 63. Carl dropped a shot on the long eighth hole in the afternoon round, took a 5 on the tenth, when his tee shot was out of bounds, and finished one over par.

C. H. McDonald, professional at the Aspinwall Bob-O-Link course, has offered the courtesy of the court to the women golfers at Schenley Park while the city championship is being played this week. Announcement was made that the Schenley links would remain open throughout the winter.

Win Matches

S. WALTER PHILLIPS

CARL F. KAUFFMANN

Defending champion and former champion, both of whom advanced to the second round today in the annual city championship tournament at Schenley Park. Kauffmann, three times national public links champion, was the medalist with a score of 136. He was three under par for his first round. These are Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph pictures.

Miss Bowes Wins In Girls' Tennis

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 7.—(AP.)—Seven of the eight seeded players and one unranked entry yesterday advanced in the quarter-final bracket in the national girls' grass court tennis tournament at the Philadelphia Cricket Club.

Of the seeded racket wielders, Millicent Hirsch, of New York City, metropolitan champion, and Fanny Goodycar, of Springfield Center, N. Y., encountered the hardest battles. Miss Hirsch, seeded fourth, took a hard contest from Joanna Palfrey, Boston star, 8-5, 6-2, while the New York state player eliminated Katharine Pearson, Houston, Tex., 6-4, 6-3.

The unranked entry, Cecile Bowes, Philadelphia district titleholder, showed that her second-round upset victory yesterday over a seeded entry was not a fluke. She piled up a 6-1, 6-0 score to defeat Betty Faeth, of Kansas City.

ALEX WILSON TO COACH

MONTREAL, Que., Sept. 7.—(AP.)—Alex Wilson, Montreal, Canadian Olympic 400 and 800-meter star, has been appointed track coach and freshman basketball coach at Loyola University, Chicago, it was learned here today. Wilson was third to Bill Carr and Ben Eastman in the 400-meter run at Los Angeles and second to Tom Hampson, of Great Britain, in the 800-meter run. He was a track star at Notre Dame for three years.

AUTO RACES CARDED

WASHINGTON, Pa., Sept. 7.—Another automobile race will be staged at the Arden Downs Speedway on Sunday afternoon by the promoters who put on the Labor Day events Monday. Two preliminary events and a 50-mile feature race will be held.

COCHET MEETS VAN RYN IN TEST TODAY

NEW YORK, Sept. 7.—(AP.)—Henri Cochet may or may not be the world's greatest tennis player at the moment, but there can be slight doubt the marvelous little Frenchman tops them all as a box office "draw."

For three days now the big horseshoe stadium at Forest Hills has been comfortably filled with spectators and hundreds more have spilled on to the outlying courts, all having paid a pretty stiff price for the privilege of watching what was bound to be indifferent tennis in the opening rounds of the National championships.

COCHET POPULAR

Cochet, surrounded by an aura or semi-invincibility, has pulled most of them through the gates.

It is easy to understand Henri's hold on the public. He exudes color and his grace on the court is that of a dancer. Compared to some of the six-footers he faces on this side, he is a little fellow, but he has the wrists of a Dempsey.

Prospects were he would need all his resources today when he encountered John Van Ryn, the steady Philadelphian, in the outstanding duel of the fourth round. The French ace was favored to win, but not any such margin as that by which he overwhelmed Manuel Alonso yesterday. Although he prefers and excels at doubles, Van Ryn can play a lot of singles when he takes the notion.

VINES MEETS TEST

Things also promised to warm up today for Vines, who has loafed through two previous matches. The champion meets his old friend and doubles partner, Keith Gledhill, who has beaten him frequently in lesser tournaments, and observers anticipated a hot match.

George Lott, Jr., who made his comeback yesterday by defeating 16-year-old Frankie Parker, of Milwaukee, clay court and Canadian champion, in four sets, was up against a serious obstacle in Takeo Kuwabara, champion of Japan. Kuwabara was steady yesterday in beating Bryan Grant, Jr., of Atlanta.

ALLEGHENY NET EVENT CARDED

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN

Crack dual outfits of the Western Pennsylvania area offer certainty of brilliant tennis as the second annual Allegheny Country Club invitation men's doubles net tourney goes to the post on the Sewickley Heights turf rectangles this week-end.

The impending competition, companion piece to the grass court two-man event at Fox Chapel in July, is slated to open Saturday morning and to run over Sunday, but if, as now, seems sure, the entry list should exceed 16 teams, there will be a preliminary round of action reeled off on Friday.

W. C. Robinson, Jr., racquet chairman at Allegheny, leaves today on first leg of a European tour, which means that William P. Snyder, Jr., rangy A. C. C. luminary, will handle the reins of the tournament, with Julius Boise, veteran and popular Heights pro, lending able assistance.

Dr. Billy McElroy and Dr. Dave O'Loughlin, P. A. A. stars and at that time West Penn champions, downed Billy O'Loughlin and Wally Arensberg, another classy Winged Head combine, in the final a year ago. Frank McClintock and Frank White, clever University Club coalition, landed the consolation trophies. It is hoped that all three '31 prize-winning crews will return from the city casts such prospect into doubt. Should McElroy remain out of town until next week, Dave O'Loughlin will join force with his brother, Dr. John, top ranking local performer and holder of the Westmoreland County, Western Maryland, and Morgantown Country Club invitation challenge cups for the current campaign.

Bob Meusel, Mike Gazella Released

Standard Brands Forms Subsidiary

DOVER, Sept. 7.—Pan American Standard Brands, Inc., with a capitalization of $50,000 has been formed by Standard Brands, Inc., to take care of the latter company's South American business.

BAER TO BOX TUFFY

CHICAGO, Sept. 7.—(AP.)—A match between Max Baer, conqueror of Ernie Schaaf, and Tuffy Griffiths, Sioux City heavyweight, was in the making today for the Chicago Stadium, September 23, only minor details remained to be ironed out.

ROONEYS MEET TONIGHT

The J. P. Rooneys, West Penn Gridiron Conference champions, will hold a meeting tonight in the home of Chris McCormick, North Diamond street, North Side. The meeting will begin at 8 o'clock, and all last year's players are requested to attend.

CHRISTNER LANDS K. O.

SELPRE, O., Sept. 7.—(AP.)—Myer (K. O.) Christner, 193, of Akron, knocked out Russ Nowsey, 178, of Huntington, W. Va., in the first round of a scheduled 10-round bout here last night.

VALENTINE

Captivating Story of a Shy Girl Rushed Into Love

By HAZEL LIVINGSTON

Val's News of Engagement To Joe Carey Amazes Aunt Julia

CHAPTER XV.

Val was shocked and a little shy at Joe's changed appearance. He was enormously different. He had seemed much older, much heavier. He didn't look like the old Joe at all.

But aside from looks he hadn't changed.

It was good to have him back. Same old Joe, teasing her, waiting on her, telling her how beautiful she was. He came over every evening, walked in the back way, joked with Aunt Julia in the kitchen. It was hard to realize that he had been away three years, that he was a successful architect.

Mrs. Clarkson was right at her side window, watching, every time he came. Val wondered what his mother thought about it . . . not that she cared.

An old sweetheart . . . she liked the sound of it. Besides he had been a sweetheart, sort of, and if it weren't for this other girl in Minnesota, this Pearl Neely, one would think he was yet.

She decided to ask about her.

"Joe, when are you going to get married? Soon?"

"Is this a proposal, darling?"

She didn't laugh. "I'm serious. Aren't you engaged to Pearl Neely?"

IS NOT ENGAGED

Joe turned to her leisurely, spoke in his slow way. "That's a funny one. Where did you get that?"

"Isn't it true?"

"No. But tell me, where did you ever—"

"No."

"Then somebody lied!"

"Oh Val! Somebody gossiped, you mean. Pearl's a swell girl. I've known her ever since I went to Minneapolis. We go around together a lot. That's all. Funny where you got that. Did I write about her so much?"

"No. Your mother told Aunt Julia and me. She said you were engaged, but you wouldn't marry her till she said you could."

"Oh!" Joe's little startled "Oh!" told Val all she wanted to know.

"Just some of ma's imaginings," he finished. His voice sounded a little strained. Trying to be loyal to his mother, when he knew perfectly well she'd been lying. The thought of his mother coming all the way over to tell that lie just to spite her stirred a little demon of meanness in Val.

"Is the rest of it true?" she demanded.

"What?"

"That you wouldn't marry unless she said you could?"

CHUMMY AGAIN

And when he didn't answer at once she burst out. "You've got a mother complex! Honestly, you have!"

"Maybe I have. She's worked so hard, Val. All us kids, and no money. I used to feel so sorry for her. I still do! Gosh! Those lean hard days! Wow!" He wiped his forehead, smiled ruefully. "Say, I wouldn't live over those kid days again—"

Val was touched, in spite of herself. Poor Joey. Poor old Joey—

Reaching over, she kissed him, thinking of the time he had kissed her, years ago, when he had asked about Millie and she had to say she didn't know why she didn't write.

He kept his head bent. His cheek brushed her cheek. Afterward she touched it, wondering . . . were his lashes wet? Had Joe had tears in his eyes? Poor old Joe . . . did he care that much?

They drifted into the old chumminess. Val hurried home from the office at night, gobbled her dinner, rushed to dress. Aunt Julia, nibbling on a soda cracker sprinkled with cheese, for comfort, would turn her large, pale ear toward the closed door of Val's room, listen for the sound of the water running in the adjoining bathroom.

Up and down the kitchen she'd walk, storming, scheming . . . Get their minds off one thing, and they're into something else. Now what could she do?' Anything to break up this everlasting Joe, Joe, Joe . . .

AUNT JULIA WORRIED

Take Val to a movie? But Val wouldn't go to shows any more, said she hated them. Get up a party? But you couldn't find any girls to ask any more. All Val's old friends were married, and that Janice Fletcher was so highbrow you couldn't understand her when she talked. Weren't there any nice young girls. Val's age, left? Why couldn't other people bring up their girls the way she'd brought up Val—nice and sensible, and not boy crazy?

"When's Joe going back?" she asked Mrs. Carey next morning when they were both out with their brooms.

"Saturday," Mrs. Carey said. "He would of gone last Saturday only he couldn't bear to go off and leave his mother—silly boy!"

But the boast wasn't accompanied with quite the usual complacent smirk. Her lips smiled, but her pop-out eyes were strained.

"He's staying on account of Val, and she knows it," Aunt Julia thought. Her heart sank.

Val drooped, complained of headaches, was miserable all that last week.

The last Friday Joe came over, plumped down on the velour Chesterfield in the front room to wait for Val who was all ready an hour ago, and then tore her hair all down and did it over the last minute.

"How's your mother?" Aunt Julia asked, making conversation.

"Not very well. She's not very strong, you know, and she's upset over my leaving."

"Humph," said Aunt Julia. The "humph" was for Mrs. Carey's health, of which she had her own opinion.

VAL IMPATIENT

She sank into one of the armchairs. Aunt Julia, of course, had taken the rocker. Joe was sitting on the Chesterfield.

"No, not unless Val wants to."

"Not at all," Val said politely.

Well, if they weren't going to talk . . . Aunt Julia inquired after Joe's uncle in Minneapolis, the health of the two youngest Carey's, explaining her theory about bringing up little girls.

"And above all I wouldn't show any favoritism. I told your mother, right to her face, Joe, that the way she favored Vivian wasn't right. I told her—"

Joe waited politely for Aunt Julia to finish. Val said, "I beg your pardon, Aunt Julia. I didn't mean to interrupt."

They stood, polite, waiting for her to finish, but she had forgotten what she was going to say. She knew they hadn't wanted her, that they would have stayed home if she had kept out of the room.

She went into the kitchen, made herself a cup of coffee and some cinnamon toast, and ate it, crunching it between her teeth, enjoying it, worrying, wishing she hadn't intruded. . . .

But why shouldn't she? Did they have anything to say that they were ashamed to have her hear? Did she have to keep out of her own front room on account of Joey Carey?

The movie magazines helped pass an hour. The old cat came in, sat at her feet, and for once she did not shoo him away.

She was still sitting in the kitchen, reading her magazine, yawning, skimming the ads . . . "Gray hair restored to natural—" . . . "Wrinkled skins made young by new system of nourishing oil," when Val came home.

"Joe and I are engaged," she said breathlessly.

"I'm so happy—so happy!" she cried. And burst into tears.

"Joe and I are engaged," Val said breathlessly.

Synopsis

Valentine Macfarlane's early childhood is steeped in romance. Her gay, widowed mother, Millie, is her ideal. When Val is 8, her mother goes to the orient and leaves her in Oakland with a man-hating maiden aunt, Julia Macfarlane. Aunt Julia clings to the girl, declaring Millie is not a fit guardian. Val has trouble in finding a "boy friend." She likes Joe Carey, a neighbor boy, but Joe's mother opposes her. Val takes a position as stenographer. At a dance, she meets the dashing, wealthy Lester Sherwood and becomes infatuated with him. Lester insists on "petting." When she rebels he quits her in anger. Joe Carey, out of town for three years, returns.

Now Go On

Heart of a Wife

By ADELE GARRISON

Chinese Gives Warning About Strong Box

Dicky lost no time in ushering Lillian and me back into the little study off the library, where we had left Lee Chow. The high-born Chinese was no longer lying upon the army cot, upon which he had collapsed after his hand had been jabbed with the venom-tipped needle concealed in one of the envelopes hidden in the secret compartment of Marion's strong-box. A big arm-chair had been drawn close to the table and Lee Chow, seated in it, was looking down intently upon the three sealed envelopes which he had taken from the box.

He looked up as we entered and started to rise, but Hugh Grantland, standing behind him peremptorily put him back into his chair.

"You must not exert yourself, my friend," he said.

"Thank you." Lee Chow returned with grave courtesy, and I surmised that the jaws of death had indeed too nearly closed for him to be able to look back upon the experience with a smile.

"Will you all please be seated?" he said, and suddenly something indefinable, intangible, in his voice and manner made me feel as if I were a school girl listening to the expounding of a difficult subject.

GIVES WARNING

He tapped the envelope from which still protruded the slender, gleaming dart that had wounded him.

"I wish to impress upon you all," he began slowly, "that no one except myself must touch this envelope again. I have seen to it that this needle point has been cleaned of venom, and it stays outside the—object—in which its base is bedded. But a slight pressure, exerted at the right place, will send it back into its base again, where it will be recharged, and become again a potential source of death.

"And this is the 'fortune' that was left to my baby!" Lillian's voice was vibrant with anger. "Of course, her grandmother was senile when she turned over the box to Marion, and probably had forgotten what its contents were; but surely even Tom Morton could not have planned such a thing for me, figuring that I would open the box for Marion."

Lee Chow was speaking again, as measuredly as ever, and I guessed that his strength was not sufficient to enable him to hurry his disclaimer of Lillian's theory, even for the purpose of easing her mind.

"The person who put these envelopes into this box," he said, "could not possibly have known of this venom-tipped needle concealed in one of these objects. The knowledge of this is possessed by only one living person—myself—although there are several people who know the value and the history of these things."

WITHHOLDS KNOWLEDGE

I wondered if the rest were feeling the same impatient curiosity that was consuming me at the evasion which he was patiently using in regard to the contents of the box.

"Of course, you realize by this time," he went on, "that I cannot tell you now what the objects are that this envelope holds, although as you may have guessed, I know every bit of their contour as perfectly as if they were bones of my body.

"But the wishes of ancestors are sacred and the mother of this child's father said, as I understand, that the contents of these envelopes were not to be revealed until the young girl comes of age. Am I right?"

"Until she is 18, yes," Harry Underwood said quickly, relieving Lillian of the necessity of speech, which I guessed was beyond her.

"You told me this morning"—Lee Chow turned to Lillian—"that your daughter's eighteenth birthday would not be here for two months?"

"That is correct," he said.

"Then we will wait until that time," Lee Chow said. And again I was struck by the authority in his manner. His behavior I told myself, was more like what one would expect from the owner of the box than from someone who was investigating it.

SUN-TELEGRAPH-WARNER THEATERS JUNIOR KOMIC CLUB

Members of the Arsenal Chapter of the Sun-Telegraph-Warner Theaters Junior Komic Club are going for an imaginary trip to the "Isle of Man" some time this month.

Manager Eddie Johns and his assistant, Russell Niggle, have written a three-act musical comedy titled "All Aboard," and the cast will consist of members only.

The story of the play is written around a group of girls who have banded together with the one thought in mind that they will be "man haters" for life. They charter the good ship "Jolly," piloted by Capt. Jobes, to go on an expedition to the Isle of Man to find the treasure which is believed to have been buried by Svengali, the famous French Maestro, whose castle is on the island.

MEN FORBIDDEN

The girls have forbidden Capt. Jobes to allow any men on the boat, except the crew, and they must remain below decks while the girls take their exercises. Molly, president of the girls' club, also has forbidden all the girls to speak to any male member on board.

But, and from the looks of the script, it's a large "but," there are two stowaways, friends of the captain on board—Snizzers and Goober. The fun begins when Snizzer catches a glimpse of Molly and falls in love with her at first sight and proceeds to make violent love to her. Molly, who started out to be a man-hater, tries hard to live up to the by-laws of the club, but, and we'll leave this part of the story for you to enjoy when you see "All Aboard."

The play gets funnier and funnier and the action faster and faster as the scene shifts to the Isle of Man, and later to the castle of Svengali. The curtain drops when everything turns out to everybody's satisfaction.

CAST FOR PLAY

Capt. Joebs (captain of the S. S. Jolly).....Gresham McGuire
Molly (president of the girls' club).....Bernadine Gressler
Snizzer.....Russell Niggl
Goober.....John Hilliard

(The Stowaways)

Club members:

Alberta Fundia, Betty Richards, Josephine Lang, Josephine Baran, Francis Kane and Shirley Berger.

Sailors:

M. Ribich, H. Morris, S. De Lost and T. Hart.

Scene 3—Svengali's Castle.

Having just a limited amount of time at the regular Saturday meetings of the club, Eddie Johns, manager of the Arsenal Theater, will have to present this play in three parts on three succeeding Saturdays.

"All Aboard" is the first of the winter schedule planned by Manager Johns for the entertainment of the members of the Arsenal Chapter of the Sun-Telegraph-Warner Theaters Junior Komic Club.

If you are not a member of the Junior Komic Club, send your name and address, name of your parents, date and year of your birth, school you attend, to the secretary, Junior Komic Club, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, Pittsburgh, Pa., and a membership card and button will be mailed to you.

TODAY'S BIRTHDAYS

Schenley—Winifred Elford.

Belmar—Mary Lipscomb, Amelia Costellano, Cosimo Delee, Paul Nossak, Edward Keegan, Phyllis Jones.

WASN'T IT JUST SICKENING WHEN GUMBO AND MARGY GOT BACK FROM THAT VISIT TO YOUR BROTHER HOMER... TO HEAR HER TRYING TO TELL ME THAT ANNIE, WHO CAN'T BOIL EGGS HARD, IS A WONDERFUL COOK?
ALSO DID YOU HEAR GUMBO RAVE ABOUT HOMER?... MY OWN BROTHER, THAT PHONY!

MARGY NEVER WAS VERY BRIGHT, BUT I KNOW SHE'S JUST SORT OF PUTTING ON AIRS AT BEING DUMB, WHEN SHE ACTS AS THOUGH SHE'S FORGOTTEN ALL THE THINGS SHE KNOWS ANNIE SAID ABOUT HER.
WHEN HOMER WAS TEN YEARS OLD I JUMPED INTO A CREEK WITH MY SUNDAY CLOTHES ON AND FISHED HIM OUT. AND THIS IS WHAT I GET FOR IT.

MARGY KNEW EXACTLY HOW I FELT WHEN SHE WAS PUFFING ANNIE UP TO THE SKIES, AND MARK MY WORDS, AS SURE AS I SIT HERE I'LL FIND SOME WAY TO REPAY MARGY FOR...
AH.. MY IDEA IS TO PAY NO ATTENTION TO THE SMALL STUFF UNTIL LATER... UNTIL GUMBO GETS THAT—

SMALL THINGS? DO YOU MEAN TO TELL ME YOU CONSIDER IT A SMALL MATTER WHEN A WOMAN LIKE MARGY HAS THE NOTION THAT I'M GOING TO STAND WITH MY MOUTH OPEN WHILE SHE SAYS THE MOST CUTTING THINGS TO—
BY SMALL STUFF I MEAN WE SHOULD CONCENTRATE ON BIG THINGS LIKE MY BROTHER, MY OWN BROTHER, TRYING TO UNDERMINE ME WITH GUMBO. MY BROTHER! WHAT A LAUGH!

Practical Hints for Practical Women

Many a woman has lost her husband simply because she struck an unpleasant attitude in his presence. Do you know that the graceful little gestures of eye, hand and footie indicate ease and refinement, whether on the rostrum or in the breakfast nook? For example, when a woman welcomes her husband, hand suspended in midair, chin up, and weight properly balanced on the puppies, the man says, unconsciously, to himself:

"The little woman is O. K. she wouldn't hurt a flea; just because he has been unavoidably detained a couple of days on a big deal in Atlantic City."

On the other hand, if the woman folds up like an undertaker's chair, there's nothing for the man to do but go back to Atlantic City.

Decency Asserts Itself

Judge Patterson's Address to the Constables Is a Clarion Call for Law Enforcement.

If the crooks, the racketeers, the gunmen and gangsters go into partnership with a corrupt but powerful political machine and get control of the police and the courts, what are the citizens to do?

Something of the sort has occurred in Allegheny County, as wide-open racketeering of all sorts, hundreds of unpunished murders and robberies, and unpunished or inadequately punished embezzlements of public funds and election frauds bear witness.

There are some men in public office, thank heaven, who fear neither the racketeers nor their partners, the political bosses. Such a one is Judge Frank P. Patterson, whose address to the constables yesterday in connection with the submission of their quarterly reports rang out like a clarion call for law enforcement.

The people of Allegheny County are fortunate in having Judge Patterson preside over Criminal Court at this term. He owes nothing to the rotten Republican machine or to any other political gang, and he has made it plain throughout his career that he is on the side of the people—the decent law-abiding people—every time. To be on their side means, of course, that he is against the gangs and the racketeers.

So Judge Patterson's stern words to the constables, while different from what we are accustomed to on such occasions, were not surprising.

While not surprising, they were not on that account any the less refreshing and invigorating. By boldly voicing the things that many have been thinking, Judge Patterson has raised the hope that under his leadership the partnership between crime and politics will be broken and a new era of decency ushered into Allegheny County.

"The newspapers make reference to so-called 'number barons' by name with impunity and write knowingly of what is known as 'hot spots.' In fact the prevalence of racketeering seems generally known to everybody except those charged with its suppression.

"It is incredible that this condition can exist except with the connivance and protection of some influence as corrupt as it is powerful. It can only exist by bartering with the racketeer.

"The inevitable consequence has befallen. Men are shot down in the streets at high noon and the murderer makes his leisurely escape. Citizens do not dare to walk about at night. Householders fear for the sanctity of their homes. Banditry holds carnival.

"This always follows where the law makes concessions to and traffics with crime, for crime never makes concessions to the law.

"This appalling state is only the necessary consequence of what the public is too prone to regard as harmless racketeering. It should be no difficult task to procure the necessary information as to the establishments mentioned and the names of owners who permit such use of their property. There is ample legislation to reach them."

The decent people of Allegheny County have been aghast at what has been going on, but they have been more or less helpless because of lack of leadership.

The Grand Jury's exposure of the rottenness of the Armstrong administration was an encouraging development, and Judge Patterson's blunt assertion that the police are in league with the racketeers, following right on the heels of the other report, raises high hopes that a new day has dawned.

Decency has at last asserted itself.

The Steel Revival

Nothing in the Business Situation Could Be More Encouraging for Pittsburgh Than This.

For some weeks there has been a steady stream of reports of improvement in business. But the iron and steel industry, throughout this period of rising security and commodity prices, remained in the dumps. Now steel is reviving, too.

The Carnegie Steel Company is operating at 16 per cent of capacity this week as compared with 11 per cent a week ago. The National and other independent companies also report a slight increase in operations.

Nothing in the business situation could be more encouraging for Pittsburgh than this.

In 1929 the value of the metal products turned out in Allegheny County's industrial establishments was $1,365,235,800. We have 45 blast furnaces, and when in full blast some of them produce more than 1,000 tons of pig iron a day.

Steel is still our mainstay.

Bad Crossings to Go

The Baltimore & Ohio Deserves Praise for Arranging to Eliminate Dangerous Places.

It is gratifying to learn that the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad is arranging to eliminate three dangerous grade crossings.

The tracks are to be relocated so that it will be unnecessary for travelers on the Butler Plank road to cross the railroad at Glenshaw, Wittmer and Mt. Royal.

The job will be an expensive one, and the railroad company deserves praise for undertaking it.

Elimination of the crossings probably will mean the saving of lives that would be lost if motorists had to continue to drive across the tracks.

Whither?

With neither sail nor paddle.
He can't see land; and, understand,
The sea's too wide to straddle.

He's not sure where he's going yet,
His patched bark seems accursed.
If succor's late, he fears his fate—
To drown—or die of thirst!

Just a Few Millions!

"It's wonderful what a difference just a few millions make!" remarked the little blonde hairdresser, as she tested the curling tongs.

"You'd scarcely believe how much hard times improve the eyesight, for instance. Lots of women who simply couldn't SEE anybody, who rode in anything except a Suisa or a Rolls, before 1929, can now see their old friends without even lifting the lorgnette.

* * *

"And it's positively remarkable what a delightful effect it has had on their manners, too. Many women who once regarded a manicurist as just a sort of high-class robot, now smile at her and call her "Dearie," as they sweetly request her to hang up their bills or put that little charge on ice.

"Lots of personable young bachelors, who used to loll around on the fashionable beaches, sizing up the debutantes and looking for four-leaf clovers and wealthy widows, stayed in town, this summer; and decided either to go to work or to marry some nice little business girl, with a good job and a regular salary. Or both.

* * *

"And lots of girls who were planning to marry some generous old millionaire, are now beginning to wonder if a nice, solid young man with an earning capacity, a job and a lot of ambition wouldn't be more desirable and dependable as a life-partner.

* * *

"It's all the improvement in their EYESIGHT, which has made them see things in their right light and their right proportion. Nobody can see anything clearly when he or she is dazzled by a lot of money. It blinds them to everything but the glitter, and stupefies all their finer senses.

"Before 1929, everybody seemed to be trying to establish a high-altitude record for snootiness and rudeness. But having to drive your own car, answer your own doorbell and plead with the landlord for just a little more credit certainly improve some people.

* * *

"Stocks may come back, good times may come back, the world may come back—but, never again, in OUR times, will money-madness and dollar-worship grip this Land of Liberty, equality—and all that sort of thing.

* * *

"Our next aristocracy, if any, will be built on personality, accomplishment and achievement—and not on high-power salesmanship or the dollar-bill!

* * *

"Anyway, it's marvelous to find everybody so much more HUMAN these days. Oh, yes, it's wonderful what a difference just a few millions make!"

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Sept. 7.—Over coffee cups, a trio of magazine editors were discussing the acute sensitivity of young writers to the editorial rebuff. A dash of cold water from the editorial sanctum and genius may be deflowered. No bloom is so touchy as budding authorship.

Experience has shown literary enthusiasm thrives on encouragement. Time after time, authors have been coddled into their finest efforts. That is why the alert editor is so profuse in his acceptance letters and cheer-up telegrams. Deserved or not, they pay dividends.

Too much "babying" has resulted in that afflatus dubbed "the big head," but such instances are in the minority. Peter B. Kyne never thought he could write a full-length novel until egged on. Ring Lardner was regarded solely as a humorist until flattered into trying a bit of sentimentality. His "Golden Honeymoon" was the result.

James Oliver Curwood's second Kazan story was a bloomer, and he would have never written another had not a magazine editor visited his Michigan retreat and prodded him into trying again. O. Henry could only write for sympathetic editors. Also Jack London.

* * *

The most expensive toy house in America is on the estate of Billie Burke, up the Hudson. It was built for Patricia Ziegfeld as a gift from her late father, and is a replica of the Martha Washington home. The cost was $12,000.

* * *

Perhaps no one ever turned so completely from plaudits of Broadway as Dorothy Dickson, a slim, blonde dancer of singular beauty. At the peak of her popularity she went to London and never returned. That was eight years ago. Miss Dickson inaugurated the custom of raising one shoulder and tilting the head in profile in ballroom dancing. With the possible exception of Irene Castle, who also arched a graceful shoulder, no one wore clothes so well.

* * *

I am told many "beer places," getting the big play of the moment, are really entirely within the law. They sell only legalized near beer, but give the impression it is around 4 or 5 per cent. One place has even hatched a deception, the beer is piped directly from nearby brewery vats. It is only the weak concoction scoffers call "belly wash." But crowds actually become tipsy when, as a matter of fact, a gallon, without this self-hypnosis, would not produce the faintest glow.

* * *

Perhaps none is more discouraged over the quality of liquor than Ed Howe. From Potato Hill, he writes: "I lately attended a luncheon at which was served wine from one of the most celebrated cellars in the country. Those present said it would not hurt me. It did. There is no good liquor."

* * *

In one of those felicities so dominating his life, William Gaxton, the actor, once brought me from Bermuda a magic four-ply distillation containing apricot brandy, creme de cacao, curaco and creme de menthe—all in the same bottle. There is about cordials an influence for pious reflection. One could not, I venture, grow hilariously potted on a quart. They are more a dessert than a drink. Anyway, I set out the bottle after a dinner. The party thinned to two and I finally excused myself and went to bed. Long after sun-up, there was a vague murmur of voices from my adjoining hotel room. I looked in. They were still there, but the four-ply bottle was empty. And one was listening very gravely while the other read in droning rumbumble an essay, entitled "Life—It's Futility." And their eyes glistened in hopeless pathos.

* * *

I am ever attracted to those enormously windowed, snappy clothes shops. Before them, in a flood of imaginings, I become a composite o' all the well dressed I know—from Jack Buchanon to Jimmy Walker. I was held today by one $19.50 creation that was a sort of polka dot glume of reddish brown, deep yellow and green with a double-breasted vest sawed off at the wishbone. What ballooned my fervor, however, was the name on a placard. It was: "The Brummel Boy."

* * *

Also, I am a push-over for slapstick movies. Consequently, a sympathetic understanding for the 4-year-old at the hair-raising python and cobra scene in Frank Buck's animal picture, who screamed: "I want Mickey Mouse!"

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

In the old days, when we used to have rules about boozing, "secret drinking" was considered one of the lowest forms of vice.

The man who slunk off and tippled in the woodshed . . . or who periodically disappeared to go on solitary benders—

The woman who kept a bottle of gin hidden back of her hat box and who, every now and then, was isolated by mysterious "headaches"—

For such alcoholic addicts, society reserved its most bitter scorn. You might, you were told, trust an open drunk but you could never, never, NEVER trust a secret drinker. For secret drinking made a bum of any man or woman.

No matter how fine their mind or high their station, if they took to secret drinking, sooner or later they'd land in the gutter. Their sin would find them out.

Much that we were taught as children was nonsense but that belief that a man's secret sin would find him out was solid sense. And it's as true of bathroom tipplers today as it was 50 years ago.

YOU CAN'T BE A BUM ON THE Q. T. AND STAY A LADY OR A GENTLEMAN IN THE PUBLIC EYE. SOONER OR LATER, LIFE WILL SHOW YOU UP.

Prove it for yourself. Every day you see lives crumbling about you. You wonder why. You blame some sudden catastrophe for that tragic ruin. Some financial shock. Some heart-breaking grief. The betrayal of a friend—

You're wrong. Grief and shock won't wreck a life that is braced to meet such tests. If lives go to pieces, it is because THEY'RE WEAKENED FROM WITHIN.

The fine lady who becomes involved in a rotten scandal has been SECRETLY playing with fire for a long, long time.

The famous man who shoots himself because his business has gone haywire has been SECRETLY running away from responsibility for a long, long time.

The little lies we tell to ourselves—SOME DAY THEY WILL BRAND US AS CHEATS BEFORE ALL THE WORLD.

The secret vulgarities that only our own minds have known—SOME DAY THEY WILL SPILL THEIR ACCUMULATED FILTH IN PUBLIC.

The trivial "spells of temper" . . . the small evasions, wobblings and waverings . . . the excuses we make to ourselves . . . for our own cowardice . . . the concessions we make to our own conceit . . . SOME DAY, UNDER SOME UNEXPECTED TEST, THESE THINGS WILL EXPOSE US FOR THE COWARDS AND FOOLS AND BRUTES WHICH WE ARE.

The secret drinker kidded himself that no one knew what he was doing. BUT HIS HICCOUGH BETRAYED HIM.

If you, too, are tippling in some secret indulgence—A HICCOUGH WILL BETRAY YOU, TOO.

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

As an American citizen there are jobs to be done which require interest in civic matters, but which carry no material remuneration.

If it is raising money for worthy purposes you say, "I haven't the time."

But there is much work to be done and you won't help do it.

And you might be one of them were you so inclined and willing to work.

Before men are selected for leaders' places they must have demonstrated their willingness to devote time and energy to certain causes.

What have you done to convince people that you would be an earnest and energetic worker in everything that brings in no remuneration?

You have not done anything—you are not that sort of person.

You'd like the glory and prominence which hustlers acquire.

Usually those who grumble that a certain person takes the lead in matters civic are too lazy to exert the effort required to accomplish the worthwhile results that indicate leadership.

A Bombardment Of Falsehood

By Claude G. Bowers

Author of "The Struggle for Democracy in America," "Founders of the Republic," "Jefferson and Democracy," "The Tragic Era" and other important works, now writing for the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

The campaign has progressed sufficiently to show that, so far as the Hoover High Command is concerned, it is to be fought on a very low level. This low level fighting appears to be inseparable from Mr. Hoover's idea of politics in a democracy. America reached its very lowest level in campaigns four years ago.

Mr. Hoover's campaign was fought with misrepresentations, appeals to racial and religious prejudices, with inuendos, and the whispering of the most scandalous falsehoods ever set afloat since the establishment of the republic. Happily for the purposes of history, the almost incredible pamphlets and cartoons sent out, reeking with the basest falsehoods and the most unthinkable personal abuse of Al Smith, have been carefully preserved and are placed where they will be available to the historian of tomorrow.

The character of that campaign, wicked as it was, was known to Mr. Hoover who, historically, must bear a heavy responsibility for giving it his sanction.

But it worked!

It probably did more to discredit the processes of democracy in elections than anything we have ever known—but it worked.

Now we are entering upon another campaign of Mr. Hoover's which is going to be pitched upon the same low level. Perhaps it also may work. It depends on whether the electorate is capable of increasing its intelligence with experience.

* * *

Whispering Campaign Again in Action

The whispering campaign is again in full swing. It is part of the strategy of the same Best Minds that came in with Mr. Harding. It is aimed at both Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Garner. And along with this we find in the Hoover speakers in the field a determination, if possible to divert attention from the real vital issues of the campaign by injecting frivolities, by attacks on men and measures that are shamelessly misrepresented, by appealing again to prejudices. Having gone into office and wrecked the business fabric of the country by a wholesale blackguarding of a great group of Americans because of their religion, it is now planned to work the other side of the street and mobilize, as far as possible the victims of that campaign of vilification behind the chief beneficiary of the disgraceful plot. There must be loud laughter among the gods looking down upon the stupidities of men. And also at Rapidan where there are no gods.

Roosevelt Attack Met Half-Heartedly

When Mr. Roosevelt at Columbus courageously put his finger on the unpardonable failures of the Hoover administration to protect the American people against fleecing by the unscrupulous and the greedy he touched a sore spot. The enemy is howling still. He showed by quotations from the highest administration quarters that the government was brazenly used to misrepresent conditions to the ruin of innocent investors during the market madness.

Millions of Americans are broke today because they believed these false statements issued to encourage the continuation of the market frenzy, and every Democratic speaker should read these amazing assurances from the administration to every audience addressed.

This is met weakly, and with the attempt to persuade the victims to "laugh it off." And by dishonest and false statements regarding the powers of the governor of one state in dealing with a market situation affecting every little town in this vast nation.

And by the crooked statement that the administration in Washington has no constitutional power to protect the people against the pirates of the market, or to warn them with facts in its possession against the flooding of the country with worthless foreign securities.

Can Expect Nothing From Hoover Regime

Senator Moses, author of that characterization of the Western Senators as "sons of the wild jackass," tries to blot out Roosevelt's Columbus program and speech by calling him "the Boy Scout." This is not very impressive.

He follows other administration speakers like Mr. Snell insisting that there is nothing government can do to protect the investing public against practices that are treated as criminal in other nations; and thereby serves notice that nothing can be expected from Mr. Hoover.

And he reaches the climax of effrontery in saying nice things about Al Smith; effrontery, for this reason: when many of us were fighting for Al Smith's election four years ago, Senator Moses was caught red-handed in playing his part in the under cover campaign to mobilize the lowest of prejudices against this same Al Smith. We remember so well, for we discussed it editorially at the time.

Having delivered himself of the statesman-like tirade, Moses hurried to the millionaire colony at Newport to be lionized as the hero of the phrase "sons of the wild jackass."

Socialism Bugaboo Brought Into Play

And in this very dignified and lofty campaign of the Hoover High Command Mr. Roosevelt's reminder of the "forgotten man" is to be treated as "socialism;" and Mr. Garner, a conservative, is to be treated as a "Socialist" because of his relief measure. Thus Henry J. Allen, repudiated by the people of Kansas, makes the brazen statement that Garner's bill was intended to give everyone "the money they need out of the public treasury."

Mr. Allen knew this to be false. Businessmen furnishing adequate security and able to show that they need money to fill orders already in, were to be loaned money—to help put men to work. They were to be given nothing. They were to give better security than has been given under the administration plan to loan money to powerful corporations. One of these loans, amounting to the stupendous sum of $80,000,000, went to a political favorite of the administration who resigned from the administration to get it. And it is estimated now that the government will lose a billion dollars on the loans made—because of inadequate security.

There are matters that should be left out of the campaign because of the conditions, but if the Allens and the Moses continue their line of attack on the "forgotten man" and on Garner's relief measure, it will not be surprising if there should be some plain, blunt speech on these delicate subjects. Let the people have all the facts; only with all the facts can they render an intelligent verdict at the polls.

Too Much Ruin for "Wise-Cracking"

There have been campaigns where the issues have been so vague and unimportant that there was little left to the orators beyond such wise-cracking as that of Moses. But this is not such a campaign. There is too much ruin all about; too many hungry children; too many millions of jobless men. There are real issues dividing the parties—prohibition, the tariff, farm relief and reforms for the protection of the people against the fleecing of the high placed in finance. Debt transfer may also enter in.

These can be debated on a high plane, and thoughtful citizens expect it. But if the low plane established by the Hoover High Command is to be the height of the campaign, we are afraid it will not be occupied by the Hurleys alone. And that will not make for the good of the country.
